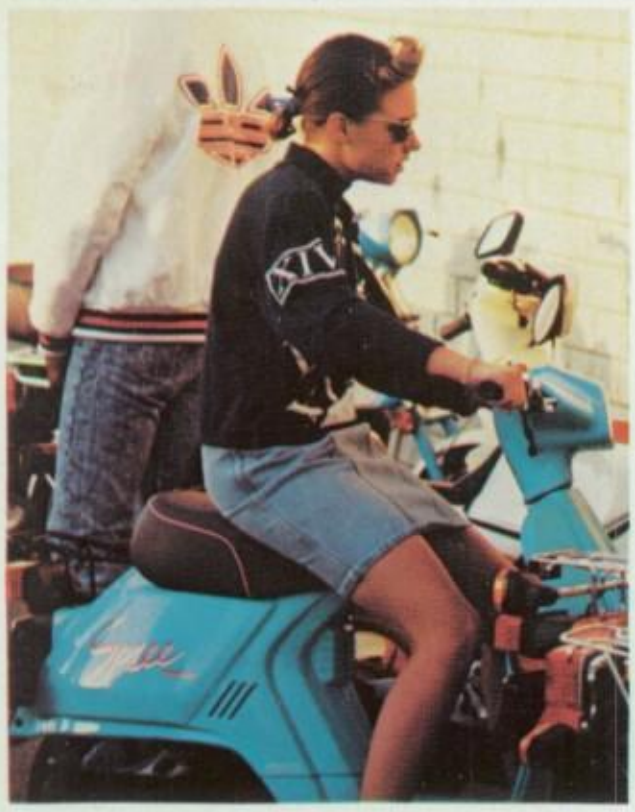
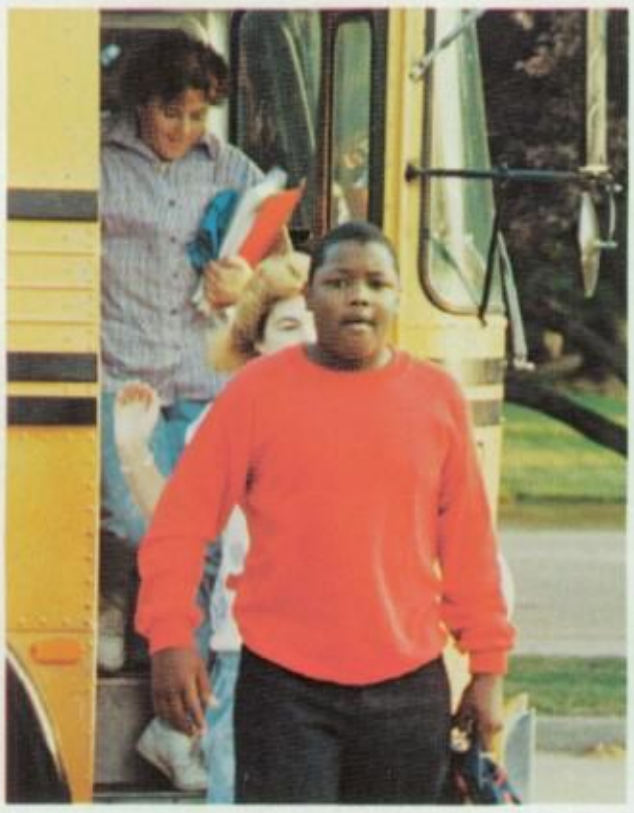
Daily Scene After Dr. Essert's Class

It is the last week of summer. You skip to the mailbox, expecting a postcard from your best friend. You pull out the envelope addressed to you. You stare at it with utter horror, for in the upper left hand corner are stamped the dreaded words, "FOOTHILL HIGH SCHOOL". It was then that you realized that the lazy days of summer were numbered. No more late nights at the movies or at parties, and no more, stress free, homework free evenings. It was also then that you realized that it was now time to GET IT TOGETHER and return to school for another year . . .

RIT

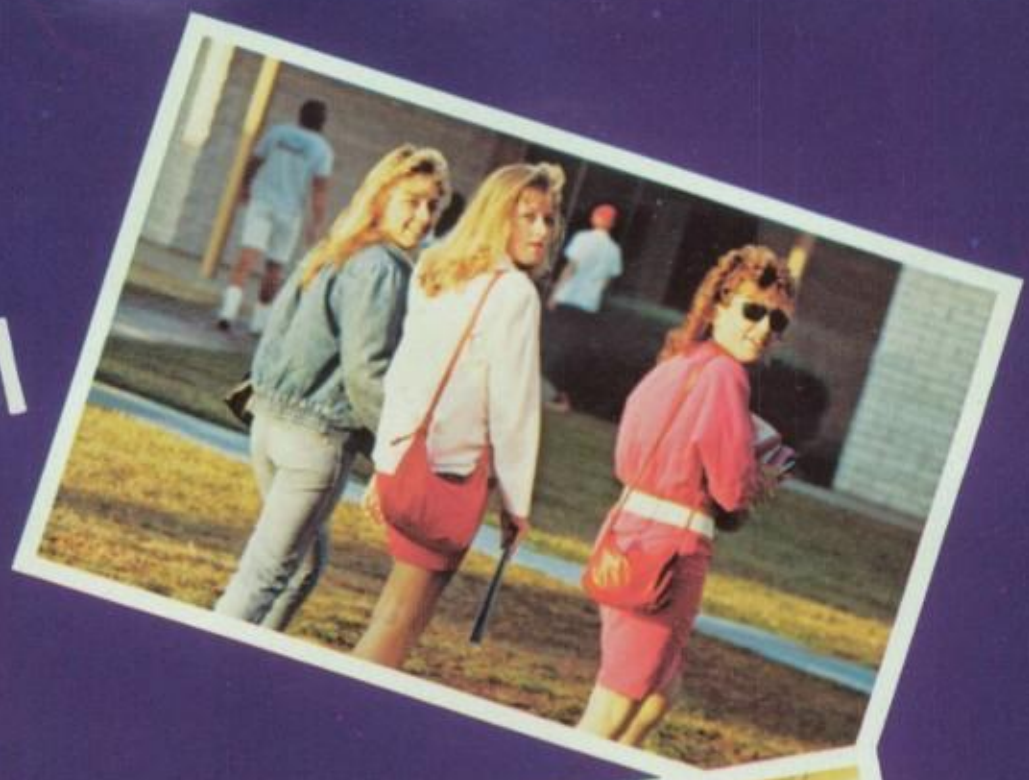


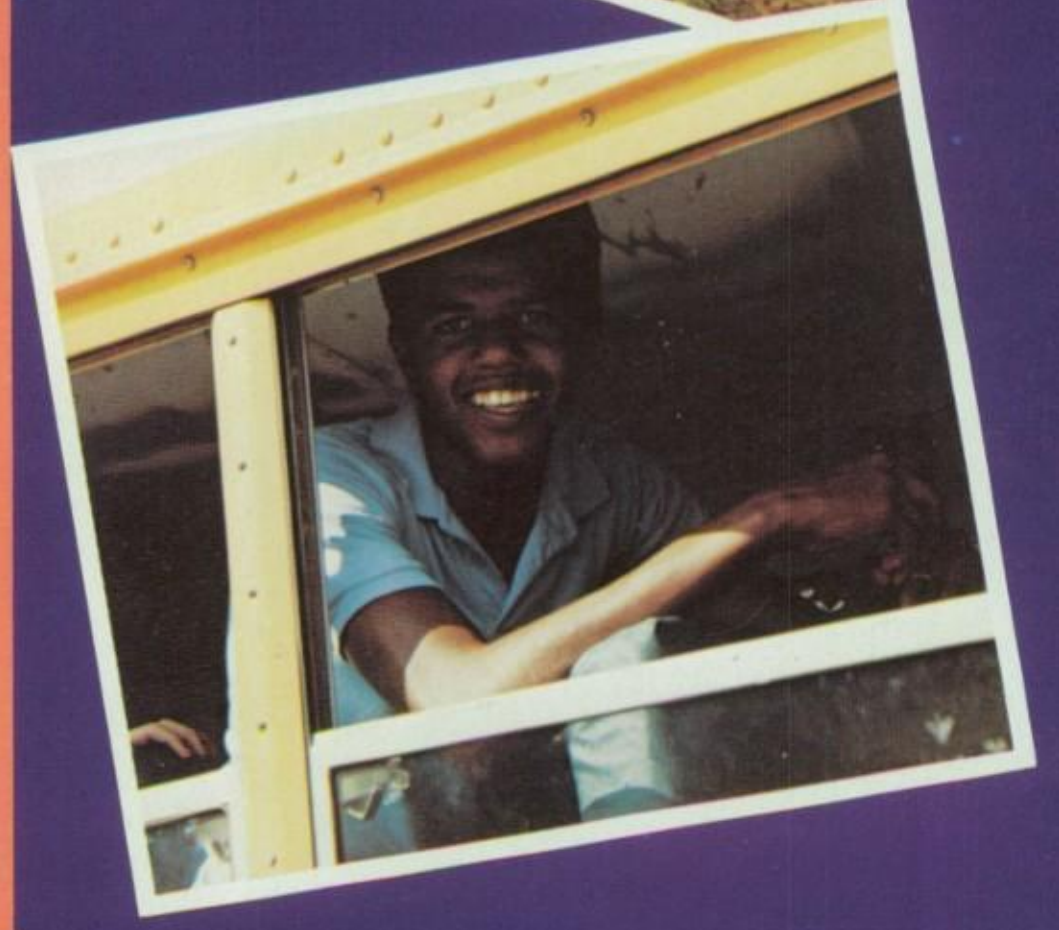


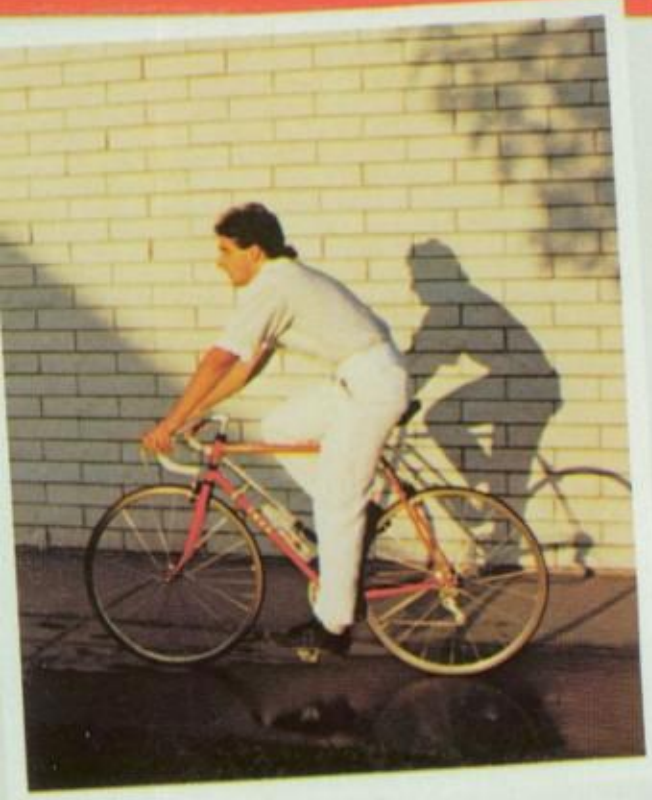
Getting BACK To School

Neither rain, sleet, nor mist of morning could keep industrious students from making their journeys, however perilous, to that renowned institute of learning, Foothill High School. Those enterprising young individuals made their daily trek using a variety forms of transportation. Cars, mostly driven by upperclassmen, ranged from BMW's to Volkswagens. Then there were those, mostly underclassmen, who utilized the ever-reliable school bus. Finally, there were those fresh air and exercise enthusiasts who made their journeys on foot or by bicycle. It didn't matter how you got there, just as long as you were on time.

Early morning blues: Sleepy Mustangs try to "get it together" for another day.
Sputtering to a halt: Stephanie Wright pulls her scooter into her reserve parking space.
On the move: Eugene Cook steps off the bus, ready for a busy day of classes.
On your mark — Go!: Dashing to beat the bell, Vernon Kesweder and Lenny Rogers rush to school.
Are we being followed?: Colleen Murphy, Shane Cook, and Leslie Murphy leisurely stroll to their classes.
Best time of the day: Jared Warren looks delighted to be on his way home.
Nice bike Benny: Benny Jones peddles to school just in time.
Three for the road: Kathleen Gibbs, Connie Mangnum, and Tara McClement casually saunter across the bus loading zone.
Heading home: Patiently waiting to board the bus, students discuss the events of the day.



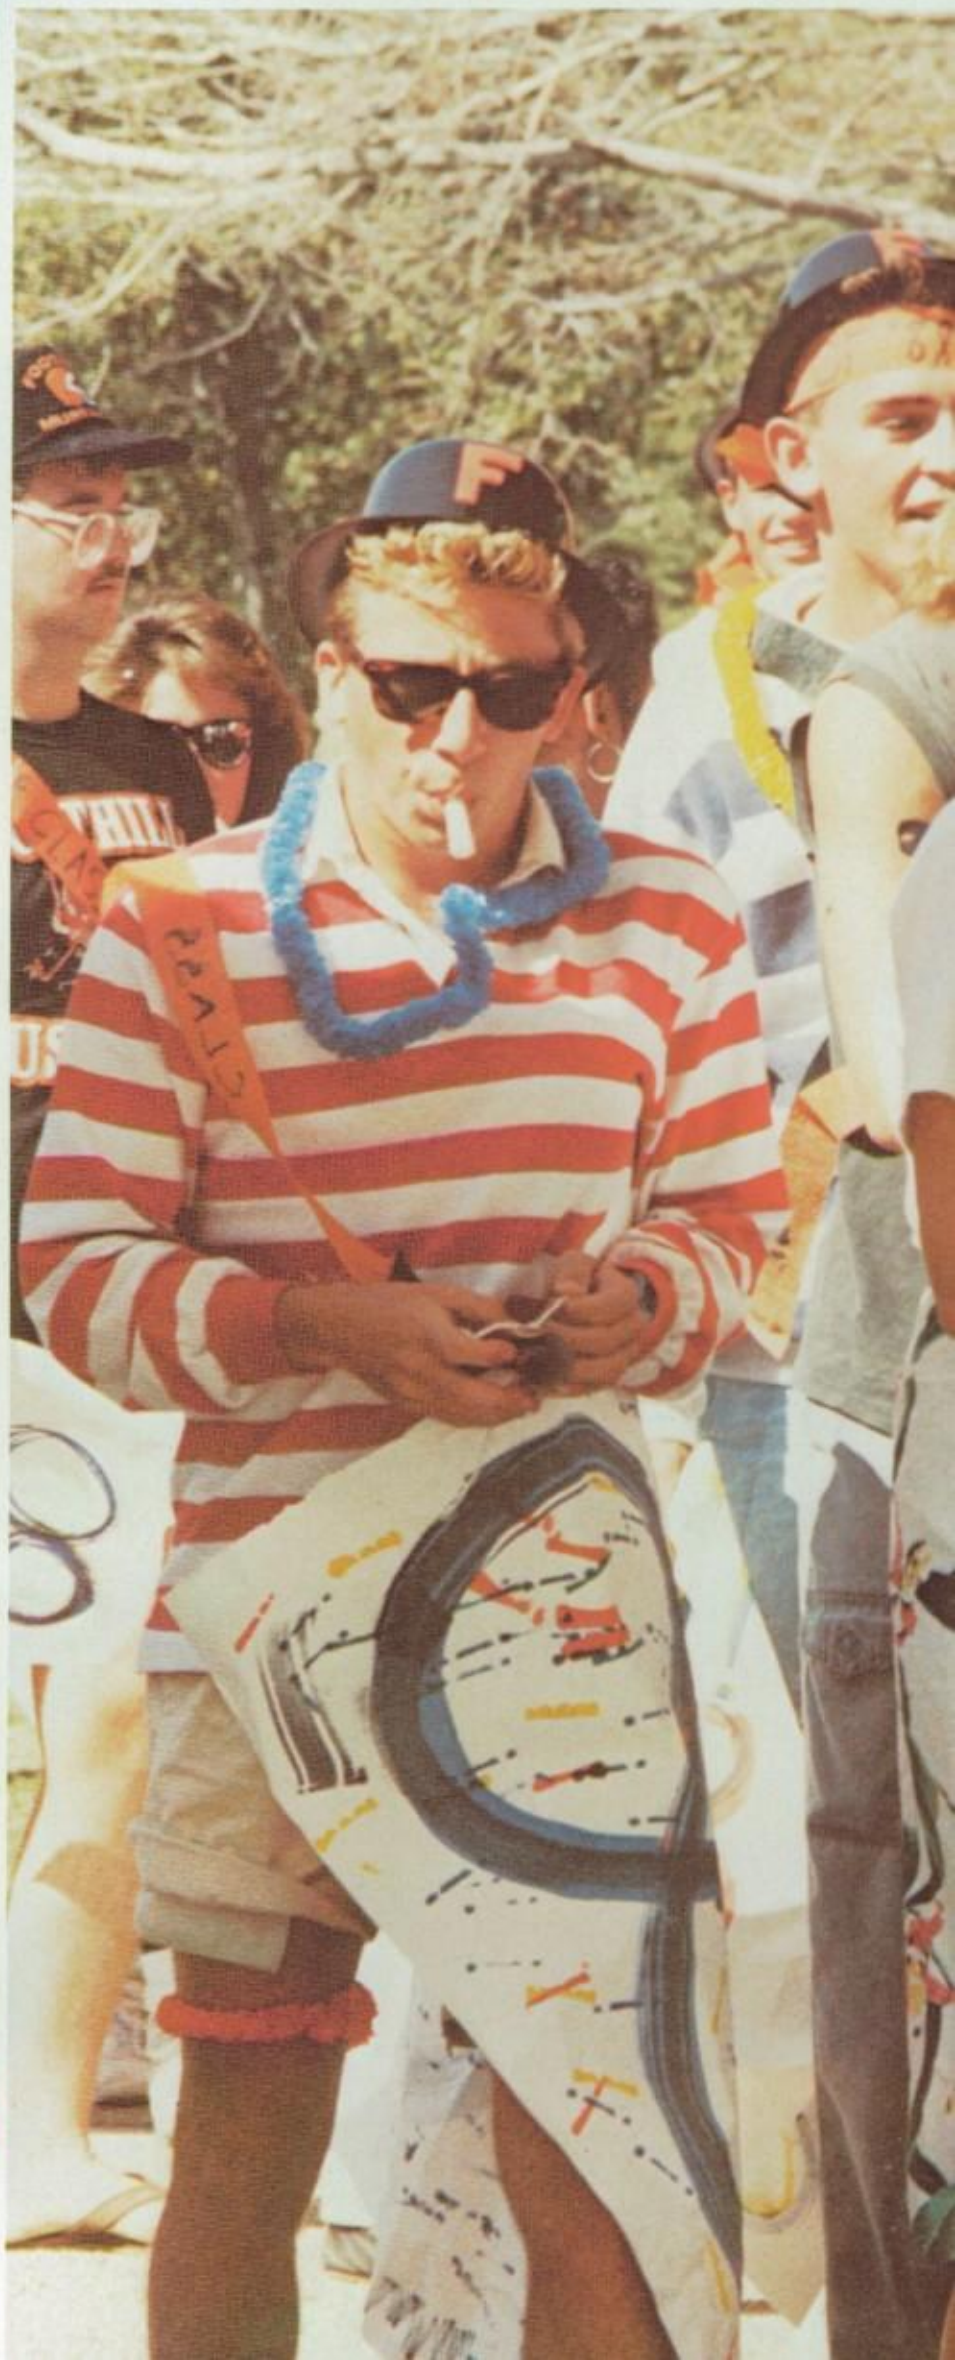




Let's hear it!: Matt Colby gets the senior class pumped up for the rally.

Look Mom!: Jesica Wharton, Tina Fink, Sharmaine McClain and Cora Hullum show their enthusiasm.

Hurry!: George Vallas and Shannon Lynch lead the senior parade into the gym.

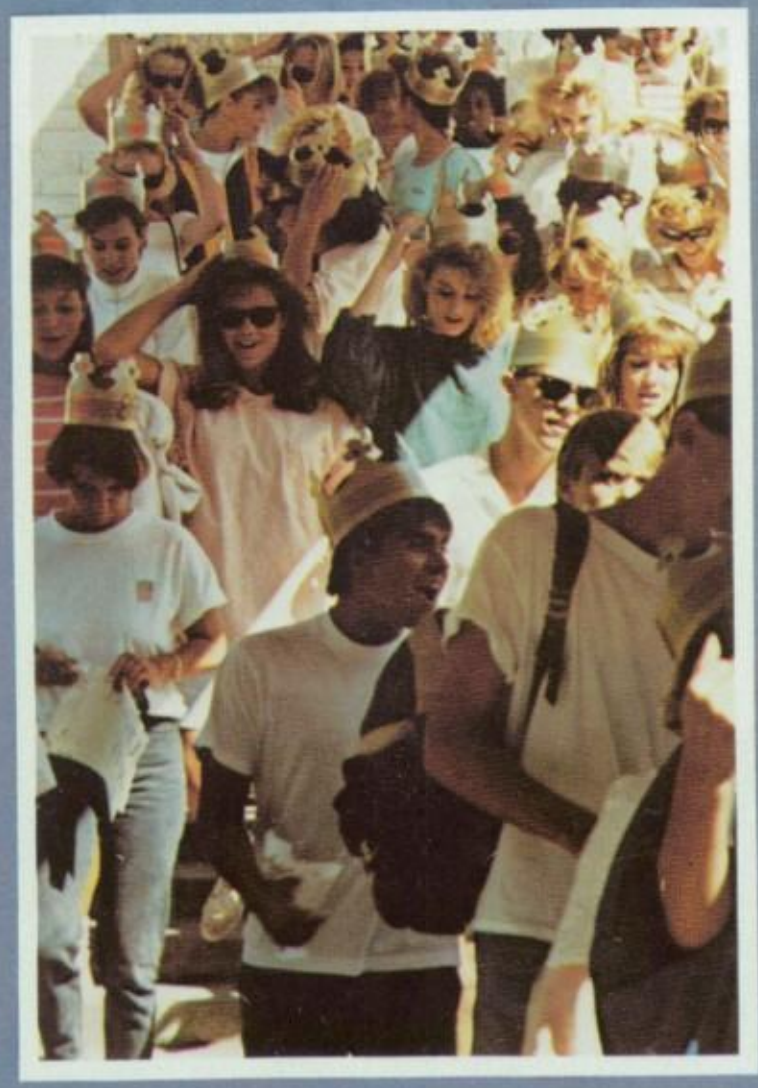


Carried away with the SPIRIT

"We feel good, oh we feel so good! Uh!" This was one of the many spirit arousing chants that could be heard booming out of the mouths of the many spirited and energetic Mustangs at rallies held throughout the school year. The rally is meant to be the main outlet for school spirit, and during the '87-'88 school year the students seemed to be undergoing a sudden upward surge of spirit and pride in their school. The class of 1988, which had not previously been noted for its spirit, suddenly came alive. They trotted away with the spirit stick on a number of occasions with the class of '89 not far behind.

Spirit was not only evident at the rallies. Small traces could be spotted almost everywhere. Students sported orange and black attire on game days and the halls were decorated with posters and banners for the various activities organized by the classes.

Students seemed to attend school activities with a general sense of pride in their own classes that hadn't been there in previous years. School spirit is yet another example of how the students at Foothill have managed to GET IT TOGETHER.



Don't be late: The junior class hurries to the rally.

Oh yeah!: Steve Grewell and Bill Wickham add extra support to their class.

FRIENDS

Everyone needs friends, and the friendships acquired in high school are some of the best that a person will ever have.

Getting hungry: Craig Green and Eddie Vann are palling around on their way to lunch.

Friends forever: Karole Gresham, Jessica Wharton, Tina Fink, Kelly Grijalva, Rosanna Ramirez, Sharmaine McClain, Tashia Martinez and Megan McGuire meet between classes to discuss the latest gossip.

WHITESNAKE

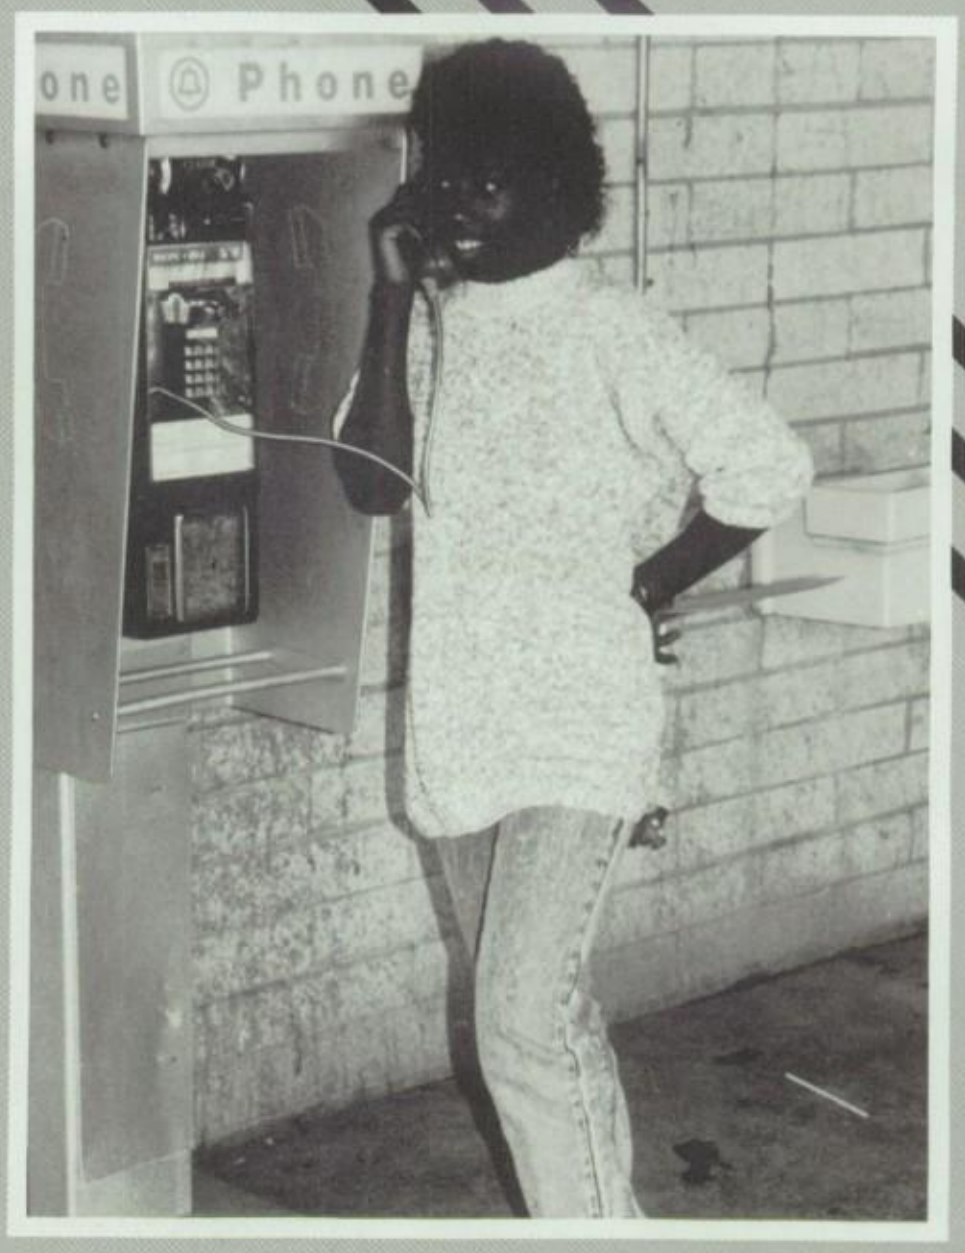
That's LIFE

Though the average Foothill student may not spend their summers on the French Riviera or feast on cavier on a regular basis, the lifestyles of Foothill students can be quite interesting.

On campus, one normally gets a feeling of rushing, hustling and bustling while classes are in session. However, the atmosphere is much different during the lunch break. Students can be observed lounging on the lawns, chatting in the cafeteria, and socializing by the benches.

After school there is always the general look and feeling of relief at knowing that it's time to return to "home sweet home" after seven grueling hours of exercising the brain.

So here's to those champagne wishes and caviar dreams . . . Who knows, — maybe one day they will come true.



Backpacks are in: Tara Holmes, Jennifer Ausmus, Carrie Emerson, Stacy Johnson, Rachel Roberson and Ting Roberts have all their materials for class. Kicking back: Richard Torres, David McDonald, Sammy Corbit, Will Benson, and Tony Riney wait for the bell to dismiss them from their wood sculpture class. What studs: Aron Hunt, Bill Rankin, and Chris Hinkle sport their cool attitudes with shades. Tuning up and tuning in: Ian McBay and John Goetsch listen in amazement to Jason Wharton's "rippin-' "guitar riff. Long distance romance: Kim Pierce is happy to talk to her boyfriend no matter where he is. What's up?: Dwayne Owens and Simone Santos are surprised by an Equi photographer. Mustang Parade: Students flood the halls and sidewalks between periods.

ACTIVITIES

Spirit Intensifies

The Mighty Mustangs finally get it together!

Enthusiasm, excitement, and fun are all words that perfectly describe Spirit Week '87. Each class, seniors and underclassmen alike, strived for unity in order to capture the all important spirit stick.

More students than ever before dressed for the occasion, whether it was military wear on Armed Forces Day or the athletic uniforms of Sports Day.

Large crowds turned out for the exciting lunchtime activities. It seemed no one could resist the temptation of watching a good old-fashioned pie-eating contest. There were also many wildly cheering fans at the baby bottle guzzling contest.

The grand finale of Spirit Week was the much anticipated Homecoming rally. Huge crowds went pouring in as the gym doors opened. Some sported boxer shorts, some wore mask, and others dressed up in togas. The competition was intense, and the race for the spirit stick was a close one. In the end, it was the junior class of 1989 that came out on top.

However, it was a good time for all classes to get together and show the new pride and spirit of Foothill!

"It was an . . . experience!"
— Angie Byer.

"This school's got a lot of spirit. It's live!"
— Cornellius Marsh.

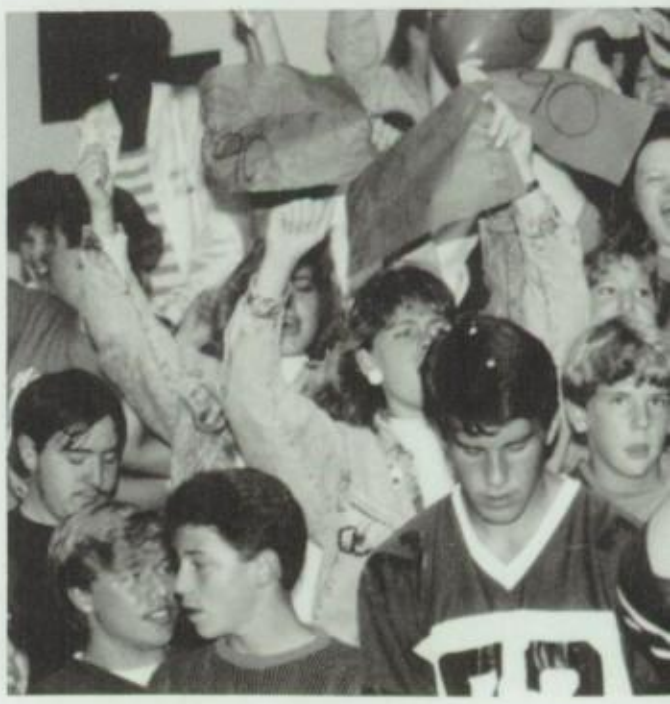
Ten-shun!: Melody Perkins, Carrie Emerson, and Stacey Johnson sport their garb for Armed Forces Day.

Dig in!: Aron Scott shows no inhibitions as he violently inhales his pie, with Joe Peck behind him 100% of the way.

Surfs up, Dude!: Gretchen Lowell and Tricia Barnes pose on their way to the beach.

Along for the ride: Angie McCollough speeds down the hill, with Robert Chen loading her down.

Startling spirit!: Sophomores show their impressive school pride as they cheer at the rally.



Whole lotta spirit goin' on: Juniors display their excitement, and are well on their way to winning the spirit stick.

Senior spectacular!: The mighty class of 1988 radiates spirit.

More?: Renee Van Antwerp aids Reggie Donaldson in consuming his bottle of Coke.

We should've won!: Charlena Richardson and fellow freshmen leave their first homecoming rally.

And the winner is: Hostesses Maggie Flack and Jodi Mehl expertly introduce the next performers.

Top forty stylist: Carla Nemeth sings beautifully to a receptive audience.

May I take your coat, Sir?: Christa McCollough displays elegance in removing Dave Krueger's jacket.

Charming the crowd: Michelle Lee pours her heart out in song to an attentive crowd.

Fashions Fun and Talent

Promenading: Queen Stephanie Daw and escort Will Benson promenade across the gymnasium.

Toeing the line: Junior Princess Tasha Martinez and escort Joel Hilbert appear to be the perfect couple.

No autographs please: Larry Motley accepts thunderous applause after his performance.

Looking good!: Kelly Grijalva and her escort Alex Lazaro smile brightly at the crowd.

Stars in her eyes: Charlena Richardson flashes a brilliant smile as Tristan Rigasa escorts her to her chair.

What do you get when you combine talent, fashion, royalty, and crowds of student spectators? Why, Foothill's Homecoming Assembly of course! The hostesses, Maggie Flack and Jodi Mehl, kept entertainment flowing smoothly throughout the evening. Some performers included: Kim Clark, Larry Motley, "The Crew," Angie Robertson, and Carla Nemeth. All of these students displayed extraordinary talent.

For the first time, a fashion show was included in between the various acts. The guys sported tuxedos from "Gingiss Formal Wear" and girls dressed elegantly in formals from "Contempo Casuals." The junior models were: Bobby Chen, Melody Perkins, Jerome Saulsbury, Carrie Emmerson, Rendell Johnson, Angie McCollough, Eric Stowe and Anne Colby. Senior models were Joe Peck, Kim Williamson, Matt Colby, Shannon Lynch, Leonard Steward, Shadana Brown, David Krueger and Christa McCollough.

In addition to all of this, the Homecoming royalty was presented to the students for the first time.

"I was really impressed with the assembly, because it was well put together. The acts were great!" Liz Rogers.

"I loved the idea of the fashion show. It made the assembly much more interesting to watch." Steve Watson.

Seniors Prevail in Annual Rivalry

Tension had been mounting for weeks, and then the day finally arrived. The annual Powderpuff Classic was about to be contested between the juniors and the seniors. Each class was determined to prove that they were the best. The senior's goal was to show that they were not to be outdone by the underclassmen, while the juniors were trying to keep the seniors in line.

The first half of the game was a relentless battle for victory, but the tireless efforts of the upperclassmen proved to be fruitless; for the score was tied at the end of the first half.

The monotony was broken during the second half when Michelle Stefani gallantly bounded into the end zone to score six points for the seniors. The juniors retaliated by blocking the seniors' attempt at an extra point. Though the juniors gave it their best shot, the seniors emerged victorious with a final score of 6-0.

"The juniors were well prepared for the game, but tradition carried on." Kim Brushia

"We might have lost the game, but we won the rally." Tina Fink

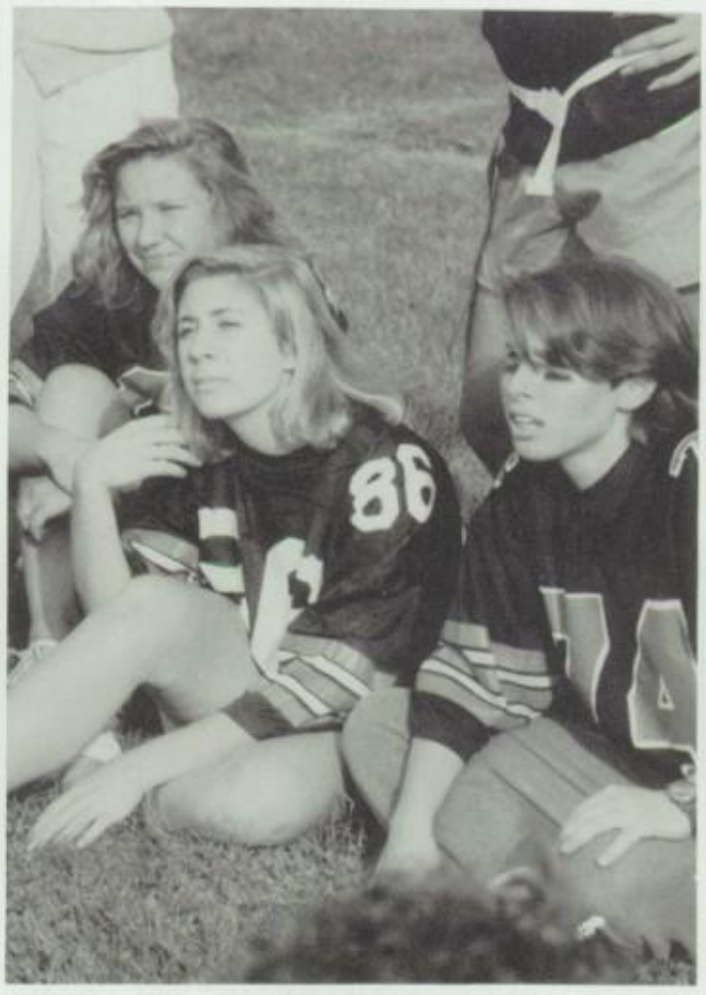
Bomb away?:
Her teammate open, Kim Williamson pulls back to throw a bomb downfield.

Mystifying the opposition:
Using fox-like cunning, Carol Alford gets free of Laura Gaea to make the catch for a first down.

Spreading the spirit:
JaJuan Hill rallies the seniors onward at a crucial moment during the game.

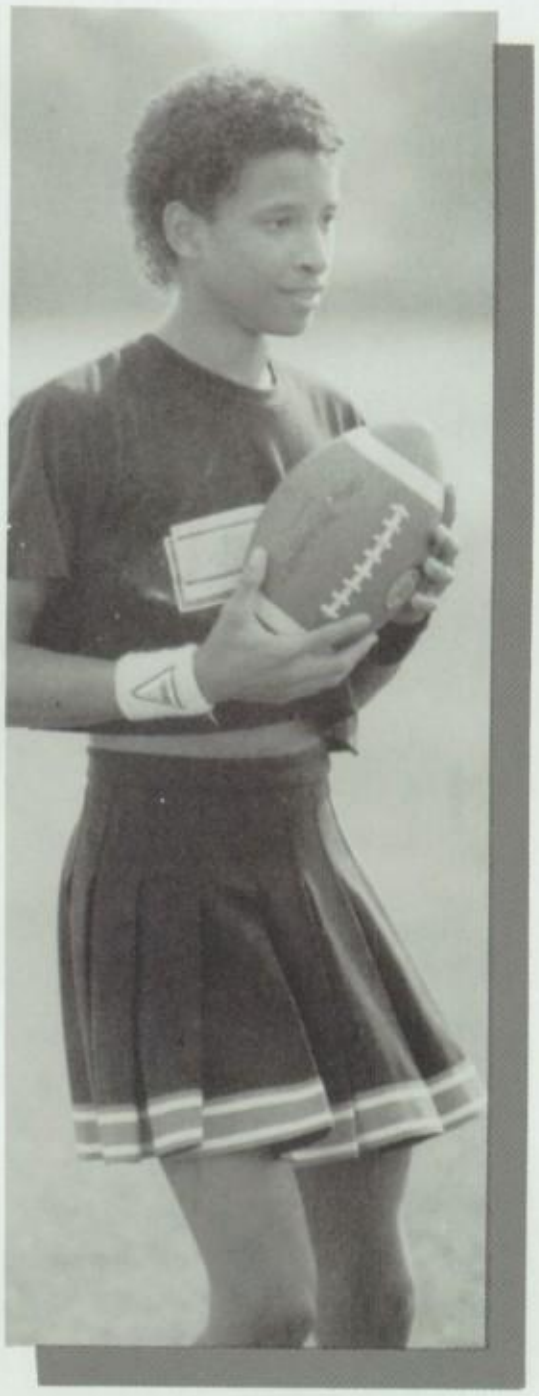
Go! Fight! Win!
The senior cheering section drowns out the cries of mayhem emanating the field.

Front row: A. Hartis, D. Costa, T. Reynolds, S. McClain, J. Mehl, M. Flack, D. Minor, V. Brown, A. James, R. Lawrence. Middle row: R. Johnson, M. Harlow, D. Quigley, L. Gaea, L. Parks, J. Burgess, Bottom row: F. Vann, T. Fink, M. McGuire, J. Wharton. Coaches: J. Trish, A. Hunt, J. Myers.



Getting the Message: Silke Walprecht, Christine Lang, and Nancy Hendricks listen to team strategy at half time.

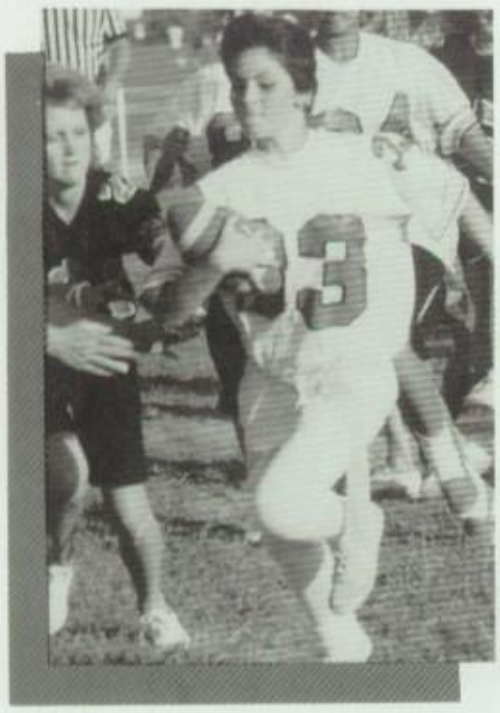
Front row: M. Stephani, K. Williamson, S. Daw, Middle row: J. Hill N. Hendricks, S. Walprecht, N. Taylor, T. Barnes, C. Lang. Back row: G. Vallas, T. Barnsey, K. Newell, D. Cruz, K. Brushia, J. Whitman, G. Lowell, C. Alford.



Give us a cheer, Larry! Larry Motley gets ready to place the game ball on the tee for the opening kickoff.

Long count:
The juniors and seniors take their positions, waiting for the snap.

Kris Nordin, Erica Butista, Shannon McClure, Antoinette Jackson, Fay Call, Rosie Rizardo, Sandy Henry, Shannon Ewing, Caryn Sanders, Jennifer Chase, Corey Bryant, Julie Bussard, Mae Opena, Corriene Weichec, Misty Flack, Beckie Mayer, Pearl Lankford, Angela Phillips, Kelly Grijalva, Dina Baser, Patricia McCook, Tony Lacy, and Renir Botha.



We gotcha! Sophomores Misty Flack and Julie Bussard make a tremendous effort to stop Sarah Khladide from scoring a touchdown.

Ugh!: Dissatisfied with a broken play the sophomores angrily walk off the field to have a team talk.

Out of my way!: Quarterback Kelly Grijalva throws a rainbow pass as Dina Baser is tackled by an over confident freshman.

Tower of Power: Brett Spaid, Jason Hall, Anthony Havrilla, Eddie Vann, and Richard Freeman show their sophomore spirit during halftime by performing the famous pyramid.

Watch out!: Freshman Tami Mullen dodges the sophomores for an end run.

Yippee!: After beating the sophomores 18-0, the freshmen excitedly pose for their victory picture.

Go baby, go!: Determined to score, Mae Opena races down the field advancing the ball 50 yards.

gela Edwards, Kim Newton, Traci Owens, Tami Millen, elby Hughes, Crissy Sutton, Traci Clark, Stacy Foster, rah Khalide, Trina Olivas, Veronica Small, Carrie Sanders, ris Jones.

Fearless Freshmen Beat Sassy Sophomores

Teams! Anger! Strategy! Underclassmen! All of these combined to make the freshmen vs. sophomore Powerpuff Football Game an event to remember. Over 100 students, teachers, and parents gathered to watch the battle of the century.

The game was to determine who was the most spirited between the two underclassmen teams. Freshman Stacy Foster received the opening kick and ran 50 yards for the first touchdown of the game. At the end of the first half, the freshmen were ahead 14-0.

To break the tension during halftime, sophomore coach Tony Lacy gave his discouraged team an invigorating pep talk. The newly determined sophomores played a hard game and gave the over confident freshmen a real scare. During the last quarter Mae Opena ran 50 yards after receiving a pass from Fay Call. A controversy was raised in the second half when several freshmen were discovered with their flags tied. Penalty yards were paced off in favor of the sophomores. The game ended late in the afternoon with the freshmen dominating the sophomores by a score of 18-0.

"We played a good game, but our team wasn't well organized." Rosie Rizzardo

"We had good team runners and fast players." Sarah Khalide

Raindrops Keep Falling on Our Heads

Spirit Not Drenched by Downpour

Rain may have dampened the air, but definitely not the spirits of Foothill students during Homecoming week. The committee for the Homecoming activities chose the theme "Spirit of America" for the float competition. Although the competition was stiff, the class of '88 took first place with their "Spaceship Challenger." The float was dedicated to the members of the Challenger crew who died when their spacecraft exploded. The juniors' entry was entitled the "Washington Monument," the sophomores did a construction of the "Liberty Bell,' and the freshmen submitted a replica of "Uncle Sam."

On the night of the game, the J.V. squad powered its way past the powerful Rio Americano team with a score of 13-0, but the varsity game proved to be a disappointment. In the mud, grime, and cold, the Mustangs were unable to score, which resulted in their loss to the Rio Raiders with a score of 14-0. Although it was frustrating for the team to lose, the Varsity team gave it their best shot and deserved the support of their fans.

"The bad weather made it difficult to play, I think the rain took us out of our game plan."
— David McDonald —

"I think all the floats were well done considering the difficulty of the theme."
— Stephanie Edwards —

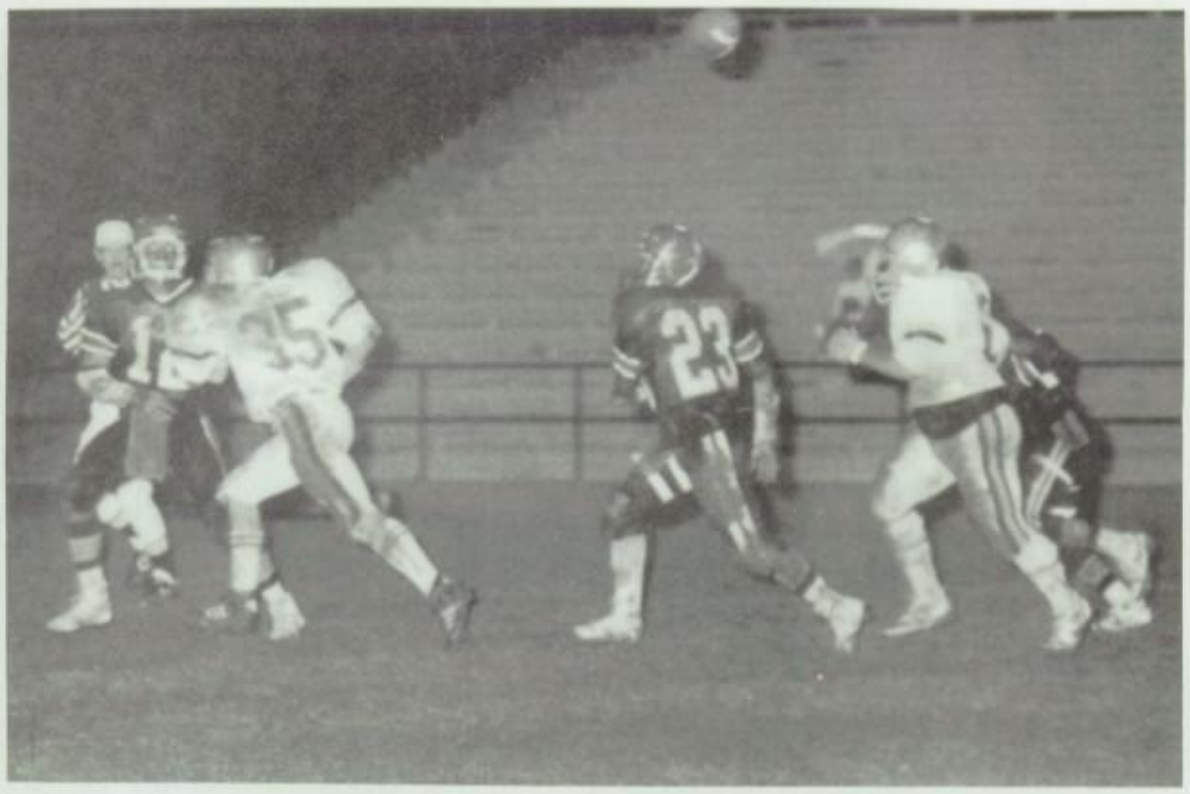
Undercover: The senior float is protected from the elements.

Valid attempt: The freshman float enters the stadium for a trip around the track.

The wet look is in: The spirited crowd was wet and wild at the Homecoming game.

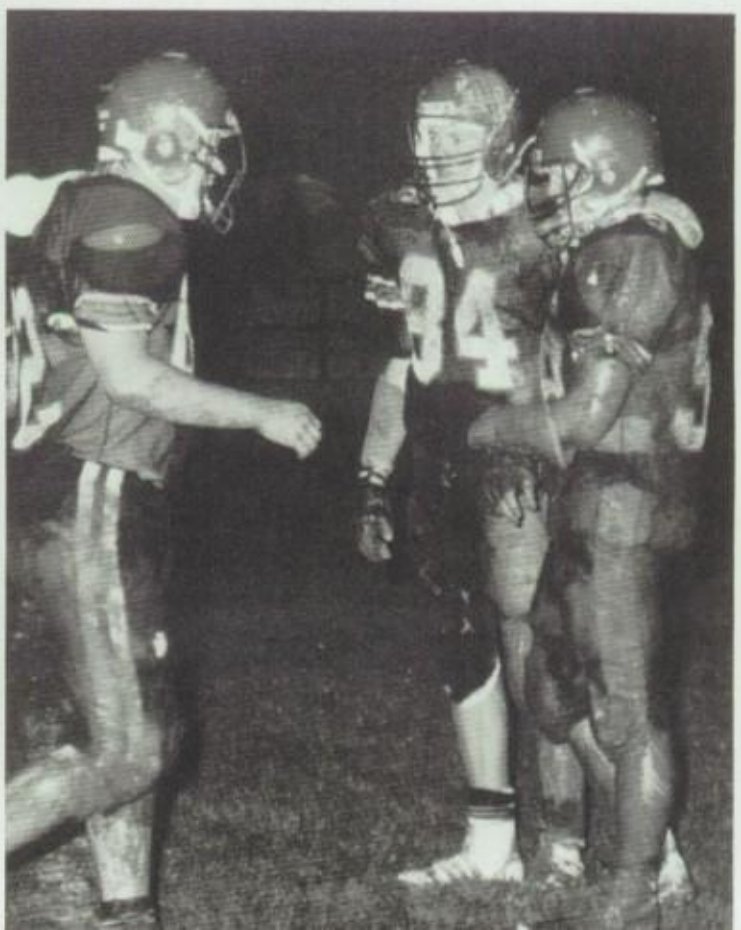
Ring in the new: The sophomores show off their well designed float.

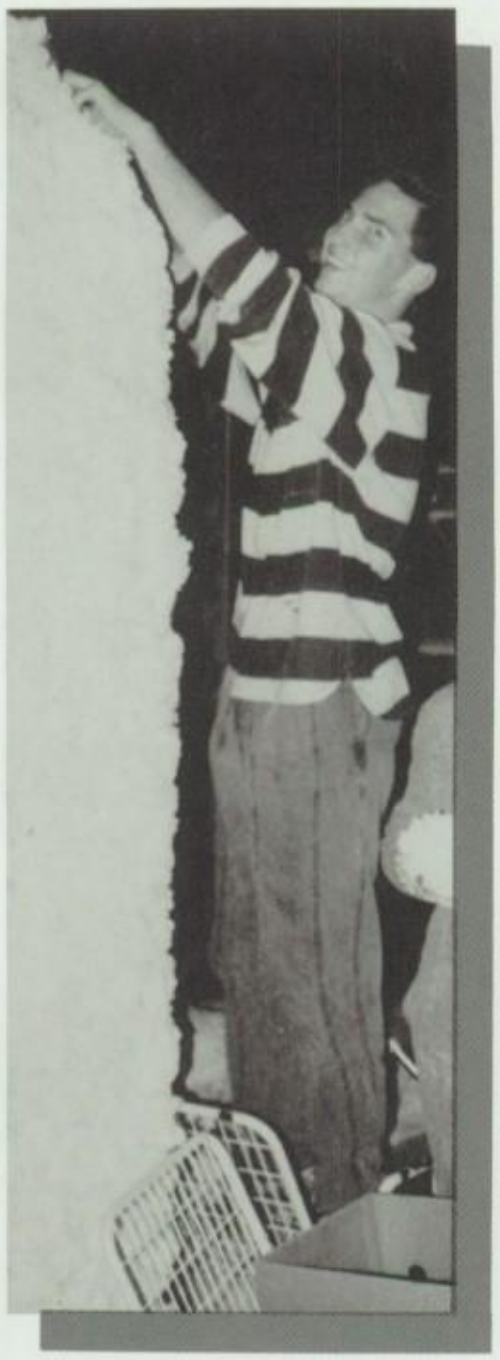
Hang in there: The spirit leaders drum up a little enthusiasm from the crowd.



Bombs away: The Mustang offensive unit attempts a pass during the third quarter.

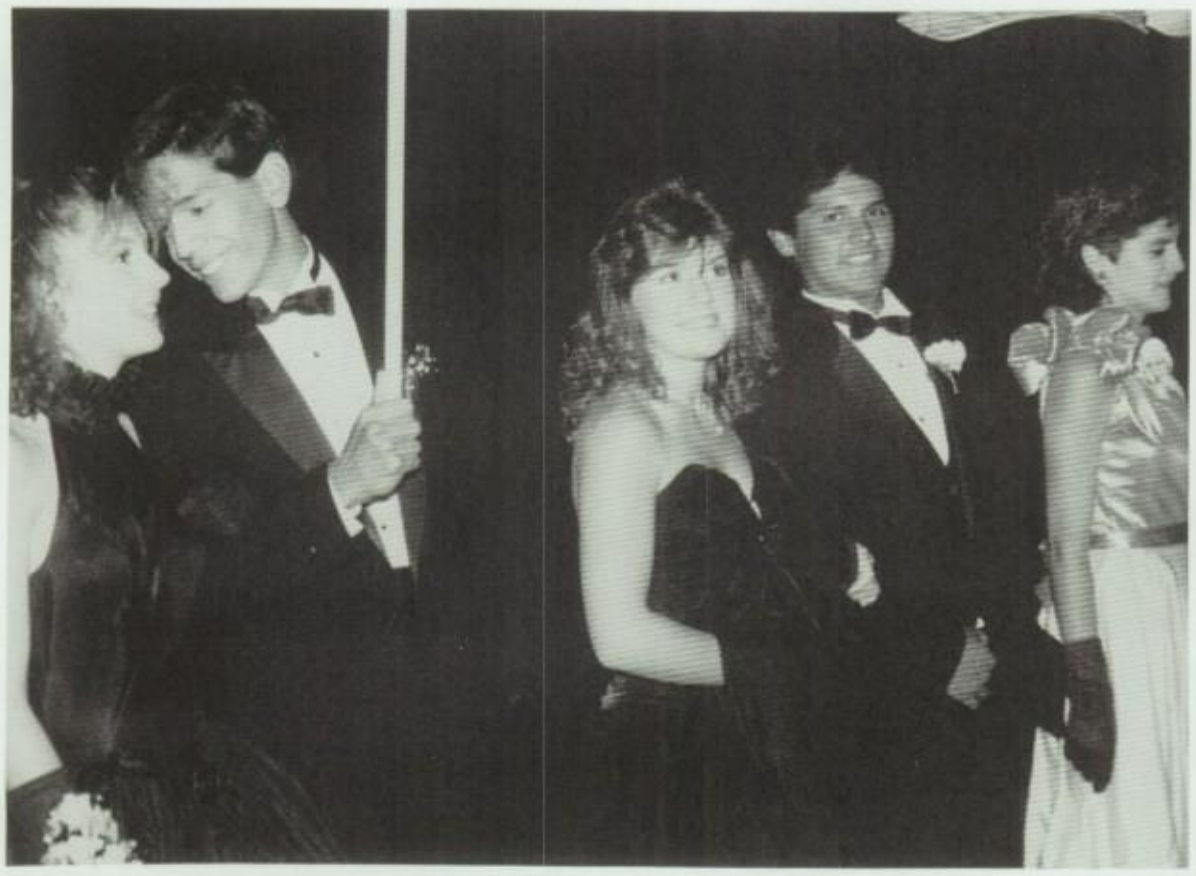
Smile kids: The Homecoming Royalty battles through the rough weather.





Get it right: James Irish puts the last flower on the junior float.

Shout it out: Brett McBay, Jim Jaggers, Andrew Pebbley get down and dirty at the homecoming.



Royal moments: Joe Ramirez whispers to Kelly Moore as Cadie Hall and Tommy Torres wait for the homecoming queen to be announced.

Hi, Mom!: Stephanie Daw and Joe Peck scan the crowd for family and friends.

Gee thanks!: Kelly Grijalva receives a congratulation from Mr. Parks.

Can I keep them?: Stephanie Daw beams radiantly as she admires her roses.

Ah, is it over?: Shawn Killingsworth and Duane Lewis show us some fancy moves.

Wake up Angie, the song if over: Dan Fowler and Angie Moore drift away during a slow dance.

Where are my shoes?: Scott Reed, Jessica Wharton, Sammy Corbit, Todd Roe, and Mark Dixon cool off outside the dance.

They're playing our song: couples sway to the rhythm of a slow song.

All dressed up and somewhere to go: The homecoming line-up eagerly awaits their crowning.

Dance and Royalty Dazzles All

"Mom, does my hair look okay?" "Did you wash my nylons?" These were some of the things students could be heard saying as they prepared for the homecoming dance on Friday, October 23. Once ready, the students GOT TOGETHER with their dates or friends and headed for the cafeteria at FHS, where the dance was taking place.

The fun began as students arrived. Despite the rainy weather, the turnout was surprisingly large. The dance floor sparkled with students sporting attire arranging from semi-formal all the way to floor-length dresses and tuxedos, as all in attendance danced the night away to the latest hits. In keeping with the theme, "The Spirit of America," red, white, and blue streamers were draped from the ceiling.

In the middle of the dance, the crowd gathered to observe the crowning of the royalty:

Queen Stephanie Daw and escort Joe Peck
Senior Princess Cadie Hall and escort Tommy Torres
Senior Princess Kelly Moore and escort Joe Ramirez
Junior Princess Tasha Martinez and escort Joel Hilbert
Sophomore Princess Kelly Grijalva and escort J.J. Brown
Freshman Princess Charlena Richardson and escort Tristom Ragasa.

Overall, the dance was a huge success.

"It was bunk!" Eric Maldonado

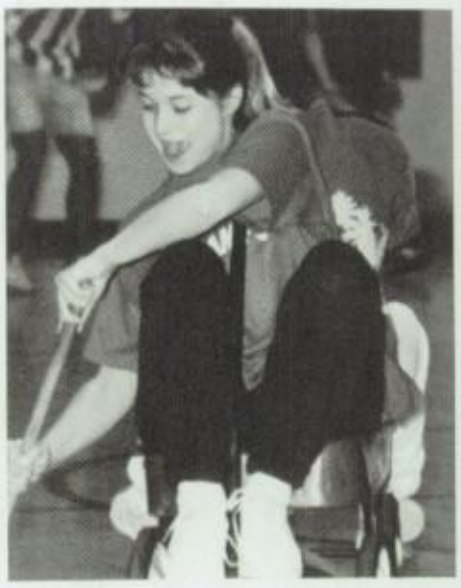
"The dance was cool." John Goetsch.

High Rising Spirit

Starting on February 15, lunch time activities and dress up days began. Lunch time activities such as the "Licorice Game" were held during the last ten minutes of each lunch. Many students participated in the games with much enthusiasm.

The Inti Rami night assembly was as much fun as its theme: "Battle of the Sexes." One can just imagine what kind of things went on at this assembly. Some of the games were: The Wagon Plunge, The String Relay, and The Egg Relay. The girls emerged victorious in the "Battle of the Sexes."

Arm and arm: Christina Butner escorts Greg Shelton to his seat.



Help!: Natile Taylor has a little trouble with her plunger.

No cheating!: Jason Wharton and Bobby Chen, his teammate, try to get along.

Go!: The guys help their fellow teammates get off to a good start.

Anxious: Students await the Inti Rami lunch time activities.

"Well if it wasn't for that black Honda Prelude across the street "bump'n" his bass everyday, I would have participated in it." — Robert Neves

"I guess it was rad, being a Senior and all. Hi mom!" — Deandra Dibene Sitting pretty: The 1988 Inti rami royalty watch the Battle of the Sexes.

Hop!: Terrall Robinson jumps as fast as she can to the next participant.

Cool: Shawn Ford poses for the camera on Gangster Day. •

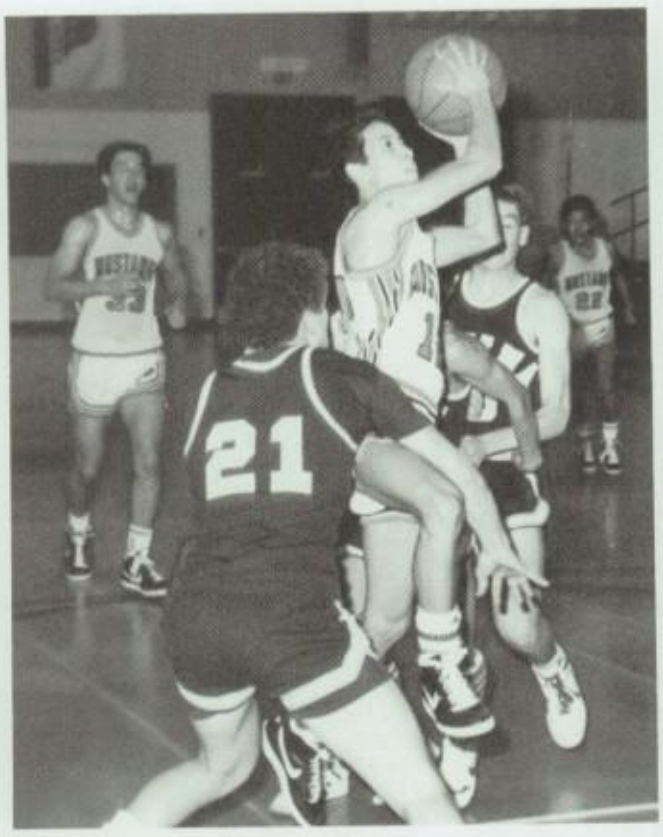
Play it Heidi: Heidi Ireland struts her stuff for the song leaders.

What a crowd: The freshmen try to muster up spirit for the rally.



Shoot the Hoop: Andrew Pham eludes two opposing team members in order to shoot for a basket.

Is this it?: The sophomores, despite a low turnout, display their spirit.

It's all about the Seniors: The Seniors erupt with enthusiasm during the rally.

Clap those hands: The senior class chants along with the spirit leaders.

Roses, for me?: Daryl Ganas and Ryan Streeper receive roses as a thanks for their participation in varsity basketball.

Who died?: As part of their plan, the Seniors enter the gym carrying a coffin.

Spirit Week

Mustangs, Ooh! Ah!

It's all about the Mustangs, ooh! aah! The spirit filled Inti-Rami week came to a climactic end with a rally held after school on Friday, February 19th. The traditional class competition resulted in the spirit stick being captured by the class of 1988. The seniors diverted from the common "grand entrance", and instead entered the gym subdued and dressed in black with a coffin and a banner that read, "The Future of Foothill High without the Class of 1988." Once in their section, the Seniors overflowed with energy, and an infectious electricity spread throughout the crowd.

An innovative routine performed by the song leaders made for enjoyable entertainment and a high level of excitement for the entire rally.

The varsity basketball game against Encina, which was scheduled for Friday night, was unfortunately cancelled by Encina's players. This cancellation was a statement made by the players on behalf of their coach, who had been fired.

The absence of a basketball game, although a disappointment, could not bring down the high spirits of Foothill's Inti-Rami week.

Oh, be still my heart: The spirit leaders mock infatuation with Heidi, the "man".

Black and White Night

On the nineteenth of February, at eight-thirty p.m., the doors opened to the twenty-second annual Inti Rami dance. The theme for the evening was "A Night in New York."

The ladies did not rule over this dance. Now the men of each class reign in the Kings court.

Later in the evening the red carpet was rolled out and bright lights shone upon the Inti Rami royalty, which consisted of: Freshman prince Tristan Ragasa, Sophomore prince Bret Spaid, Junior prince Shawn Falkner, Senior prince Greg Shelton, Senior prince Ryan Streeper, and the 1988 Inti Rami King was Joe Peck.

"The dance was hot! There was so much excitement and enthusiasm there — everyone could feel it." — Christina Butner

Patient: Greg Shelton and Christina Butner await the Inti Rami royalty awards.

Get down!: Some over excited students dance wildly to the music.

Look: Bret Spaid shows his date his royalty award.

Here we are: The 1988 Inti Rami Royalty and their dates.

Royalty: Bret Spaid, Ryan Streeper, Joe Peck, Greg Shelton, and Tristan Ragasa.

Wow!: After being presented with an award, Tristan Ragasa and his date smile.

Hi!: Joe Peck tells his date a quick joke.

Smiles: Ryan Streeper and Christa McCollough get ready to dance.

Magical Masquerade

On Saturday March 5th, the Eastern Star Temple was host to the 1988 Junior Prom. This extravagant gala was a huge success due to the diligent efforts of many dedicated juniors. The prom commenced at nine o'clock and most of the lavishly adorned couples danced until midnight. The Royal Court was announced at ten forty-five. It consisted of: Diana Alvarado, Suanne Buggy, Heather Carlson, Anne Colby, Tasha Martinez, Leslie Shaw, Brian Buick, Robert Chen, Danny Holt, Jerome Salsbury, Eric Stowe, and Rendell Johnson. The Prom Queen was Tasha Martinez and the King was Brian Buick. The Queen and Princesses received flowers and tiaras while the King and the Princes were presented with golden scepters. After the coronation, all the couples moved to the dance floor to enjoy Berlin's Masquerade. The night was, indeed, pure magic.

"I've always looked forward to the prom and it turned out even better than I expected." Angeline Nichols

"I laughed, I cried, it became a part of me." Jeff Jacobson

The King and Queen: Tasha Martinez and Brian Buick pose for the camera.

Rock steady: Juniors have fun dancing at the prom.

Spiral Companionway: Couples line up to have their pictures taken by Kee Coleman.

Howdy: James Irish and his date ascend the stairwell.

Royalty: Jerome Salsbury, Diana Alvarado, Anne Colby, Eric Stowe, Suanne Buggy, Robert Chen, Heather Carlson, Danny Holt, Leslie Shaw, Brian Buick, Tasha Martinez, and Rendell Johnson.

Step right up: Junior couples wait to receive their bids before heading up the six flights of stairs.

Don't judge a book by its cover: The prom theme Masquerade said it all. Sonya & Dave Hitting a high note: Cora Hullum "lives for your love".

Gala event: The congenial crowd enjoys the lavish decorations.

Winning With Spirit

Through blazing sun and freezing rain, the dedicated spirit leaders of FHS always had it together. Putting hours of free time and hard work into their routines, it was clear to see that the 1987-'88 Spirit Squads were composed of skilled and dedicated members. After attending a camp at Stanford during summer vacation, they returned with even more enthusiasm this year. "ALL the squads won spirit awards. It was fun!" head cheerleader, Deanna Cruz was quick to point out.

Exactly how much time these talented spirit leaders put into their routines can not be accurately determined. Before it could be performed, each routine and cheer had to be carefully choreographed, practiced, and synchronized. Thanks to the dedication of these groups Foothill's spirit was better than ever!

What if . . . ?: Shannon Lynch gets ready to voice an opinion..

The student council representatives were in charge of planning class activities and promoting class involvement. This year's senior representatives' major accomplishment was the Christmas Dance, sponsored by the class and held in the small gym. This was the first time a school dance was ever held in the gym and the seniors were hoping to set the precedent for future dances.

The representatives were also responsible for the planning of the senior breakfast, the senior trip, and the graduation ceremony and grad-nite activities. They worked hard to make their last year the best.

Senior representatives: Brett McBay, Joe Peck, Matt Colby, Shannon Lynch, Anthony Bamsey.

Junior Reps

This year's Junior Representatives — Maggie Flack, Tara Holmes, Rendell Johnson, Jodi Mehl, Angela McCollough, and Mark Saldivar — had a busy and productive year. Together, they worked to raise funds for the prom. They were responsible for the organization and coordination of this elegant event. Due to their efforts, the junior class was able to secure a homecoming rally victory as well as the spirit stick. All in all, the class of '89 had an outstanding year, thanks to the diligent work of these students.

Sophomore Student Council

The Sophomore Student Council had a very busy year. They organized many fundraising activities, one being a giant Christmas bake sale during which the class produced more money than any bake sale in the past. The student council commented that the sophomore spirit increased tremendously and they expect to see it grow even more next year. Thanks to the creativeness of the class representatives the sophomores had a productive year.

Freshmen . . . New In Town

The dedicated freshman student council worked hard to give the class of 1991 a well-respected name. Although one of the biggest obstacles was getting their class to the rallies, they hung in there and put up a good fight. For their class, they put fundraisers together throughout the year which proved to be quite profitable. These born leaders gave the word "freshman" new respect.

Say what?: Kim Newton and Trina Olivas listen carefully to a senior's advice.

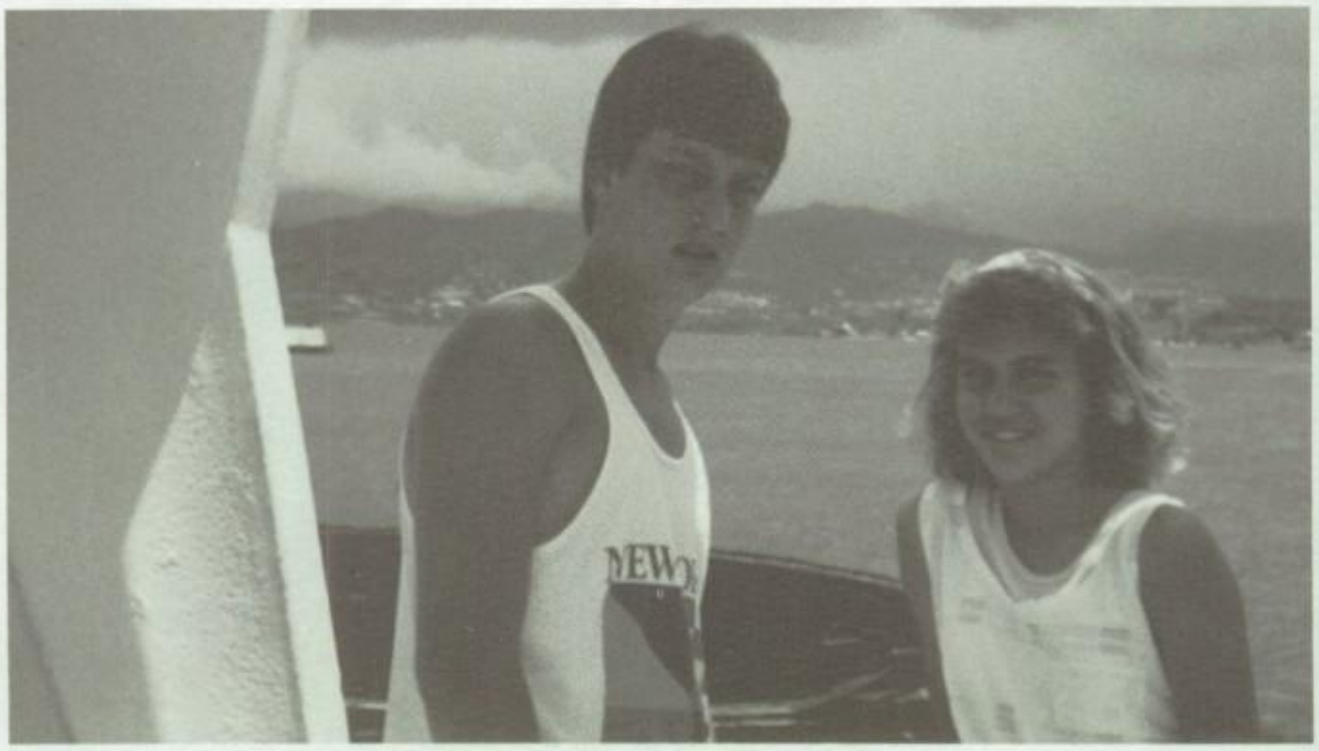
Smile!: Carrie Emerson, Heidi Ireland, Bobbie Petree, Gina Swankie, Karen Nanguyan, and Diane Alvarado show summer spirit at the NCA Cada-Spirit Camp at Stanford.

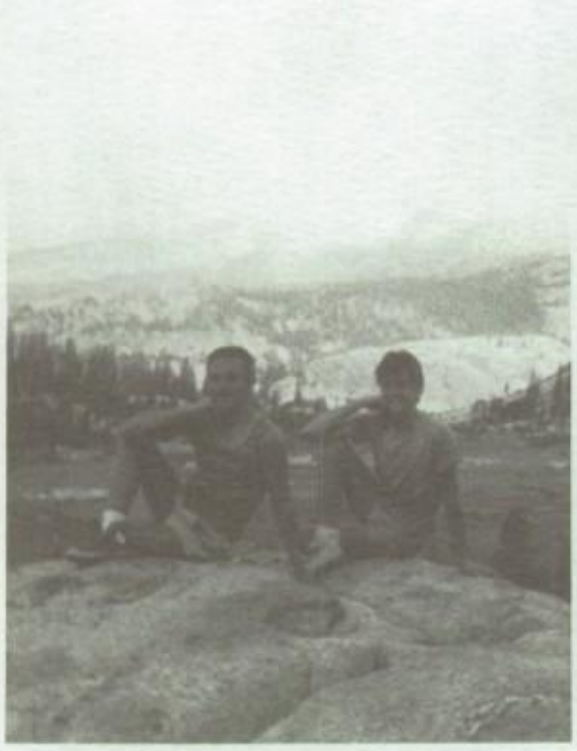
Schools Out, Fun's In

As soon as the last school bell rings in June, students head for beaches, parties and far away places. During the summer of 1987 many foothill students took exciting vacations with family and friends. From the warm Hawaiian waters to the rugged mountain peaks of Yosemite, classmates enjoyed fishing trips, hiking expeditions, snorkeling, and a variety of summer activities.



Aloha!: Eric Vernon and Rosie Rizzardo enjoyed one week in Hawaii. Snorkeling, sightseeing, and Pearl Harbor were just a few sights that were memorable.

Jackpot: Sheri Bosworth a friend Kim Gillett had a time in Reno.



Huff and puff: Robert Seammons and Kal Hone had a great time on a hiking expedition in Yosemite.

We caught a big one: Tony and Ed Mazza caught their first Marlin shark in Palmas De Cortez, Mexico.

Sun Goddesses: Anne Colby, Carrie Em Stacy Johnson and Melody Perkins ha catching rays this summer.

It's A Living

Many Foothill students devoted much of their free time after school and weekend jobs. Besides the never ending desire to have extra money, students also need money to buy cars, pay for insurance, and keep those special guys and girls happy. Some students did not wish to work, but were forced by parents. Young adults may get jobs at such places as grocery stores, gas stations, florists, pizza parlors, and fast food restaurants. After school jobs are for most students a stepping stone to the real world.

Will this be all?: Joe Peck and Alex Ortega are anxious to please their loyal Penguin customers.

Filler up!: George Kellison smiles proudly while waiting on a customer at the Arco Gas Station.

What will it be?: Wil Benson waits patiently for his next customer at Shakey's Pizza's beverage counter.

This one's best!: Ondria Small waits on a customer at Copeland Sports.

Repeat that!: Tara Zelinsky works for her Mom at Primpters of California, taking messages and bookings.

Smells Great!: Dwayne Owens and Keith Morrison enjoy working at Round Table, serving piping hot pizzas.

Speak up?: Mark Dixon takes orders on the telephone at Taco Bell.

How's that?: Dawn Steege proudly wraps a red rose for that special somebody.

JOBS

E=mc²: Angie Nichols and Jayme Megahan ponder scientific theories.

GIRLS AND GUYS

Study habits . . .

The study habits of the students of Foothill vary from person-to-person rather than from girls to guys. Some of the more studious people spend their lunches in the library doing homework and studying for tests. Others wait until the day the work is due and then copy someone else's or do it the period before. Several students seem to have very exotic methods, such as putting a toothpick between their teeth and chewing on tin foil, while listening to loud music. However, no matter how they study, most students manage to "get it together," at least enough to graduate.

Cheese: Scott Chapman, Dan Borgeson, Tina Brown, Jeff Jacobson, Carrie Emerson, and Charley Ku clown around at Sunrise Mall.

Hangouts . . .

Where does one go to find the girls and guys of school? Well, the guys can be found "hanging ou various places. Some can be found out at Scandia establishment with miniature golf and an arcade. er guys like to hang out in front of Circle K, a small mart. A very popular hangout is at one's girlfrie house.

Girls, on the other hand, tend to find more "origi places to pass the time. A couple girls have ventu down-town to the artsy Java City. Others can found at the movies, or possibly the mall.

Sneak Previews: Tricia Barnes, Natalie Taylor, and Gretchen L catch a flick at the Cinedomes.

hall: Jeff Jacobson is astonished at the price of Carrie Emerson's arment.

t face: Suanne Buggy and Carrie Emerson look for that perfect ade of lipstick.

Shopping . . .

Probably the biggest contrast between girls and guys is their shopping rituals. Many guys send their mothers to buy their clothes for them. If a guy happens to actually purchase his own clothes, he'll know exactly what he wants and where to find it before he even steps outside.

Girls, on the other hand, live to shop. For girls, spare time and money is a bad combination. Girls flock in droves to shopping malls and specialty shops. Some even take frequent trips to the fashion center of northern California, San Francisco. There, one can shop at all the warehouses, factories, and distribution centers.

Although shopping is mainly a girl's favorite past time, most of the students here "have it together," fashionwise.

Oh! Generra: Jennifer Nisterchuk and Vanessa Brown shop for the latest fashions.

Dining . . .

When one asks the girls and guys of Foothill High the estion. "Where do you like to eat on a date or with ends?", one can get a vast range of answers. Many l automatically answer with a quick reply like Taco ll or McDonald's, or the K-Mart restaurant, where e can grab a quick hamburger and soft drink. Oth-s, after a little more thought, might reply Togo's Sub-ay, or Pizza Arena. These types of restaurants serve ndwiches and pizza. Lastly, there are those students o have more refined tastes that flock to the ever-opular 50's Café.

You deserve a break today: Dan Borgeson and Tina Brown grab a coke at McDonald's.

THEN AND NOW

Thinking back on the long stretch of years through which we have already survived, there were many events and fads that proved to be quite memorable. Who will ever forget his elementary school and Jr. High School days? Although these years have long since passed, one can remember them as though it were just yesterday. Do you remember . . .

when you said . . . TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME — and meant the Little League park? Playing for a Little League team was definitely BIG TIME. The most home runs, the best team, those were the concerns of those days!

. . . when RAINBOWS & BIRTHDAY PARTIES — oh what fun! The latest gossip was always more fun to hear with a roomful of friends! Slumber parties were a favorite. Rainbows and unicorns were a must for decor. Ah, the simple pleasures of life!

. . . when HEADBANDS were the styles as were feather barrettes, Jordache jeans, Izod shirts and Nike tennis shoes! Where have all those "must have's" of the past gone?

. . . when STICKER BOOKS were a necessity of life? Rainbow stickers, Pac Man, Valley Girl, satin-n-shine stickers, anything that stuck! Stickers were all the rage when we were about ten or twelve years of age.

Trade-ya!: Anne Colby looks longingly to Scott Haselwood, hoping to obtain the prized E.T. sticker.

Leather galore: Stylish people of '88 show the versatile and sheik look of leather.

Going onto bigger and better things we finally made it to high school. Suddenly our values completely changed. No longer were stickers and rainbows all important.

Fashion and style have become a major part of our lives. As high school sports which can lead to scholarships for college. The focus has changed from our toys to our future.

Baby!: Stacy Robinson and Tina

Just kickin it: K. Cottlen, C. Marsh, M. Murray, S. Henry, C. McCoy sport the popular Starter Jacket and Troop.

LEATHER — THE CLASSIC ALL BLACK LOOK IS ONE THAT WILL probably never go out of style.

GUESS? Jeans and Ray Bans are always fun. Both come in a variety of styles and colors and can be worn by both guys and girls.

Now we know how the big boys play. A big step up from Little League is high school sports. Sports can lead to scholarships for talented athletes. A lot of time is devoted to making our teams ones that Foothill can be proud of.

Starter Jackets & TROOP are "in" in '88. The starter jackets display the favorite team of the owner, and troop is a fashion statement with flair.

Finally we're on to our futures. The graduation of our seniors is just around the corner. We know that, just as our views have changed since elementary school, they will continue to change. Like they say, "Things can only get better!"

histication: Megan McGuire, Sharmaine McClaine, Anna Pozdyn, ie Nichols, and Sheri Reed show the classy look of basic black.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Hi guys!: Pihla Meskanen gets acquainted with her new found American friends.

Foothill had three foreign exchange students this year. All three came prepared to try new things and solve new problems in order to have a happy year in America.

Silke Walprecht visited the United States from Germany. She was quite active in such school clubs as CSF and German Club. She also competed on the swim team. Silke said that although America was very different from Germany, she never experienced any real homesickness.

Pihla Meskanen came here from Finland for a year. She had an enjoyable time in America, thanks to her friends and host family. Pihla was a member of the German club and she also took the required courses so she could graduate with the class of 1988, here in America. Pihla had a successful year in the United States and will miss her host family and American friends when she goes home.

Residing here temporarily was Lisbeth Larsen from Denmark. Lisbeth spent a rigorous season playing soccer on the Varsity team. Lisbeth commented that she had no fears upon arriving in the United States and that everything turned out as she had expected it to.

Friends forever: Silke Walprecht has become good friends with Brittne Eickmann during her st America.

Let's relax: Tina Walters, Christina Butner, and Pihla Meskanen are glad to be on a lunch bre

Mr. John Parks, the newly appointed principal, came to Foothill from Highlands only last year as our new Vice-principal. This year he became principal after Mrs. Steeg's untimely demise. Since he took office, Foothill's code of conduct has been strongly enforced and the campus has been cleaner. Mr. Parks has been a driving force behind Foothill "getting it together".

Looking out from the inside: The new gates were a major contr sy on Foothill's campus.

Gates . . .

Foothill's students were in quite an uproar concerning the new gates installed over summer vacation. Many students felt that our school was becoming a prison. Few even went so far as to name the school "Foothill prison".

Actually, the gates were not put up to keep people in, but to keep unauthorized visitors out. It also lent aid in protecting students and faculty cars from theft. So, don't despair when you pass through those golden gates.

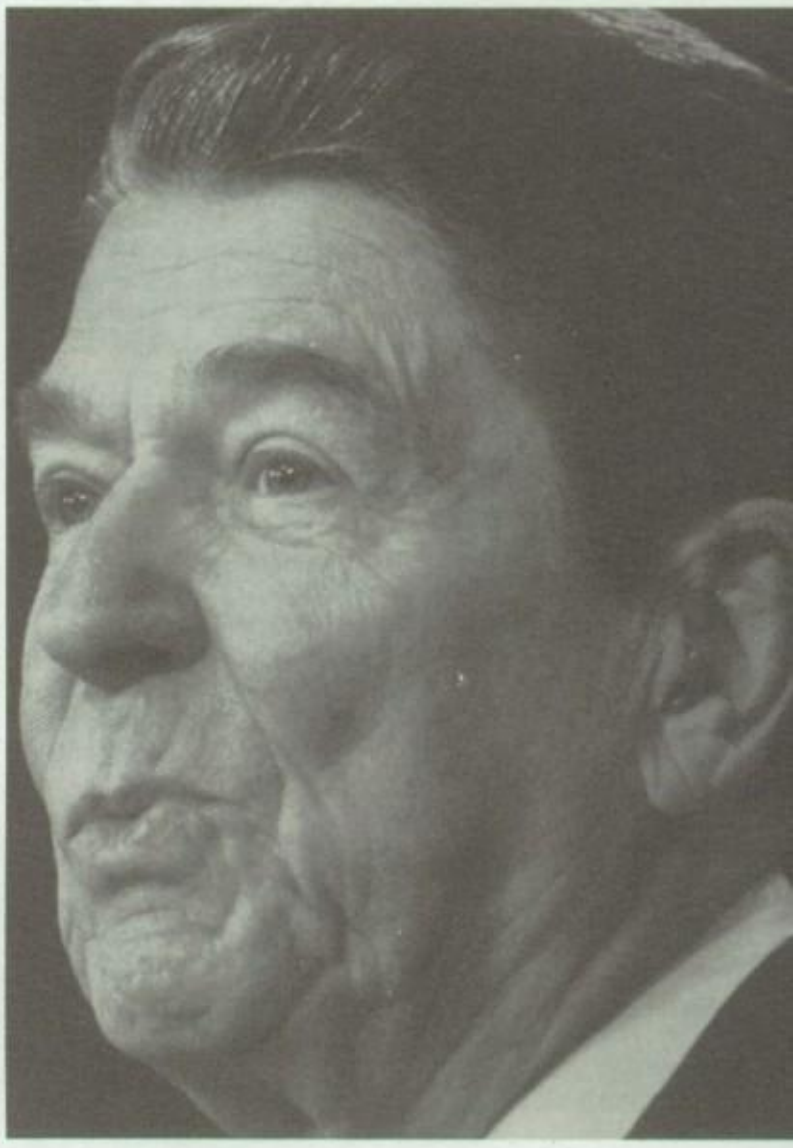
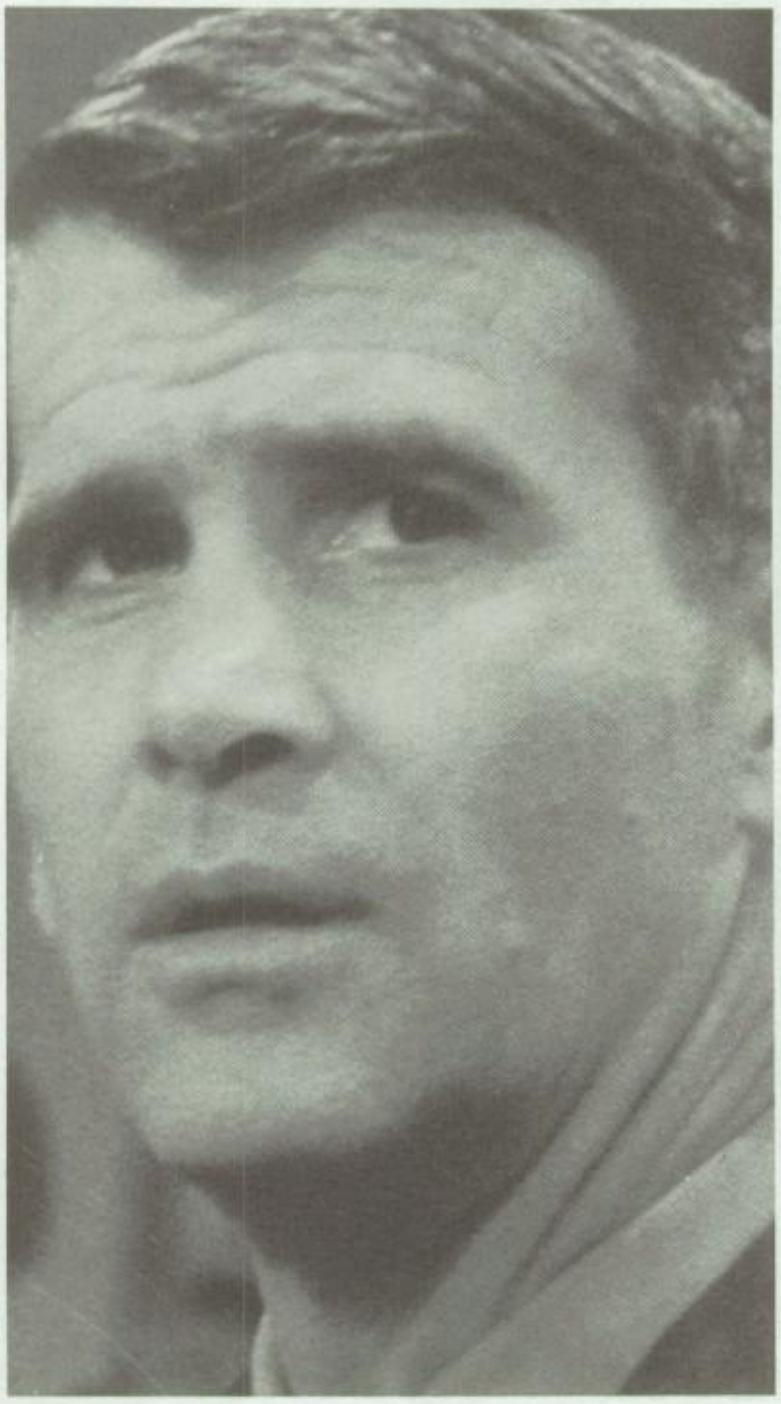
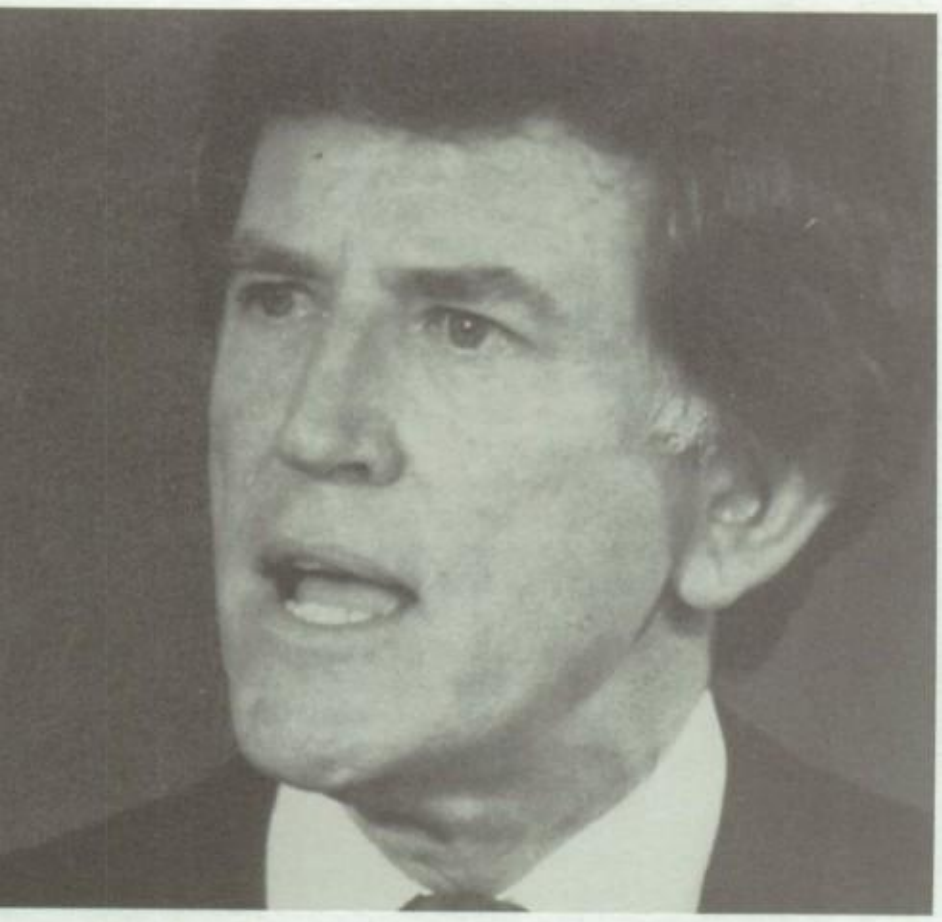
The Iran Coverup





WORLD NEWS



The Year That Was . . .

In the years of '87-'88
many met a curious fate;
In the world news
several people sang the blues.

Jim and Tammy Bakker were involved in an imbroglio that proved to be a shaker.
Their PTL organization underwent strong scrutinization.

Gary Hart's campaign reached an interesting low that raised the question, "How far should the media go?"
Hart withdrew from the Presidential race but re-entered within a few months' space.

Col. North testified before the Iran/Contra committee.
At first the outlook was . . . not so good,
but after hearing a lot of "I can't recall,"
America thought Ollie was finally on the ball.

The owners of stock
went through a great shock;
The market took its largest plunge;
much damage was done.
The value of the dollar began to droop, causing financial experts to be quite irate as a group.

However, despite all this disarray about the year, there are many good things to say.

Gorbachev came to the U.S. for a summit
Later Reagan and Gorbachev announced they had done it.
They had signed a new treaty that got rid of some inter-ballistic missiles neatly.
They appeared to be trying to bring our nations closer together by ridding the world of weapons forever.

Pope John Paul the second payed our nation a visit, too.
For America, this was something new.
Thousands flocked to see him,
including many from the Sacramento region.

Reagan and Congress finally agreed on a Supreme Court nominee, although he was candidate number three.
The other two weren't quite up to standards-there just were too many scandals.

In the sports scene,
the Olympics were the thing.
they got under way
just north of the good ol' U.S.A.

Also making the sports news were two teams that definitely did not lose Enjoying respective victories were the Redskins and the amazing Minnesota Twins.

All in all, the past year's news was quite exciting many happenings instigated pleasant rioting.
In fact, it is obvious to see that although some key figures are already set in the history books forever, many others are still trying to "get it together."

Andrew,
howdy-doo!
So, I bet you think you're special

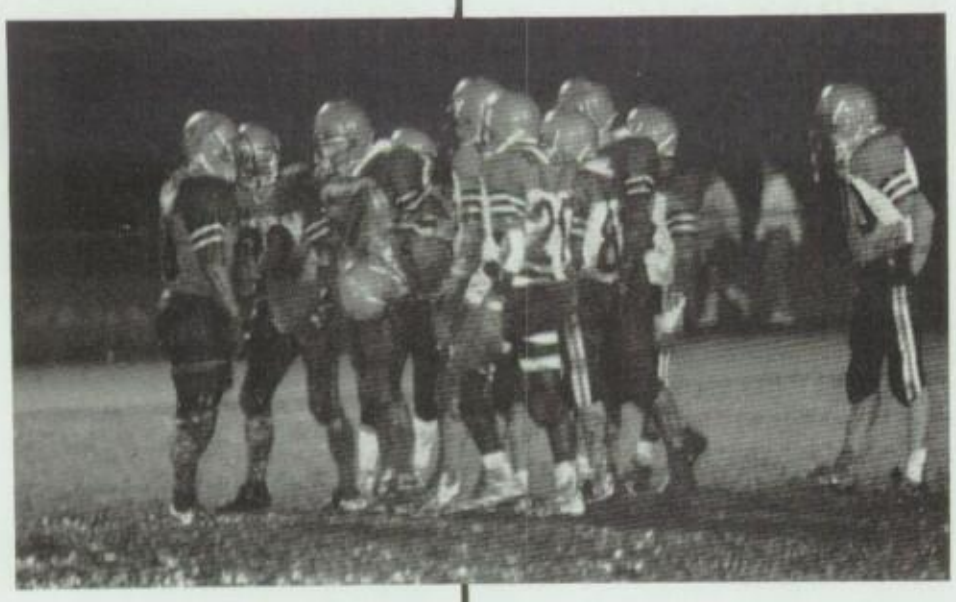
"We had a lot of talent this year, but injuries and inexperience hurt the ball club. — Will Benson

You take it: Brian Buick hands the ball off to the speedy Dwayne Owens.

Going for it all: Running through the open field, Charles Putney heads for the end zone.



Down and dirty: The Mustangs defense sets up for the next play.

Here I come: Keith Morrison runs hard for the first down.

Mustangs Break Stride

The Varsity Football team had all "the right stuff" to make them a top contender in Sacramento, but certain key mistakes and injuries hampered their efforts. A loss to El Dorado in their last league game kept them out of a playoff birth. The team consisted of many outstanding seniors, along with a number of talented juniors. The offense was led by running backs Dwayne Owens, Keith Morrison, and Charles Putney. Brett Catanzaro and Brian Buick traded off the job of quarterback throughout the season. The defense was guided by the outstanding play of Jim Jaggers, Kit Pebly, and Robert Neves.

The season started off looking very promising for the stangs with several impressive wins. But, the team didn't have everything working for them and lost many crucial league games. The mustangs ended the season with a league record of 2-3, and an overall record of 5-4.

Special recognition goes to David McDonald, who received an award for being selected to the All-Superior California Football Team.

In true form: Jason Wharton, the multi-talented soccer-football player, calmly kicks the extra point.

Frosh makes CVC

Co-Champs

Sporting their new jerseys, the freshman football team proved they were tops in the 1987-88 season. As a group, the freshman team members were diverse in their abilities. Many on the team could play both offense and defense with equal vigor.

The outstanding defense and ground attack seemed to be what made the passing go. "There were various games where over 100 yards were passed," said Coach Soto.

Not only was the passing successful, but the punt returns were effective also.

All of this talent, plus hard work and a sense of unity among the players carried the team all the way to the championships, where they were named co-champions of the CVC.

With an eagerness and excitement, the team progressed throughout the season like a family who had one main goal to do their best. The results clearly show that the team surpassed there goal.

Coach Don Soto commented, "They were a tough, highly disciplined group of young men," and Coach Ed Soto expressed a desire for the team to grow together with the words, "I hope they stay together and continue the Foothill winning tradition."

With a team so abundant in talent, to name any one player as outstanding is difficult, but the trophies were given to: Dwayne Lewis Most Valuable player, Brent Butner for Outstanding Lineman, Jeremy Moore for Outstanding back, and Sonny Gala for Most Inspirational.

Overall, the team ended with a record of seven wins and only one loss.

J.V.

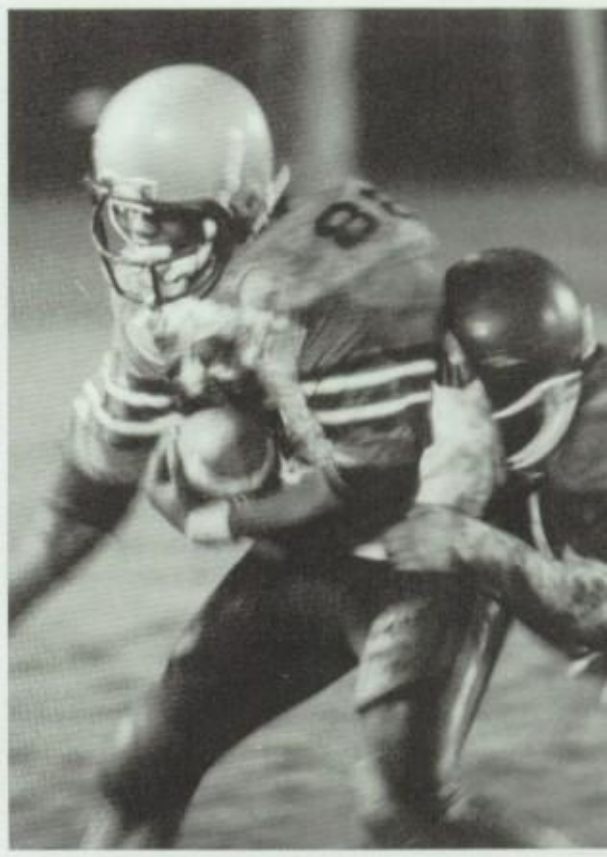
Finishes

So So Season

The J.V. Football team had many obstacles to overcome in the 1987-88 season. Not only were they a relatively small group, but a series of injuries held them back as well. Coach Hicks related many of the losses to injuries, stating that they were the main problem of the season.

Despite a losing season, the team members were closely knit and they had a good time playing their game.

Overall, the team ended its season with a 3-6 record.



Who said this was fun?: With a crunching blow from the side, the football is knocked loose.

Get off my back!: Reggie Owens is attacked from behind.

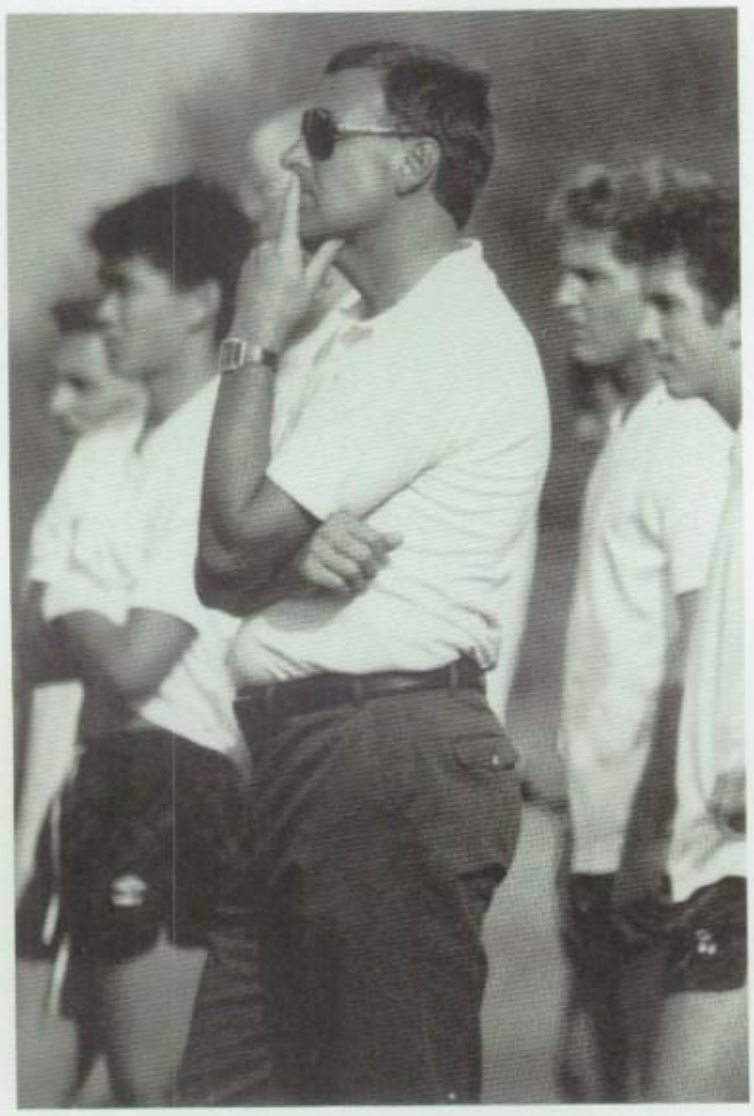
Hmmm: Coach Don Wharton looks on as the team sets up a play.



The Foothill Mustangs looked very promising the beginning of the year. With a few pre-seaso games against tough opponents, the varsi squad lost to top ranked Roseville and tied Po derosa. When the CVC season started, the Mu tangs lost some pride when they had their first lo of the season. They traveled to Dixon, Vacavill and to Tracy to compete in a couple of tourn ments in which they did well. During the middle the season they lost some key players to injur who were out for the rest of the year. This cripple the team and forced them to move two JV pla ers up to varsity. With the help of the JV playe Foothill provided stiff competition for their opp nents. Then the varsity lost a crucial game agai Rio Americano 1 to 0. With that loss, it placed t Mustangs out of contention for CVC playoffs. a whole, the season proved to be a disappointi one for the graduating seniors, but the junio have high hopes for a CVC birth in 1988.

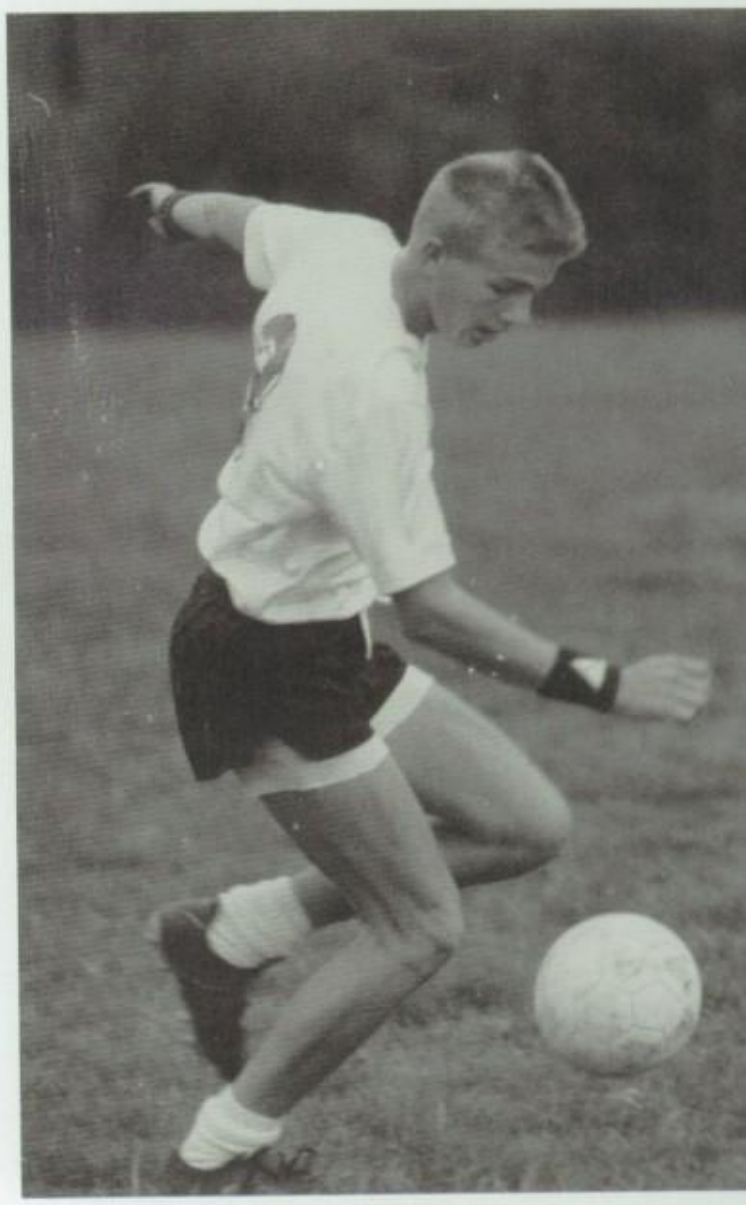
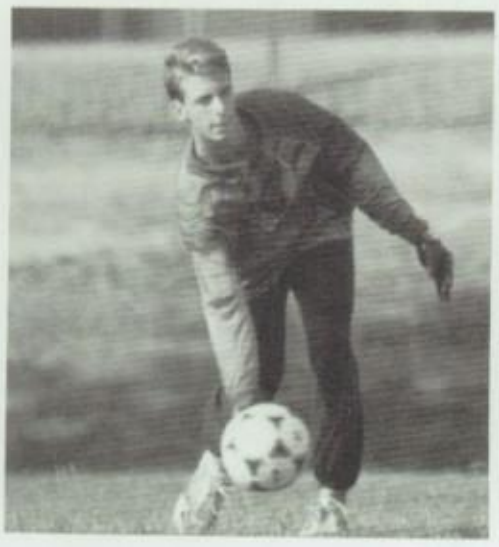
Back row: Coach D. Wharton, T. Sotheavvong, E. Hernandez, S. Klausner, J. Wharton, M. Colby, D. Meadcalf, T. Elkins, Coach D. Colby. Middle row: B. Esparza, T. Taylor, D. Headington, D. Murphy, D. Krueger, M. Williams, T. Torres, B. Chen. Bottom row: D. Ganas, K. DeVisser, S. Haselwood, R. Lee, D. Scott, M. Saldivar, G. Vallas, S. Kensey.



"The starting team had lots of talent, but we couldn't put the talent together. When we did get it together, we were as tough as anybody, but it just didn't happen." Dan Murphy

No, Mine!: With aid from Jason Wharton, Wayne Bennett works hard at regaining the ball.

Uhg!: Scott Haselwood throws the ball to restart the offense of the Mustangs.



Powl: After the opponents' attack, Daryl Ganas boots the ball up field to start the offensive move.

Heads up: Steve Kinsey waits for the right moment to distribute the ball to a fullback.

I meant to do that!: As usual, David Meadcalf is on top of the play.

"Overall the Foothill Mustangs performed better than their record shows, but a few costly errors made the difference." — Tristan Ragasa Heads up: Scott Chapman gets up high to head the ball to a teammate.

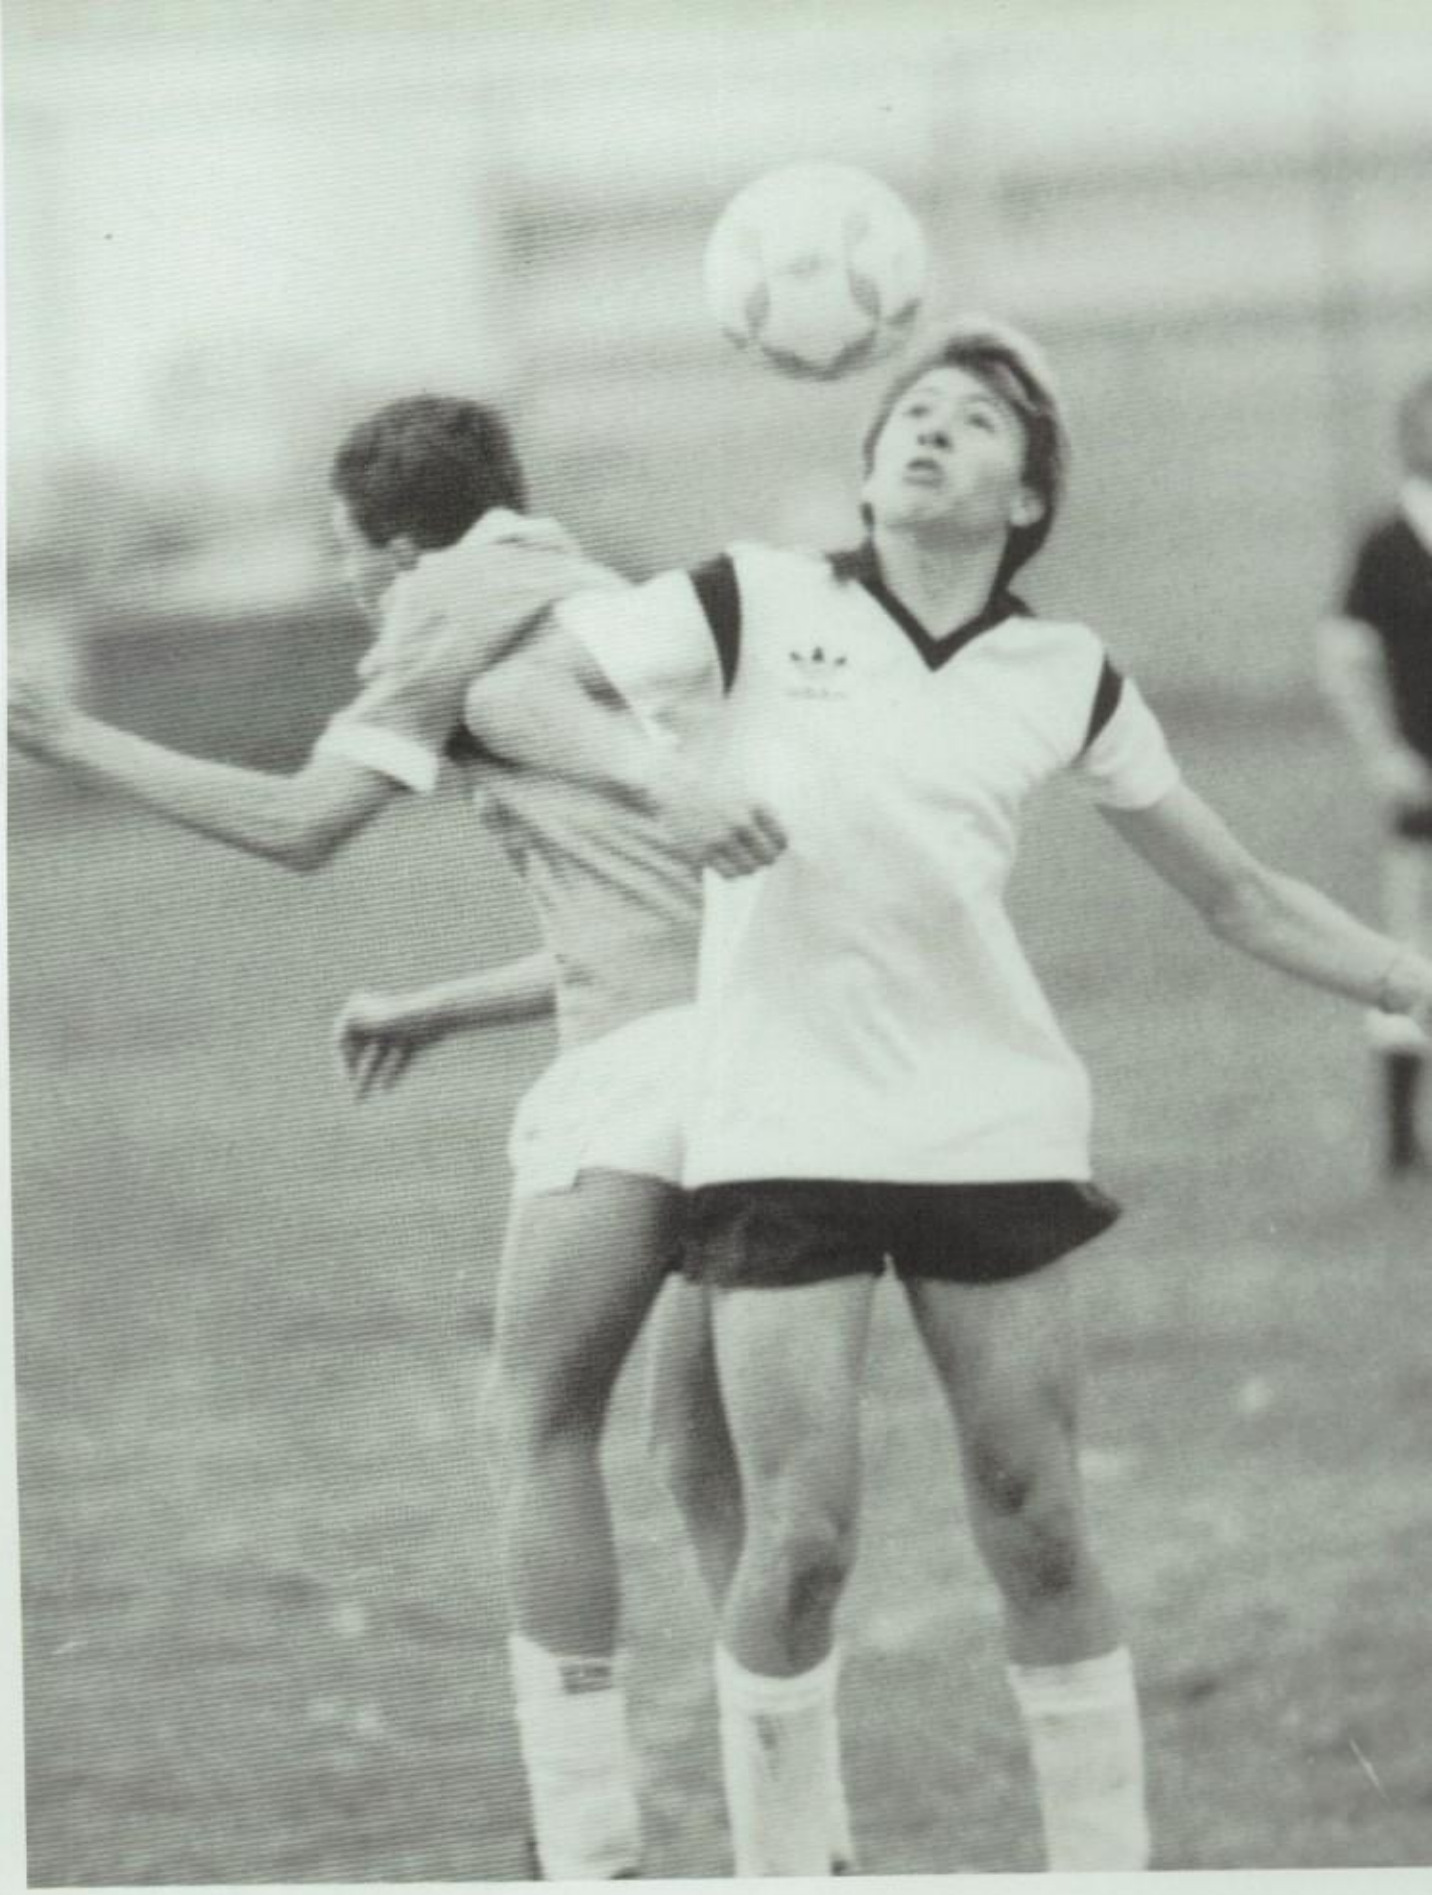
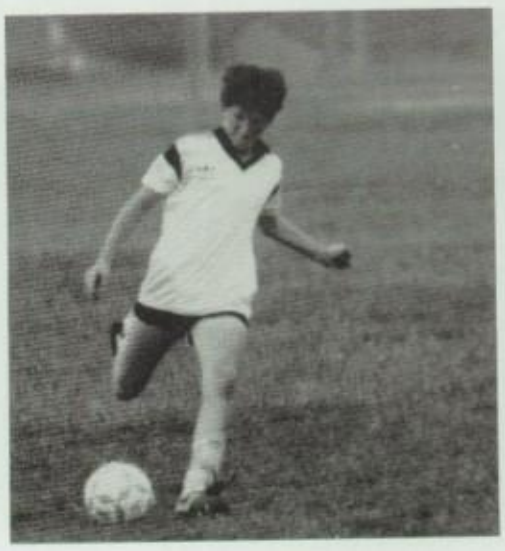
High hopes: Leaping high into the air, Marlin Cole tries to control the ball.



Let 'er fly: With a mighty thrust of his foot, Eric Vernon tries to kick the ball to another Mustang.



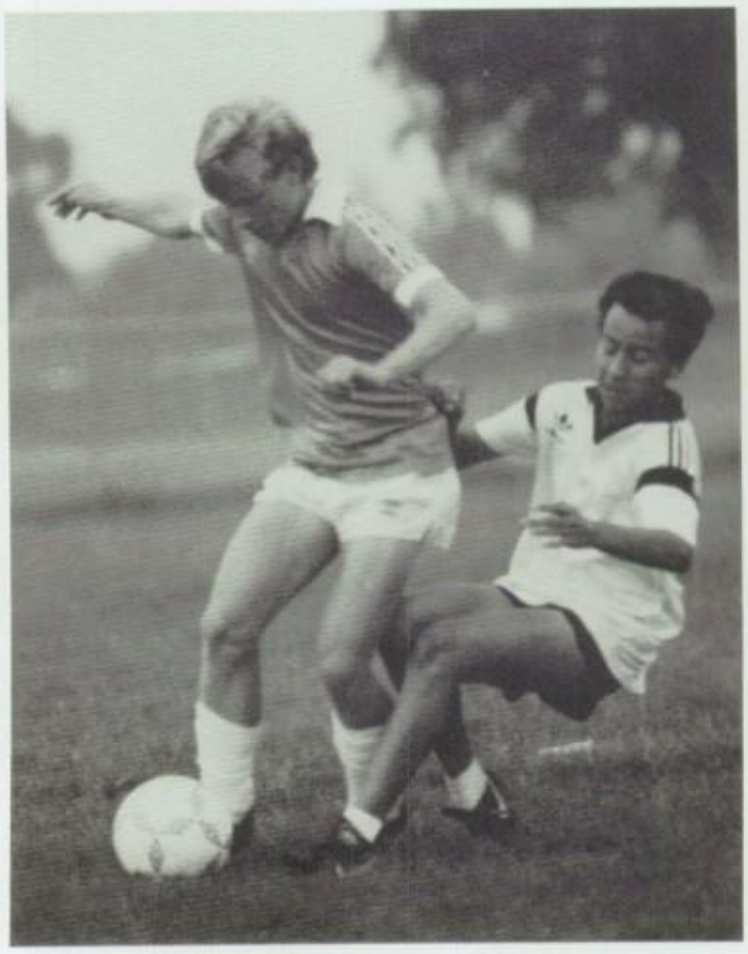
Moving up field: Fighting against the wind Rich Estep attempts a goal kick.

Keep your eye on the ball: Mark Hansen concentrates on how to trap the ball.

Winning Season

Eludes Ponies

Back in September, when they began practicing, the J.V. Mustangs were a little intimidated because they were playing high school soccer. No more recreational league, they were in the big leagues now. After a few scrimmage games, the young Mustangs felt more at home. Many of the players were trying to achieve their main goal of gaining experience that would help them when they went to the varsity level. Although it was a rough season, the young Mustangs had nothing to be ashamed of considering such tough opponents as El Camino, Rio Americano, El Dorado, and Mira Loma. After finishing a tough season, the J.V. players looked forward to playing on the Varsity squad.



Look how I do it: Brian Crawford takes a deep breath as he prepares to head the ball.

Doing battle: Sliding in, Ian Hernandez tries to regain possession of the ball.

Back row: E. Vernon, K. Lee, J. Davis, B. Crawford, S. Chapman, Coach P. Ramon. Middle row: T. Meadcalf, M. Restivo, I. Hernandez, A. Churchill, S. Lewis. Bottom row: M. Martinez, R. Quinn, A. Solis, E. Gravitt.

Mustang Varsity Volleyball Fall Just Short of . . .

T.O.C.

The 1987-88 Varsity Volleyball team was composed of five seniors and seven juniors. Together these twelve girls worked long and hard to come up with a season record of 12-5.

Various awards were presented to the players at the close of the season. The Awards Night was held at the Spaghetti Factory and the awards were as follows: Most Improved — Jodi Mehl, Best Defense — Natalie Taylor, Best Offense — Shannon Lynch, Most Inspirational — Tricia Barnes, and Most Valuable Player — Gretchen Lowell. Natalie Taylor and Gretchen Lowell were also named All League Players and Gretchen was also given an Honorable Mention on the All-Metro team.

Oops, I missed: Debra Mitchell saves the tip from two opponents.

Serves up: Tricia Barnes attempts to return the ball.

With back up: Natalie Taylor watches as Gretchen Lowell gets down on her knee to save a point.

Front row: Jennifer Snyder, Midori Price, Deborah Howes. Middle row: Debra Mitchell. Back row: Angella Carter, Tricia Barnes, Shannon Lynch, Natalie Taylor, Gretchen Lowell, Molly Harlow, Jodi Mehl, and Teresa Hoover.

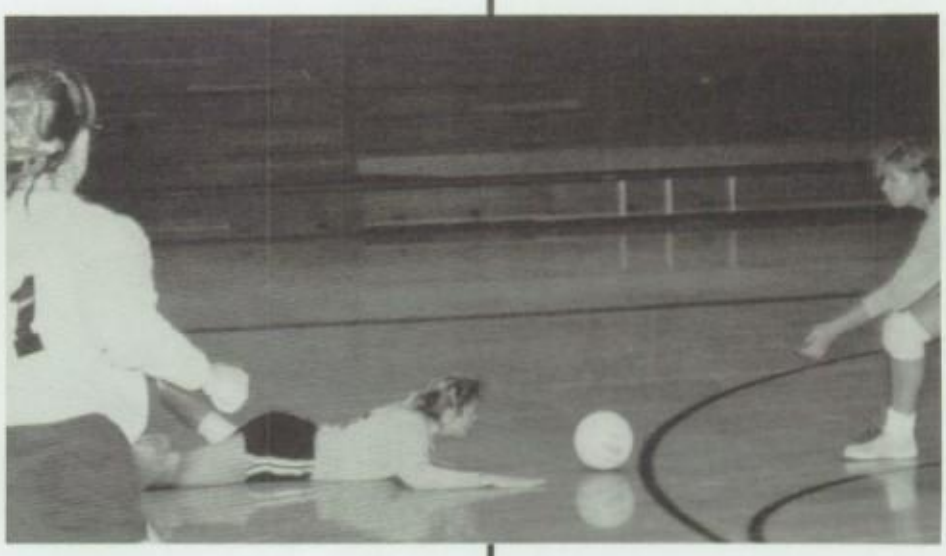
Time out: Waiting to get back to the game, Tricia Barnes, Teresa Hoover, Natalie Taylor, Gretchen Lowell and Shannon Lynch discuss game strategy.

"Memories come and memories go, but my memories of Foothill volleyball will always be with me!" Gretchen Lowell.

Concentration pays: Shannon Lynch sets the ball right where she wants it.

Wham bam: Using her excellent technique, Debra Mitchell sets the ball for a spike.

Flying high: Angie Carter spikes the ball as an opponent rises for a block.



Taking a break: Tricia Barnes punches with all her might to get the ball in the air.

OUCH! Gretchen Lowell practices her diving technique as she tries to save the ball.

"I had a lot of fun. Our team really worked together. I learned a lot and I'm looking forward to next season." — Kristi Kurz Head's up: Berlyn Fredrick sets the ball as team members anticipate the delivery.

Feeling free: Marla Bracy serves the ball with extra power.

Help is on the way: Cindy Howe positions herself under the ball bumped by Robin Ryan.

Oops: Shan Crawford makes a lunge to save the ball.

Help: Kristi Kurz moves in for the assist after Robin Ryan sets the ball.

Junior Varsity Volleyball

Although they didn't have a winning season, the 1987-88 J.V. Volleyball team still managed to have a season worth remembering. The individual team members displayed outstanding sportsmanship throughout the games and practices. With many hours of hard work and dedication they were able to develop the skills necessary for playing good volleyball. The team's high spirits and high motivation made them exciting to watch and the overall attitude was positive.

Hope it works: Berlyn Fredrick uses her back handed method of bumping the ball.

Double trouble: Sherry Gallagos and Berlyn Fredrick dive to save a fast return.

Fantastic Trio: Berlyn Fredrick bumps high as Robin Ryan and Kristi Kurz set the return.

Stangs Suffer Roller Coaster Season

Bombs away: Ryan Streeper lets go of a 3pt. attempt.

Going strong: Daryl Ganas muscles his way to the basket for a layup.

The varsity basketball season could have been described as a roller coaster season. Things got off to a rocky start as the Mustangs lost their first seven games. in the Jack Scott Tourney Foothill started to pull things together, but lost in two consecutive overtimes. But the tides turned with two exciting victories in the Casa Roble Tournament. Senior point guard and deadeye three point king, Ryan Streeper described the turnaround: "Because of all the raw talent the team possessed, it was only a matter of time until we reached our potential."

To start off the new year, the Stangs outlasted the sixth ranked Grant, and seventh ranked Rio Americano. Outstanding performances were turned in by the junior duo of Sean Faulkner and Derek Clark. The team struggled in the next two contests losing close games to Mira Loma and El Dorado. Possibly the most exciting game of the year was played against El Camino at home. The Mustangs battled back and overcame an early fifteen point deficit to send the game into overtime. The Stangs played tough defense and pushed the game into a second overtime. But Foothill found themselves down a point with four seconds left. Daryl Ganas rebounded a Derek Clark "Air-ball-pass" and laid it in just before the buzzer sounded to win.

The team was fortunate to make the playoffs and play Jesuit. But, Jesuit outplayed the Mustangs and controlled the tempo of the game. Foothill ended the season with a 10-16 record.

Congratulations to Sean Faulkner and Derek Clark for being selected for the All League CVC team.

Front row: M. Vaughn, T. Tyler, R. Streeper, S. McGregor, M. Tsusaki Back row: D. Clark, J. Wharton, A. Hinkle, D. Ganas, Coach Nativadad, S. Faulkner, G. Flippen, M. Hinkle, B. Chen, M. McClain.

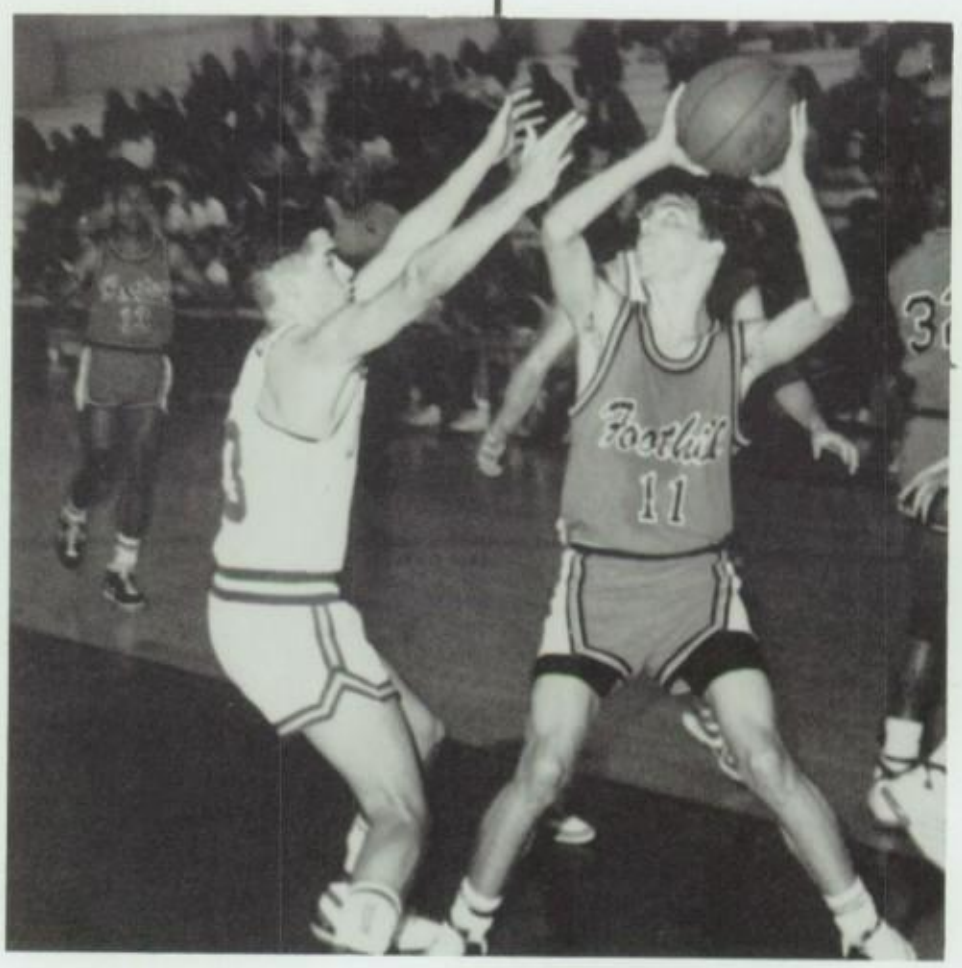
Sweet ice tea: Derek Clark confidently steps up to the free throw line and hits it.

"The team played well when facing tough opponents, but faltered in a lot of easy games." Derek Clark

"We lost many close games. Many of our loses could have gone either way. We could have easily been sixteen and ten instead of ten and sixteen." Miles Tusuaki

Here I come: Sean Faulkner pulls up for a ten foot jump shot.

Which way?: Bobby Chen looks both ways before passing.



What am I going to do now?: Ryan Streeper drives into the key and decided to take the ball strong to the hoop.

Coming through: Eric Scrivner drives around the Rio defender to score two points.

Rip roaring: Grafften Blue rips down a defensive rebound and pre to start the fast break.

I need a man: Looking over the defense, Chris Lipsco finds the open Grafften Blue under the hoop.

Like a thief: Scott Irish leaps into the air hoping to steal the ball from the opposing team.

Mine!!: Paco Phergo pulls up for the short jumper.

Foothill's Fighting Freshmen

Foothill's future JV, the freshman basketball team, proved that they have what it takes to compete in high school level sports. Although the competition was fierce, the freshmen demonstrated such skill and sportsmanship that they became well known throughout the Sacramento Valley. With demanding practices, the team put forth an incredible amount of effort to prove to upperclassmen and underclassmen alike that they will carry on Foothill's victorious tradition.

Up, up and away: Smashing through the opposing defenders, Brian Crawford puts one up for two points.

Who's open?: Tristan Ragasa searches for an open teammate in the final moments of the game.

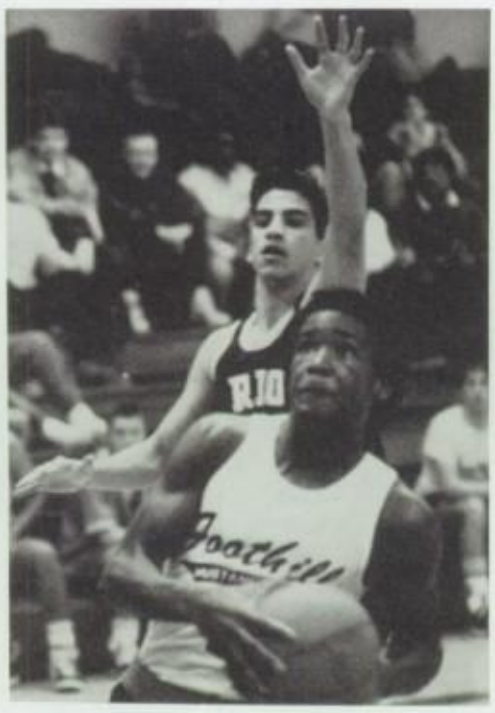
On a wing and a prayer: Ray Everson takes a shot from the free throw line.

No, you don't: Ray Everson craftily keeps his opponent in his place.

Up short: Duanne Lewis robs the Rio Americano center of two points.

Kid quick: Tristan Ragasa loses his opponent and charges down the court.



Three, two, one ... : Duanne Lewis goes for a layup during the last seconds of the first half.

For all the marbles: Adam Perkins makes a three pointer to tie up the game.

"I think we did real good and worked hard to become what we are." — Joel Hilbert Rammin': Paul Shelly head locks an opposing member.

Eye to Eye: Terrell Stafford sees his destiny.

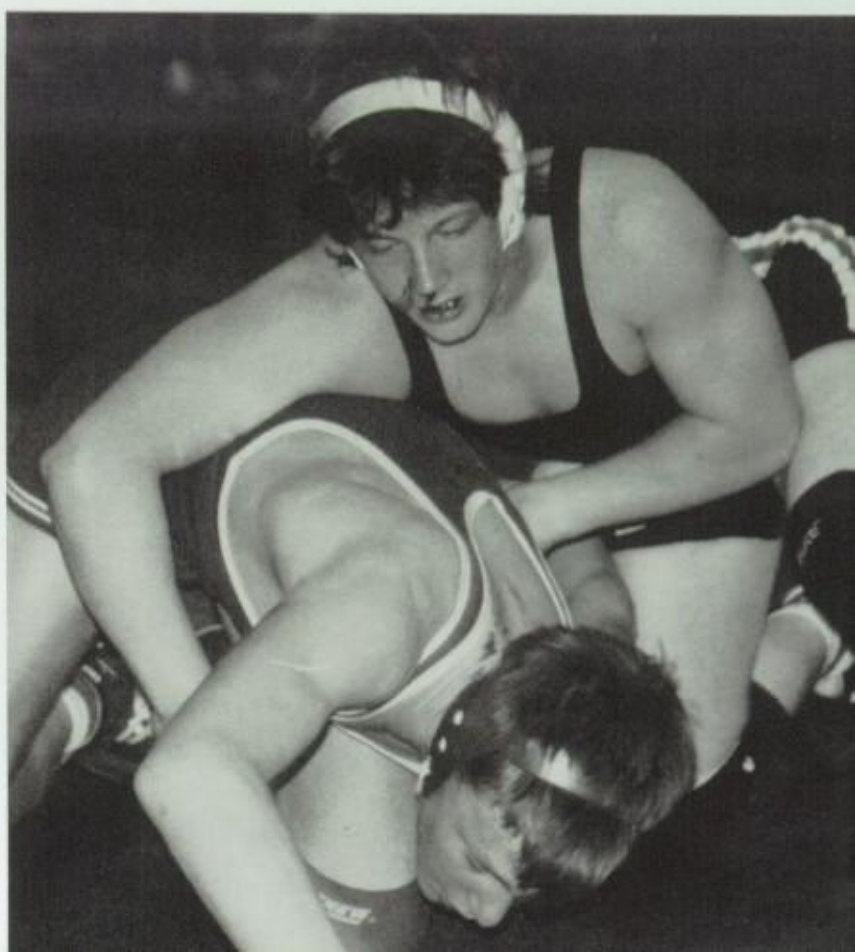
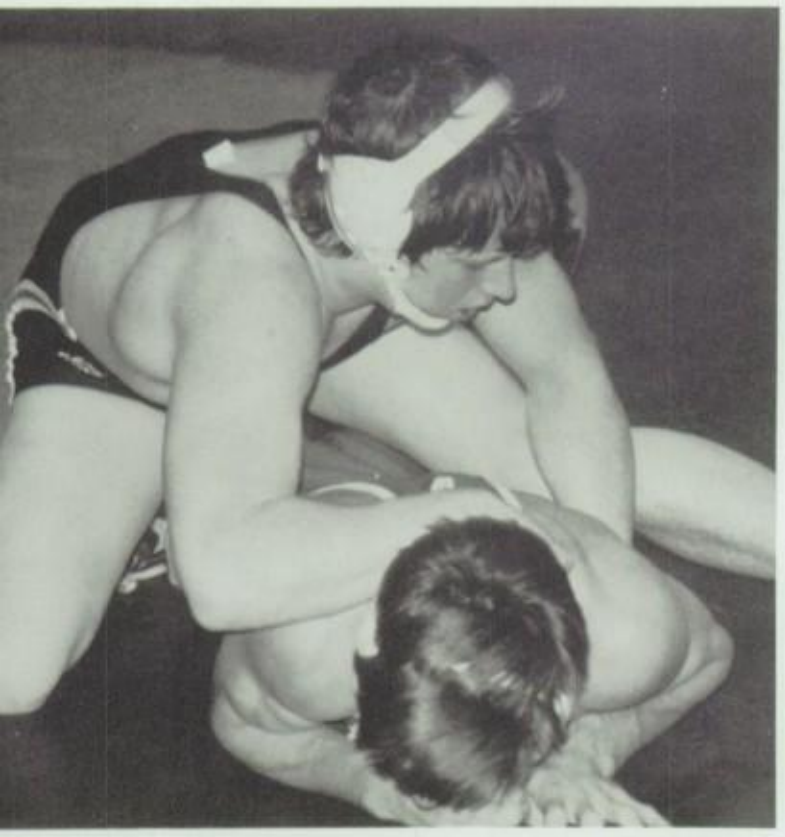
Take that: Marshall Burright gets his man right where he wants him.

Down on all fours: Charlie Jones brings his opponent to his knees.





MUSTANG WRESTLERS

Wrestling is more of an individual than a team sport because during a match it is a one on one situation. However, the individual wrestlers do the best they can to gain points to add to the whole team.

The 1987-88 wrestling team had a very successful season. With many hours of hard work and dedication, the wrestling members achieved many victories and made their way to the CVC Championships. Competing against many other schools, the Foothill Mustangs took second place.

One, two, three: Charlie Jones' opponent is down for the count.

Dug into the mat: Paul Shelly executes a great wrestling maneuver.

Upside down: Greg Shelton pins his opponent.

Front row: R. Johnson, B. Spaid, D. Holt, P. Shelly, K. Hone, S. Jones, C. Jones, R. Jones, J. Hilbert, and N. Churchill.

"We're rusty now, but once we get our act together we'll probably make sectionals." — AnnD James Here's what to do: Mark Saldivar and David Medcalf get pointers from Coach Srulowitz.

We can do it: Steve Meade and Alex Lazaro get psyched up for a match.

Give me your best shot: Chris Carpenter tries to stay loose.

Take that: Mark Saldivar sends back an opponent's shot with a dazzling backhand.

Aim high: Terry Mazza leaps for the return.

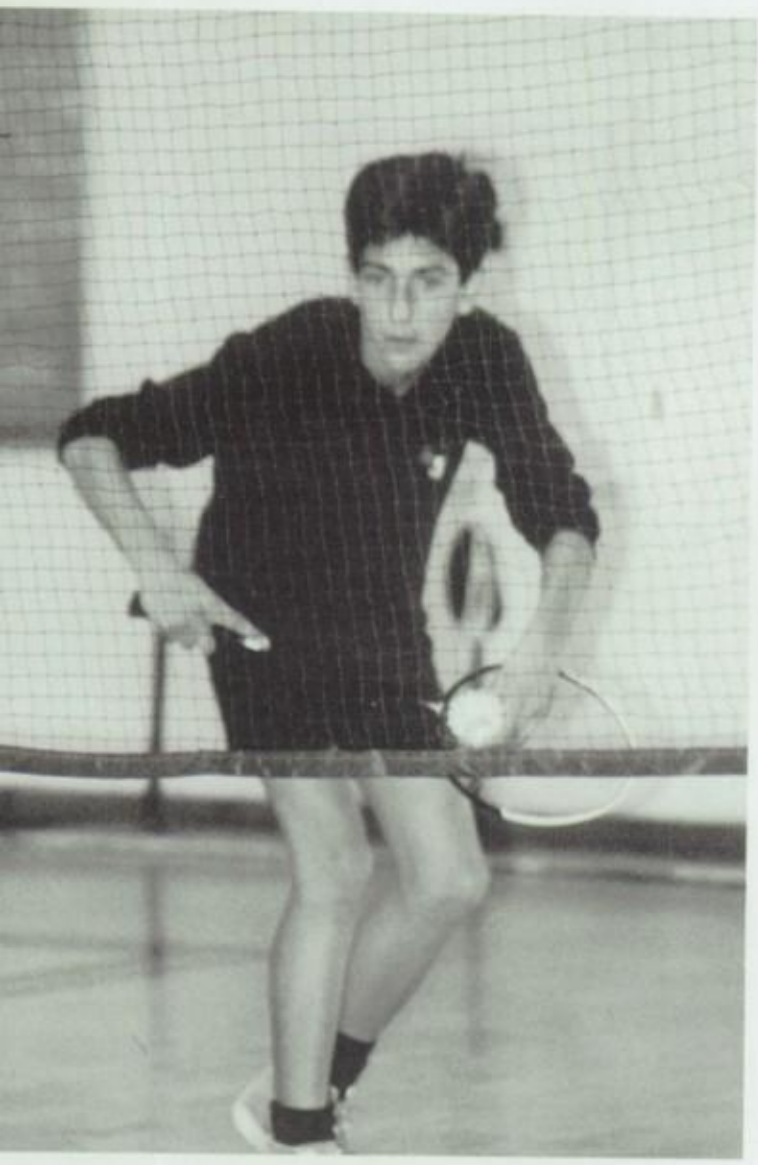
High Flying Birdies

Badminton originated in India during the late nineteenth century before it came to the United States and Canada. The badminton craze was also going strong on Foothill's campus. Under the coaching of Jeff Srulowitz, thirty-seven devoted badminton enthusiasts perfected their skills. This year's crew consisted of only ten veterans, but, for the first time in years, they had the necessary twelve girls needed for a complete badminton team. Coach Srulowitz felt that the team was very successful. This year's badminton squad really caused a "racket".

Warmin' up: Ed Mazza takes a few practice shots.

Patience is a virtue: Team members calmly wait for an opposing team to arrive.

Twhap!: Regina Hernandez hits a line drive.



Low blow: Mark Martinez bends down for a low birdie.

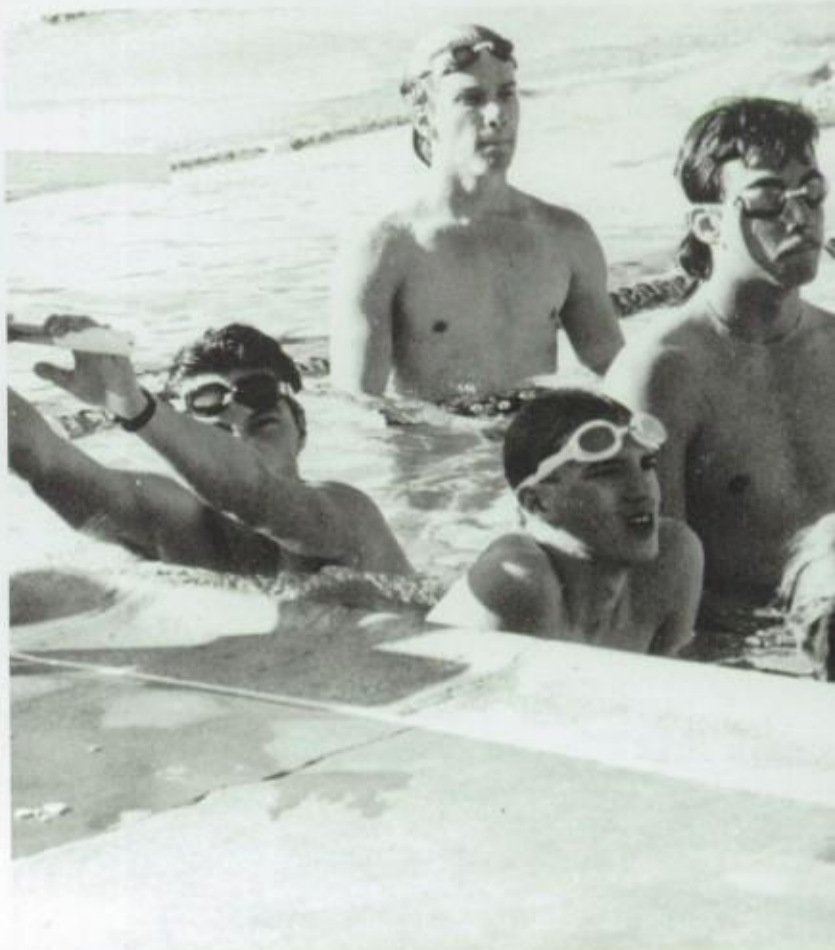
Front row: D. No, M. Saldivar, T. Taylor, D. Medcalf, A. Lazaro, S. Meade. 2nd row: J. Nisperos, T. Homan, V. Tungpagasit, M. Martinez, T. Mazza, A. James, S. Hodges. 3rd row: S. Cook, M. Harlow, T. Duong, M. Brock, W. Tungpagasit, E. Rogers, R. Hernandez, E. Mazza, J. Srulowitz. Back row: A. Baucom, C. Carpenter, R. Priest, J. Tinonga, D. Pursley, B. Fisher, E. Webber.

"Thanks to the leadership and strength of Tony and Greg, we had one of our best seasons ever." — Julie Whitman

Sage advice: Coach Anderson explains how each of the practice sets will be run.
Ahhh!: Scott Hazelwood takes a breather between sets.

Bathing beauties: Swimmers wait for the coach's instructions.

Bang: Greg Robinson and Anthony Bamsey demonstrate their aerial aerobatics.



The big four: Tim Frost, Tom Wantuck, Chris Mackenzie and Ken Turner anxiously anticipate swimming for the 200 Medley Relay.

Wet and Wild

Dedication coupled with team spirit were a few of the things that brought Foothill's swim team to their state of confident readiness. Superb coaching, returning veterans, and a number of first time swimmers found that the tremendous amount of work required to swim actually paid off in the form of a good time. Swimmers had the opportunity to participate in many extracurricular activities, such as donut days, shave-down parties, and water polo. These activities brought the swimmers together as a team, instilling within them an extra sense of spirit.

No, like this: Coach Anderson shows his group the correct arm angles.

Oh, really!: Julie Whitman, George Vallas and Greg Robinson groan at the mention of the next set.

Swimmers take your mark: Anthony Bamsey concentrates on his start as he prepares himself for the 100 yard breastroke.

Vvrroooomm!: Shanna Newcomb leaves a tremendous wake as he tears up the competition.

Track Team Makes Tracks

The varsity track team had a great season during 1988. When they first started out, they had quite a few newcomers which made things difficult until each found his own "niche". Although track is usually thought of as simply running, it is actually a compilation of events which include the pole vault, the high jump, the shot-put, and several types of races.

Two of the most valuable of these track stars were Charles Putney of the varsity boy's division and Kerri Scoggins of the girl's division. The Mustangs, members of the CVC Track division, competed against Rio Linda, McClatchy, Roseville, Del Campo, and several other high schools.

The coaches were Coach Jacobsen and Coach Tony Almond. Both worked hard to help make Foothill's Mustangs into tough competitors.

And they're off!: Demonstrating fantastic skill, Thanh Truong leaps gracefully over the hurdle.

I think I can, I think I can!: Kerri Scoggins concentrates hard while she practices her jumps.

On your mark . . . : Tami Mullen and Renée Brattain prepare their first practice race.

"The team enjoyed a successful year even though we had a small turn out of people." — James Irish.

High aspirations: Sigerd Asp prepares for the challenging pole-vault event.
Up and over: Teammates watch in amazement as track star Charles Putney rockets down the track.

eaps and bounds: Brett McBay demonstrates his amazing at the long jump.

"We have a pretty good team. Although we need a lot of work, the 440 relay team will go to the section finals." — Tony Elkins Leaping Lizards: Robert Canard finishes a practice run doing the long jump.

Heave Ho: Matt Denny thrusts himself over the bar with a mighty heave.

Ready, Get Set: Tom Stanley and Tom Hickey await the starter's gun for the start of the 220.

Argh: Mike Williams flashes a look of consternation as he attempts to clear the bar.

Room to spare: Rick Pendergrass makes the high jump look easy.

Trotting Along

The JV track season started off with a bang — good weather and high spirits. Although the Mustangs were inexperienced they showed some potential, and developed into a strong group of devoted athletes. The young Mustangs acquired the skills and experience needed to compete, whether doing the high jump or the 440. Darren Reid commented, "The team members were supportive, but we just couldn't get it together." As the year ended, they met their goal of becoming faster and more agile, and they exceeded their personal bests. The young Mustangs learned and gained the knowledge needed for future track seasons.

Don't Drop It: Kal Hone and Richard Seamons practice passing the baton for the 440 relay.

Easy Does It: Darren Reid squeezes up and over the bar.

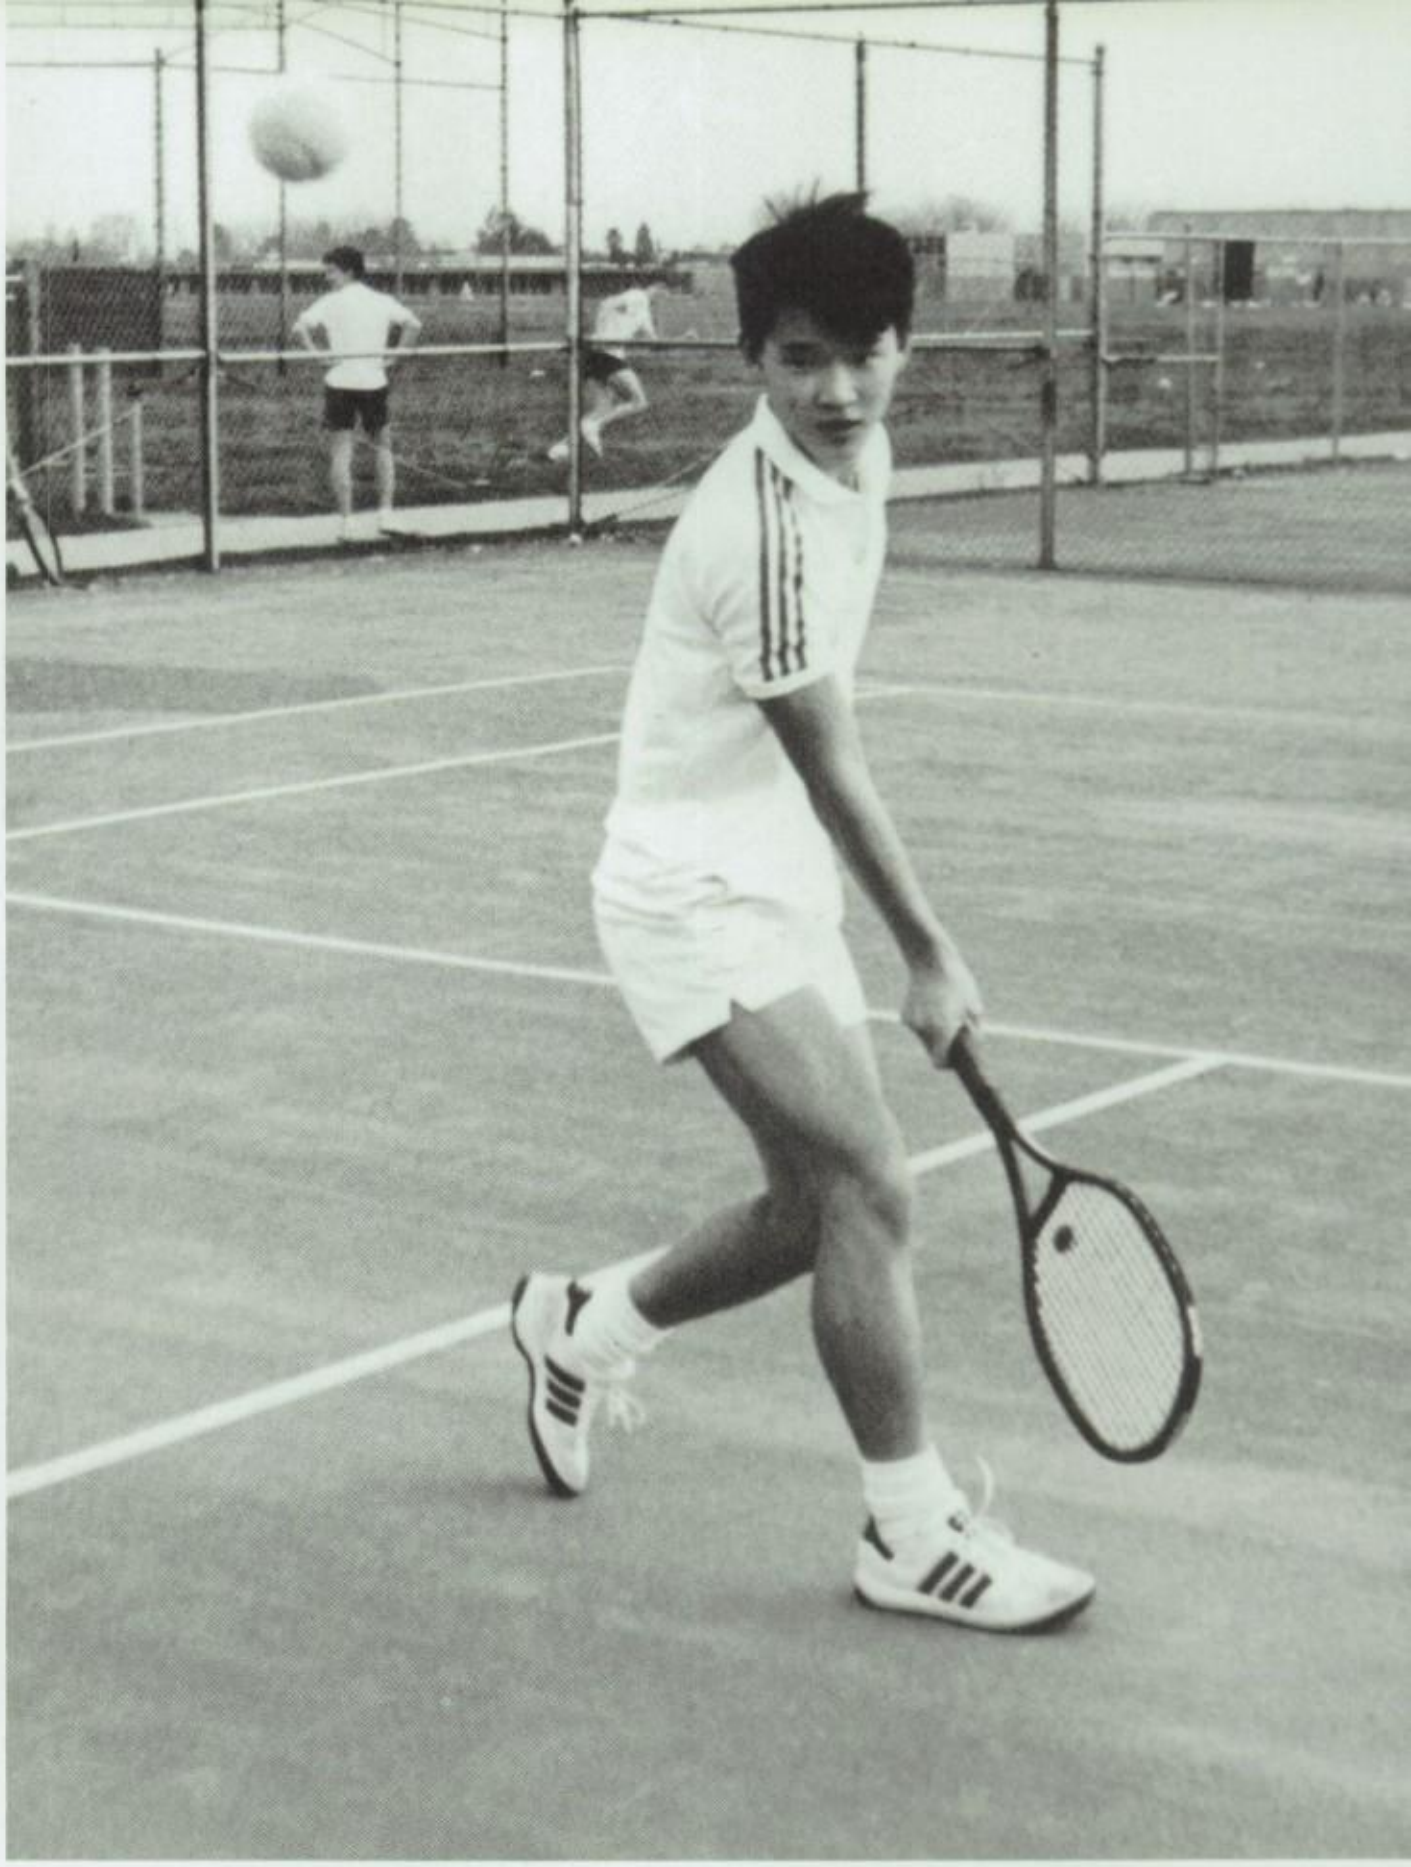
Smooth Landing: Tom Hickey, finishes a practice long jump.

pain, no gain: Tom Stanley takes a couple cool down laps r a hard race.

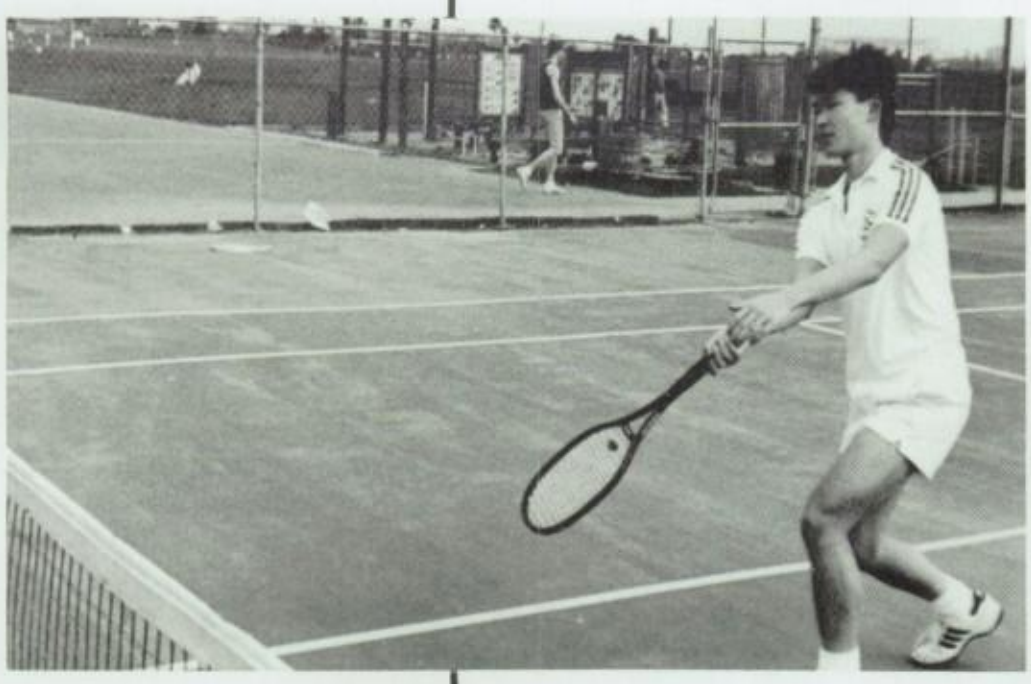
Front row: T. Hickey, R. Owens, T. Harris, M. Denny, R. Canard. Middle row: B. Mullens, R. Seamons, K. Hone, T. Stanley, M. Williams. Back row: T. Hickey, M. Cox, D. Reid, R. Jones, R. Pendergrass.

"I think the team will be improved because of my expertise. But more babes have to come out." — Eric Vernon

Watch the pro: Jeff Hansen demonstrates his forehand abilities.
Not even close: Tricia Barnes is amused at her opponents attempt to return her serve.



Hitting back: Robert Chen prepares to return a difficult serve.



Brushing up: Robert Chen practices volleys close to the net.

Thwack: Tricia Barnes gives the ball a good wallop.

A Team You Can't Match

Foothill's tennis team dedicated themselves to striving for success in 1988. With the support from Coach Steve Maser and fellow teammates, the players worked hard to establish a winning record. Although the team lost a few key players in 1987, a number of new players developed into solid competitors. These new players practiced for endless hours in order to meet their own expectations and the expectations of the team veterans. Bobby Chen, a three year veteran, dominated the top rung of the ladder most of the year. "The team members look great now, and I think we'll improve with time," commented Tania Roybal. Other outstanding players were Tricia Barnes and Troy Rice.

Careful now: Robert Chen struggles to control a high lob shot.

Hey, no problem: Jeff Hansen returns the ball with ease.

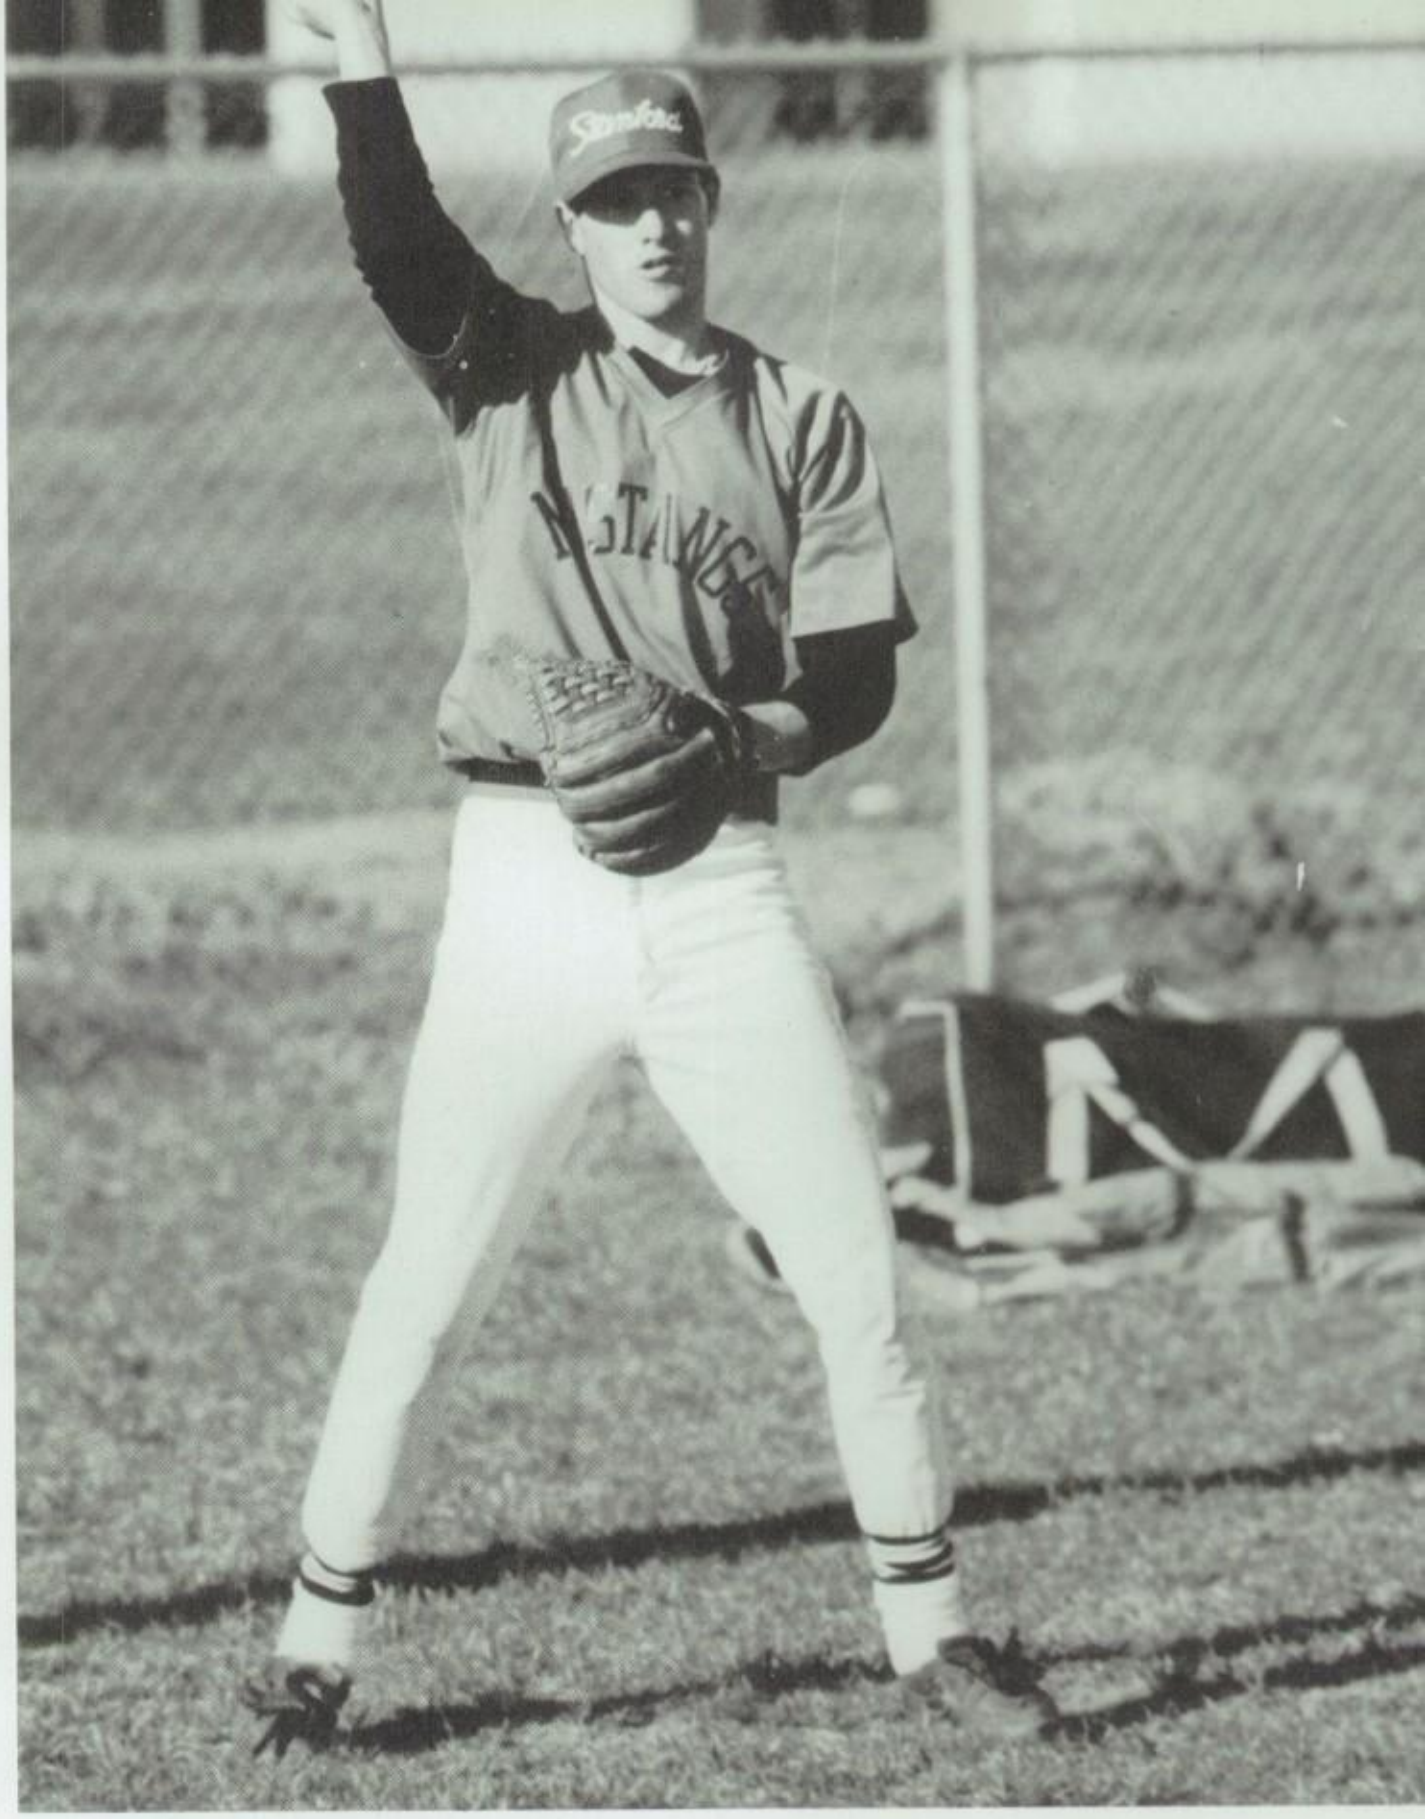
Aim high: Tricia Barnes stretches to serve the ball.

ch for the sky: Troy Rice reaches high in his attempt to avoid ng the ball.

Front row: Trino Lopez, Courtney Hull, Trina Olivas, Tania Roybal, Tricia Barnes. Middle row:Jeff Hansen, Brian Lutz, Robbie Quinn, Rick Freedman, Moses McKinnis, Hong Kim, Derek Ira. Back row: Skyler Baldock, Eric Vernon, Jim Hendrickson, Robert Chen, Jeff Wilson, Billy Hendrickson, Coach Steve Moser.

"With hard work and a little bit of dedication, the varsity baseball team should be strong contenders for the CVC title." — Ben Gonzales

I got it!: Aaron Scott practices his catching skills.
Like this?: Tommy Torres perfects his batting skills.



Over the top: Kent Broadbent demonstrates the correct throwing stance.

It's mine!: John Sullivan prepares to catch the ball as Doug Headington races to the base.

Baseball Team Bats a 1000

After several disappointing seasons, the varsity baseball team came back strong during the 1988 season. After taking second place in the CVC championships, the players were looking forward to a winning season. Jim Jaggers commented, "As long as we hit, we will have one of the strongest baseball teams from Foothill in quite a few years."

Some of the valuable players were Ben Gonzales, Tom Torres, Kent Broadbent, and Jim Jaggers.

At the time of this yearbook printing, the baseball season was not yet completed, but the prospects were good for a fine season.

Woosh!: Jim Jaggers swings ferociously at the ball.

Gotcha!: Doug Headington makes a great catch.

t it fly!: Mike Green tosses the ball infield.
, batter batter: Ben Gonzales focuses on the ball as he prepares swing.

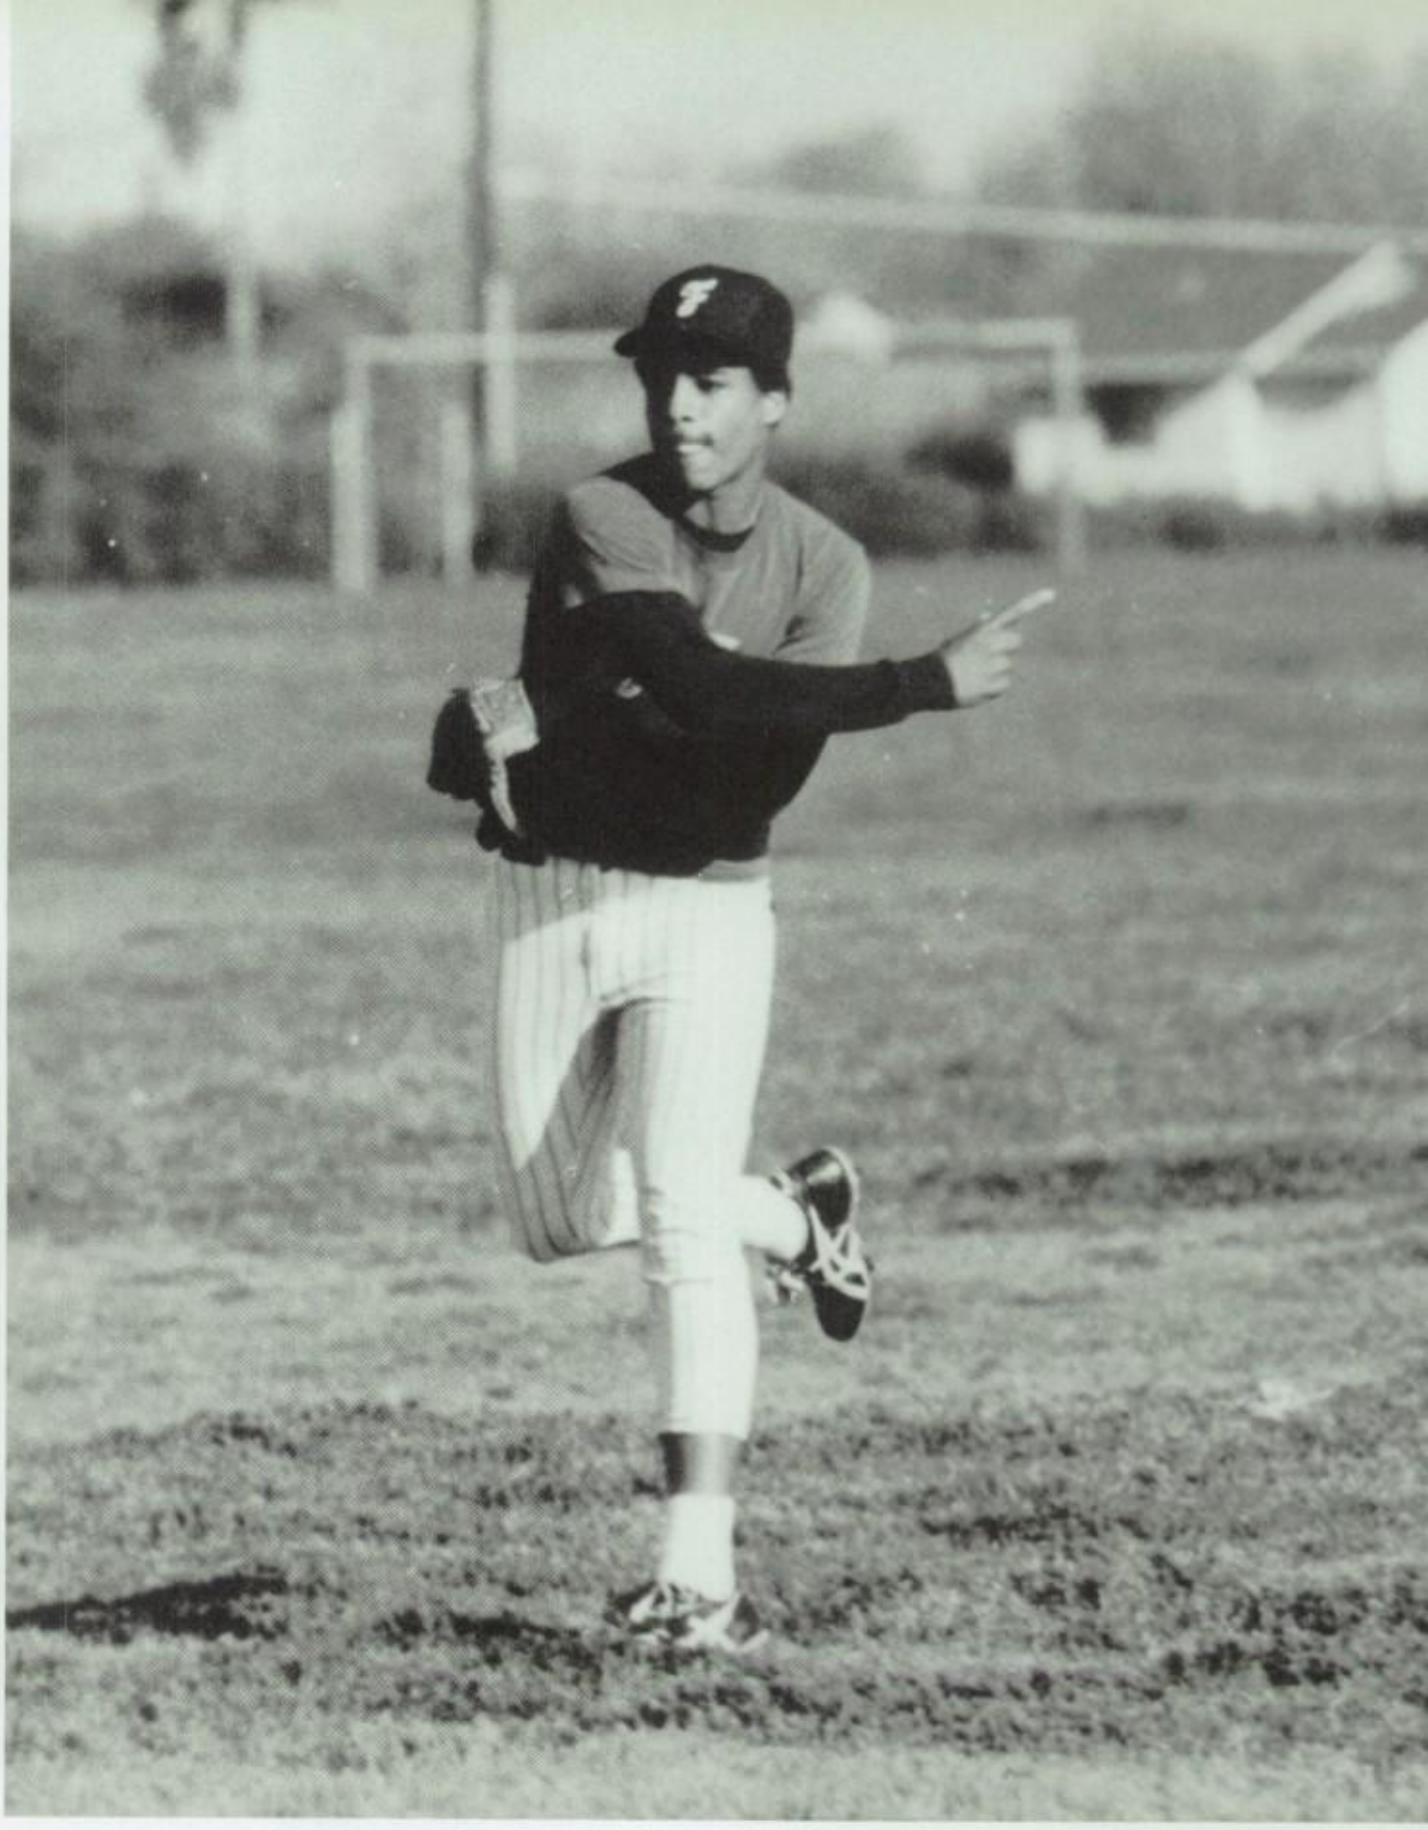
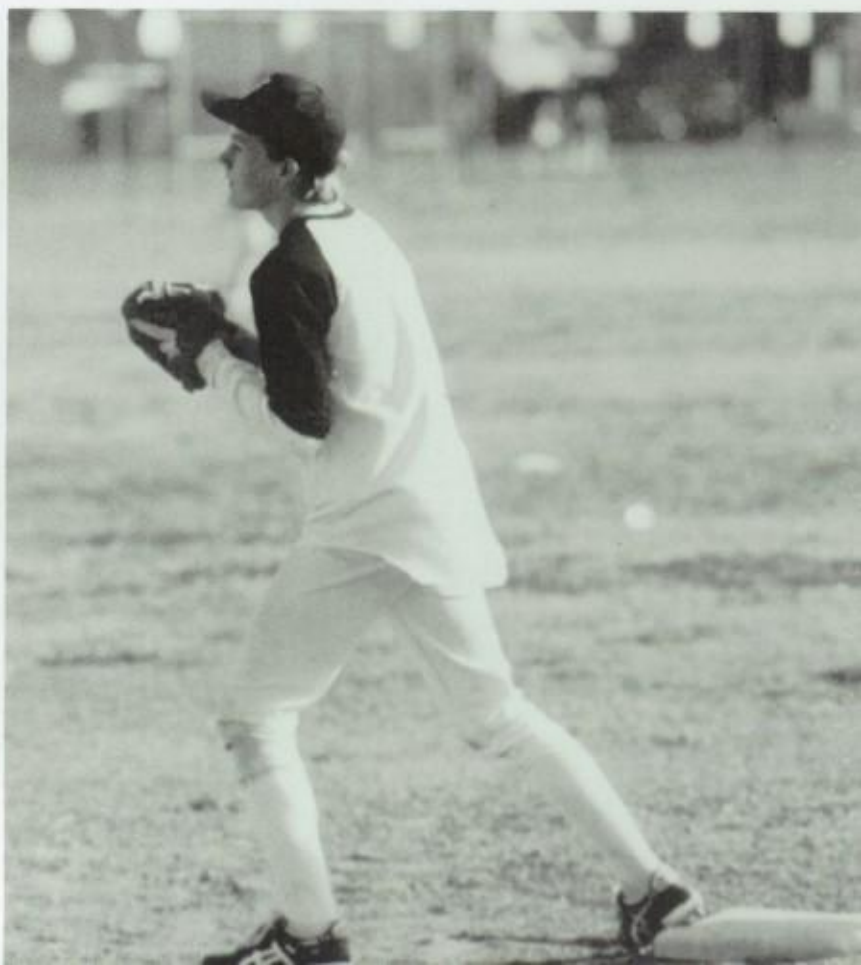
"We have many individual talents, and if we pull together as a team we will definitely have a championship season." — Alan Case

Right over my head: Alan Case isn't tall enough to get that ball.
I got it: Adam Perkins reaches to catch a pop fly.



The tongue helps: Tony Lacey launches the ball with a mighty heave.

Hot grounder: David Dickenson scoops up the ball while Brian Rossi is ready to back him up.



Out'a there: Alan Case gets a man out on first base.

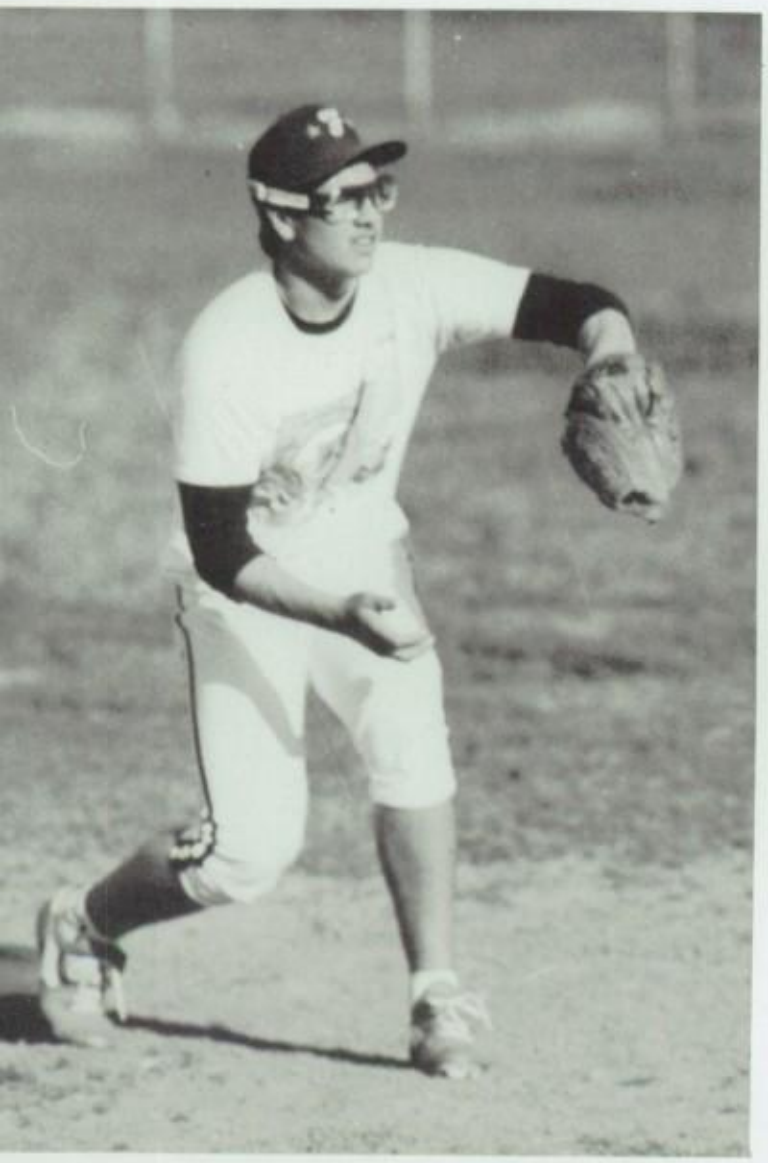
Startin' Younger

The J.V. baseball team collected more "fresh faces" than returning players during the 1988 season. The team consisted of a whopping ten freshman compared to six sophomores. Foothill had a terrific defense and tremendous speed, but the offense could have used a little work. Practicing every day, the J.V. Mustangs hoped to turn out some promising varsity players in the years to come.

Sock it to me: Doug Locsin really "gets down" to pick up a hard grounder.

Strrretch: Drew Burkhalter positions himself to catch the ball at first base.

Rising to the occasion: Chris Marlev goes high to stop a runner from scoring.



ng catch: Paco Pherigo concentrates hard to see the in-ing ball.

I'm ready!: Kelly Grijalva waits patiently for a pop ball.
Goin' home: Terri Davis throws the ball with all her might to get the ball home.
Practice makes perfect: Jennifer Romeyln and Terri Davis warm up on the side lines.

Watching the ball: Waiting for her chance, Kelly Grijalva gets ready to run.

Worn out: Laura Gaea practices her throwing techniques.

Warmin' up: Traci Davis practices her swing.

Varsity Softball Battin' In Rhythm

The varsity softball team looked forward to a rewarding and exciting season in 1988. With the expertise of Coach Negri, the team worked extremely hard to attain their goals. Having many returning players, the new team continued to play well. The team members gained confidence and were rewarded for the time it took to practice and perfect their skills.

Keeping tabs: Cindy Weathers waits for the ball to hit a home run.

Pow!: Hitting the ball to left field, Kelly Grijalva gets ready to run to first base.

Waiting patiently: Terri Davis waits to hear advice from her coach.

"The team was stacked with talent, but had a tough time putting our talent together with our emotions." Sara Eastham Woman Down: Goalie Tracy Luken saves the play.

Running hard: Torri Phillips out sprints an opposing player to regain possession.

No, it's mine!: Karen Steen protects the ball from an opposing team member.

Getting her kicks: Goalie Tracey Luken clears the ball to a teammate.

Be Careful: Racing toward the ball, Torri Phillips pulls her hands away so she won't foul.

Superdogs Dig Deep

When the J.V. girls' "soccerdogs" opened in early March, the overall outlook for the season was hopeful. With most of the team being newcomers, a T.O.C. berth would have been fantastic. The team was not impressive at home, winning only 1 out of 6 games, and problems occurred when they traveled. Sara Eastham said, "The team was stocked with talent, but had a tough time putting our talent together with our emotions."

Fancy foot work: Sara Eastham maneuvers to control the play.

Leave me alone: Karen Steen and Angela Edwards come together to take the play away.

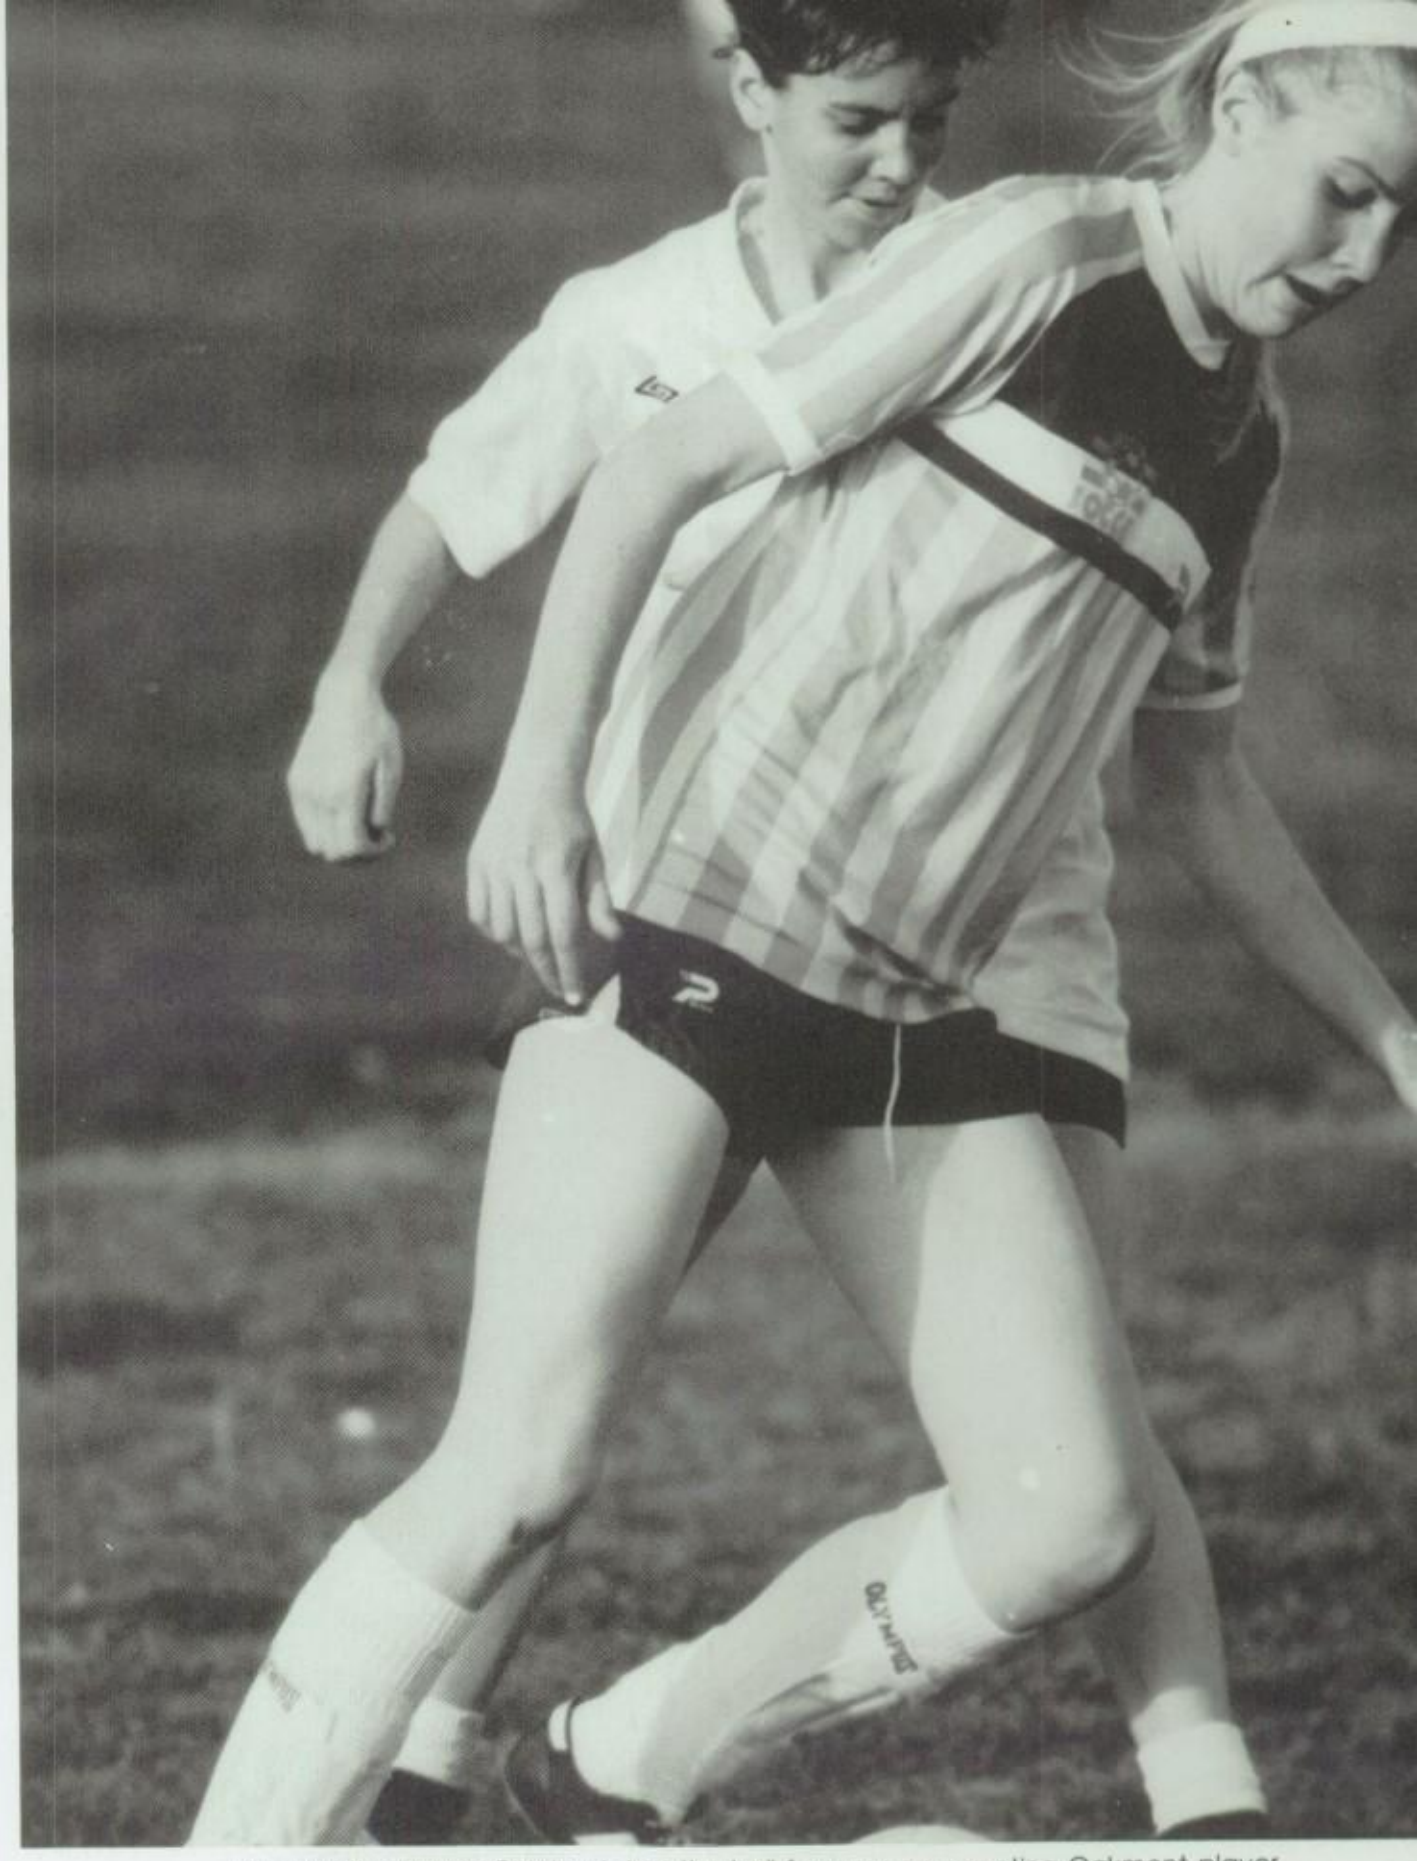
Let me see you try: Nicki Copren decides which way to go to make progress with the ball.

ot it . . . : Tina Brown and Jennifer Van Matre save the ball the Oakmont goal.

Back row: Sara Eastham, Krisann Broadbent, Nicki Copren, Kim Newton, Angela Edwards, Sam Pa Son, Jennifer Snyder, Torri Phillips, Melissa Fabrizio, Coach Pete Ramone, Front row: Karen Steen, Tina Brown, Lisa Bloor, Jenielle Ave-Lallment, Tracey Luken, Kathy Herold, Brooke Manley, Danika Orrvar, May Va Vang, Boa, Kim Souther

"We've been waiting a long time for this year. We've worked hard, got it together, and now it's payback time." — Kim Williamson and Michelle Stefani.

Here ya' go!: Jessica Wharton boots the ball into play.
Up, up, and away!: Kelly Newell heads the ball away from an approaching opponent.



"Up short!": Denise Quigley takes the ball from an unexpecting Oakmont player.

Let's work it!: Kim Williamson goes to the ball as Denise Quigley moves to an advantageous position.

"Bam!": Michelle Stefani heads the ball over an opposing player.

Not Just Kickin' It

A lot of time, energy, and spirit was devoted to the 1988 womens' varsity soccer team. Under the superb coaching of Mr. Don Wharton and Mr. Dave Colby, the dedicated team members were subjected to hours of tough practices, running, drills, and even more running! The team relentlessly pursued their goal of becoming a top team in their division. Starting players Kim Williamson and Michelle Stefani summed up the season by saying, "We've been waiting a long time for this year. We've worked hard, got it together, and now it's payback time."

Water break!: Foothill's best take time out to catch their breath and get a drink.

Never Surrender: Jessica Wharton fights for the ball, to the end.

"Get open, guys!": Kim Williamson looks to throw the ball into an open teammate.

e're gonna get ya": Kim Williamson attacks an Oakmont Playas Jackie Soik assists.

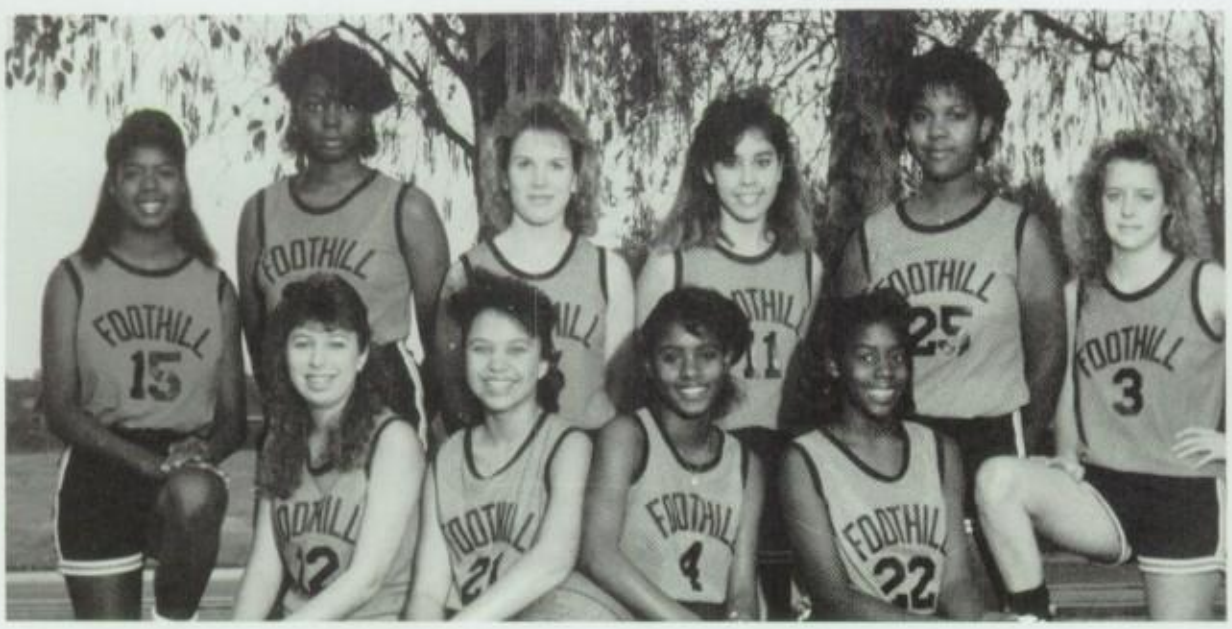
LADY 'STANGS

The girls' J.V. basketball team didn't have an easy season. The future looked bleak after losing many starting players to academic difficulties early in the season. However, the dedicated team members didn't lose hope. The girls played hard and, although the scores didn't always reflect it, they steadily progressed throughout the year.

Wide open: Shalonda Ozly tracks down the court with ease.

Who's open?: Karole Gresham looks for an open teammate.

I'll take that!: The J.V. team tries to intercept the ball from Kelly Newell.



The girls' J.V. basketball team: front row: Berlin Fredricks, Shan Crawford, Shalonda Ozly, Traci Owens. Back row: Divonna Edwards, Erica Hunter, Jennifer Williams, Sandy Jackson, Tiffany Marsh, Karole Gresham.

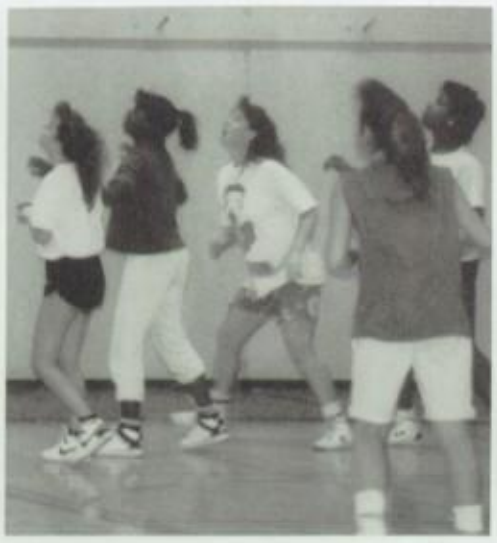
The whistle blows: Karole Gresham waits to see gets the ball.

Varsity Lady Stangs

"It's been a difficult season, but we've worked together as a team and that's what counts. With only two seniors leaving, it opens big doors for the team next year. They're gonna be good!" That is how captain Kim Williamson described the teams' efforts during the 1988 season. The lady 'stangs worked hard, and had a lot of fun. Some of the top players were top-shooter Kelly Grijalva, captains Kim Williamson and Jodi Mehl, and former MVP Jennifer Snyder.

Airborn: "Lady Magic" attempts to make a long jumper.

Can she do it?: Jessica Wharton attempts a freethrow.



Evil Eyes: Kelly Newell wants that ball.

Anticipation: Players anxiously wait for the ball to come down for a rebound.

That's the spirit!: The girls varsity basketball team gets pumped for a game.

The French Club was in full swing this year with a variety of activities for members. Fundraisers such as the annual Valentine's Day flower sale, pot-luck luncheons, and dinners helped to raise money for activities like a luncheon at Crepe Daniel. Members also watched the latest French films. The French Club was a tremendous success, as usual.

Hanging ten: Amy Turner kicks back to enjoy the ride.

Foothill's VICA chapter was very active this year. As in the past, the dedicated leaders and members worked very hard to raise funds. Fundraisers such as the candy sale brought in much needed money. As if the fundraisers weren't enough, the swim party, bowling, and many other exciting activities kept the members busy throughout the year. A lot of hard work and fun and games went into the preparation for the Regional Competition in March. A state officer, Stacey Johnson, said of the chapter, "We had a little trouble at the beginning, but the club has a lot of potential." The '87-'88 Vica chapter kept busy, had fun, and above all, got it together!

Say cheese: Stacey Johnson and Wade Bejeck enjoy the state office training session.

Key Club Cares

"Caring . . . Our Way of Life." That's the motto and it's one that Foothill's Key Club lives up to. Sponsored by the Carmichael Kiwanis Club, the Key Club members were involved in many community activities. Their various fundraisers such as a yogurt sale, pizza nights, and a jog-a-thon raised money for several charitable organizations. The Sacramento Children's Receiving Home, Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization, and a Mexican village all benefited from the time generously given by Key Club's members.

Science Club

Adventure coupled with learning was emphasized during this year's Science Club. Starting off with a nature hike along the scenic American River, the Science Club showed its new members that learning about nature can be interesting. Without losing any momentum the club officers scheduled a trip to the San Francisco Bay to keep enthusiasm at its peak. Finishing off the year with a bang, members took a trip to the Sacramento Zoo. All members agreed that this year's happenings were memorable.

FHP

In its third year of existence Foothill's Future Health Professional's club explored many new and exciting aspects of the health profession. During the spring FHP visited three major metropolitan hospitals; Sutter Memorial, Kaiser Permanente, and the U.C. Davis Medical Center. Members also participated as volunteers at the annual Sacramento Special Olympics. The goal of the Future Health Professional's Club is to promote health awareness programs among the entire student body.

Back row: Mrs. Durham, Kendra Morris, Paul Singh, Front row: Madori Price, and Moem Chen.

Stop or I'll shoot: Paul Singh, Madori Price, and Michelle Rousey visit the local fire station and run an emergency check.

An Opportunity To Serve

"Scholarship for Service" is the motto of the California Scholarship Federation. CSF diligently upholds this motto by providing service for the community and the student body. CSF members trick-or-treated for UNICEF. During Christmas and Thanksgiving holidays, they collected food for an unfortunate family and donated a Walt Disney movie to the Children's Receiving Home. The officers this year were as follows: Natalie Taylor, President; Julie Whitman, Vice-President; Trica Barnes, Secretary; Robert Chen, Treasurer; Gretchen Lowell, Historian.

Educational Opportunity Program

EOP, the Educational Opportunity Program, is designed to help minority students pursue a college career. Due to the changing of advisors, EOP got off to a slow start, but quickly began to "get it together." Under the leadership of Mrs. Mabel Washington, members were provided with many opportunities to visit and get a real feel for college life.

Practice Makes Perfect

What was the source of all those melodic tunes that floated through the halls during second period? Well, undoubtedly, they originated in room M-1. Daily, Foothill's advanced orchestra members met in that room to blend their musical talents. Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Lopes, the group was molded into a top-notch orchestra. Throughout the year, this orchestral ensemble gave several live performances which were free of charge and open to the public. Advanced Orchestra was received with great enthusiasm as a result of their long hours of diligent practice. In fact, Mr. Lopes said, "The performance level was exceptionally high this year." Obviously, practice makes perfect!

Stay Tuned

This year's dedicated group of aspiring cadet musicians have definitely been working at "getting it together". Throughout the year, they have diligently practiced scales, finger-drills, and lengthy music scrolls in the hopes of nurturing their musical inclinations. Under the direction of Mr. Lopes, the group has progressed tremendously. It is a certainty that these blooming musicians will continue to entertain their fellow Mustangs in the up-coming years, so stay tuned.

Choir

The school year started off with the Fall Concert, which was closely followed by the annual Christmas Concert. During the concert, the Choir was joined by alumni, parents and friends in a community chorus performing selections from Handel's "Messiah". Spring semester included the Golden Empire Music Festival performance, the Spring Concert, and the Pop's Concert. The year was brought to a close with a Music Department party.

Front row: M. Cruz, H. Ireland, K. Clark, L. Romero, C. McCoy, Second row: C. Hullum, L. McConkey, Nemeth, M. Ramos, T. Ball. Third row: T. Locke, S. Zinder, C. Ault, S. Ford, S. Rucksdaeschel, A. What a perfectionist!: Charrisa McCoy studies her music to be sure that there will be no mistakes.

Get it right!: Shawn Ford, Leonard Steward and Larry Motley concentrate on a difficult piece of music.

Pep Band

The goal of the Foothill High Pep Band was to liven up the basketball and football games. As always an excellent job was done. The Pep Band, which is composed of voluntary members of the marching band, dedicated long hours and extreme patience to making the band a success.

What a guy!: Showing immense talent on the snare drum, David Impson follows his music carefully.

Handle with care: With extreme caution, Mark Adams delicately places his trombone back in its case.

Go Ty!: Ty McLain demonstrates his expertise on the trumpet while playing for the rest of the class.

C.S.E.

Foothill's Contemporary Strings Ensemble always performed beautifully at various activities and proudly represented Foothill this past year. The Ensemble was mostly composed of members of the Cadet Orchestra. They performed at such places as the Capitol Jazz Festival, the Pop's Concert, and at many Foothill assemblies.

ont row: L. Romero, J. Nisperos, T. Lisman, D. Disney, C. Pickens, M. Prill. Back row: A. Cuthbert, S. Ewing, J. an Matre, G. Swankie, C. Groggen, J. Thomas, J. Woolsey.

Taking a breather: Kelly Newell relaxes for a moment while waiting for the down beat.

Hard work pays!: Performing skillfully during a rehearsal, Gina Swankie practices for an upcoming concert.

The Foothill Marching Mustangs

The Foothill Marching band had a first class year. Under the direction of Mr. Bill Adams and Drum Major Ted Sessions, the marching band and flag team marched their way to victories in many competitions and performances. In the Las Plumas Festivo, both the band and the percussion section took 2nd place. In the Del Oro Band Spectacular the mustangs were proud to take home 3rd place. Taking 1st place in the John F. Kennedy Band Review proved that the mustangs were tops. In the Woodland Christmas Parade the band took a 1st place trophy, the flag team won a 2nd place trophy, the I.D. placed 3rd, and Drum Major Ted Sessions garnered 5th place. Obviously, the marching mustangs had a great year. It proved that getting it together has its advantages.

Go! Fight! Win!: The marching band enjoys cheering the football players on with their inspiring music.

Lucky dogs!: Being on the field at halftime is a privilege for the Marching Band.

Practice makes perfect: Christina Butner goes over her routine during lunch.

Talented Thespians

For the first time in fifteen years, drama has returned to Foothill High. Talented mustangs restored the art of acting in short one act plays presented to raise money for the drama club. The club was organized by Mrs. Robertson and conducted by the following club officers: President — Carena Young, Vice-President — Kelly Moore, Secretary — Sheri Reed, Treasurer — Rosanna Ramirez, and Representative — Teana Reynolds.

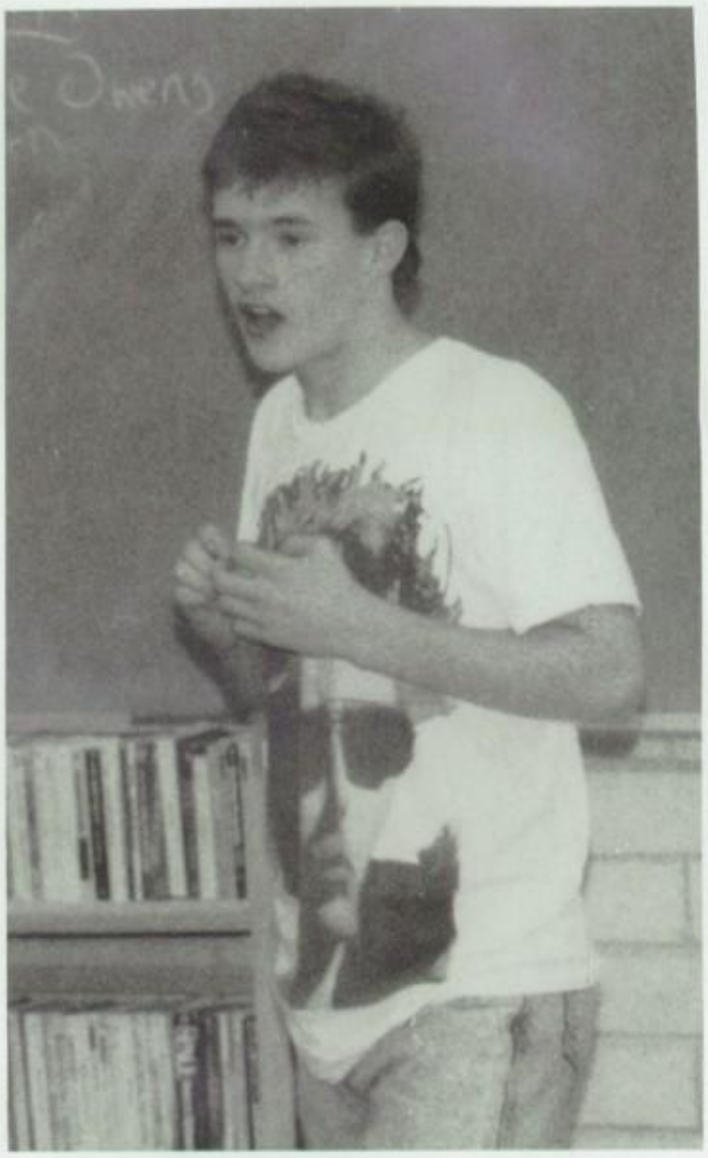
Hey, look!: Amy Post and Chanel Martina demonstrate eye contact.



You don't understand: Jeremy Burgess expresses feeling from the heart.

The Debate Team: Natalie Taylor and Wayne Bennett.

What?: Wayne Bennett and Natalie Taylor debate among themselves.

Speak Up!

Foothill's speech club was small, but very hard-working. Members participated in the Sacramento Valley Forensics League and in area service club competitions such as those held by the Lions Club. They learned how to successfully speak their minds. The club consisted of two dedicated students, Wayne Bennett and Natalie Taylor.

ACADEMICS

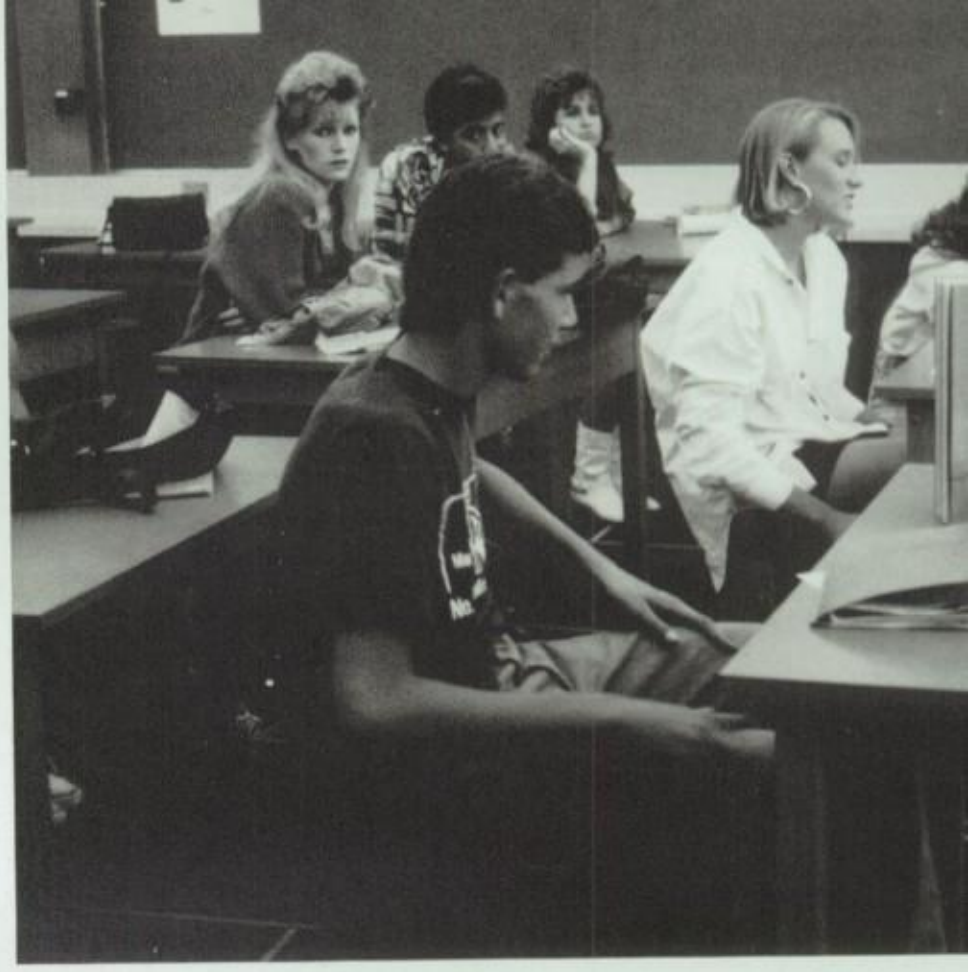
Pictures, Panic and Pandemonium

Long periods in class, too many lunch hours spent selling yearbooks, seemingly endless worknights and much more combined to form the Yearbook class. When the staff was not rushing to meet deadlines, or waiting in line for a typewriter, they were scampering down the halls attempting to identify unknown people in pictures. Everyone on the staff worked very hard to create the 1988 Yearbook for the students and faculty of Foothill.

Under the expert supervision and advice of Mr. Stan Stoneking the staff came up with the theme of "Getting It Together" to symbolize Foothill's possession of the expertise to organize school activities.

The class consisted of six veterans and ten novices. Last summer, editors Maureen McPherson and Anne Colby and veteran Daryl Ganas were able to attend a yearbook camp at UCSC called "Yearbook West". Here they discovered new and exciting ideas which they brought back for use in the '88 yearbook.

Hi there: Leslie Murphy flashes a smile of welcome to all potential yearbook buyers.



Ho Hum: Suanne Buggy patiently tags the junior pictures.

Hmmm . . . : Staffers contemplate a cover design.

How about . . . : Anne Colby lists possible theme ideas.

Go Mary Lou!: Mary Lou Cooper herself with drawing a layout.

Her?!: Charlie Ku, Daryl Ganas, and Scott Haselwood read over the Senior Best ballots.

Nah: Shanna Newcomb sketches her ideas on a Roughing It sheet.

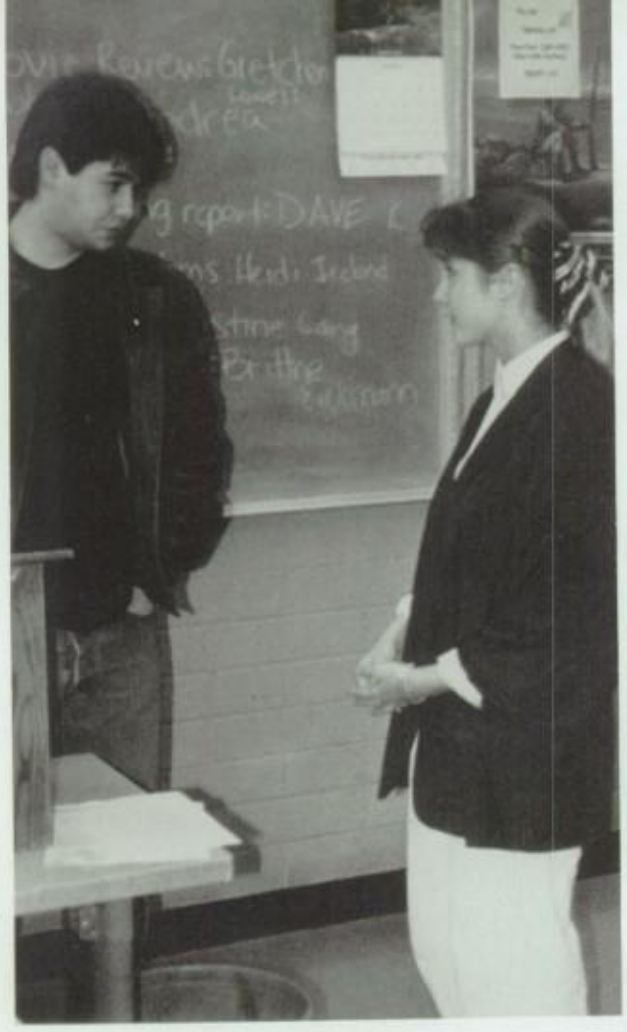
Almost done: Suanne Buggy offers words of encouragement to Lara Parks.

All this?: Greg Robinson thumbs through the faculty list.

more: Tasha Martinez and Shanna Newcomb work side by side while ping pictures for a photo montage.

Hurry!: Sheri Bosworth works quickly to finish the sophomore layouts.

Oh no!: Upon viewing the arduous task set before him, Daryl Ganas turns away from the subject with a bemused gaze.



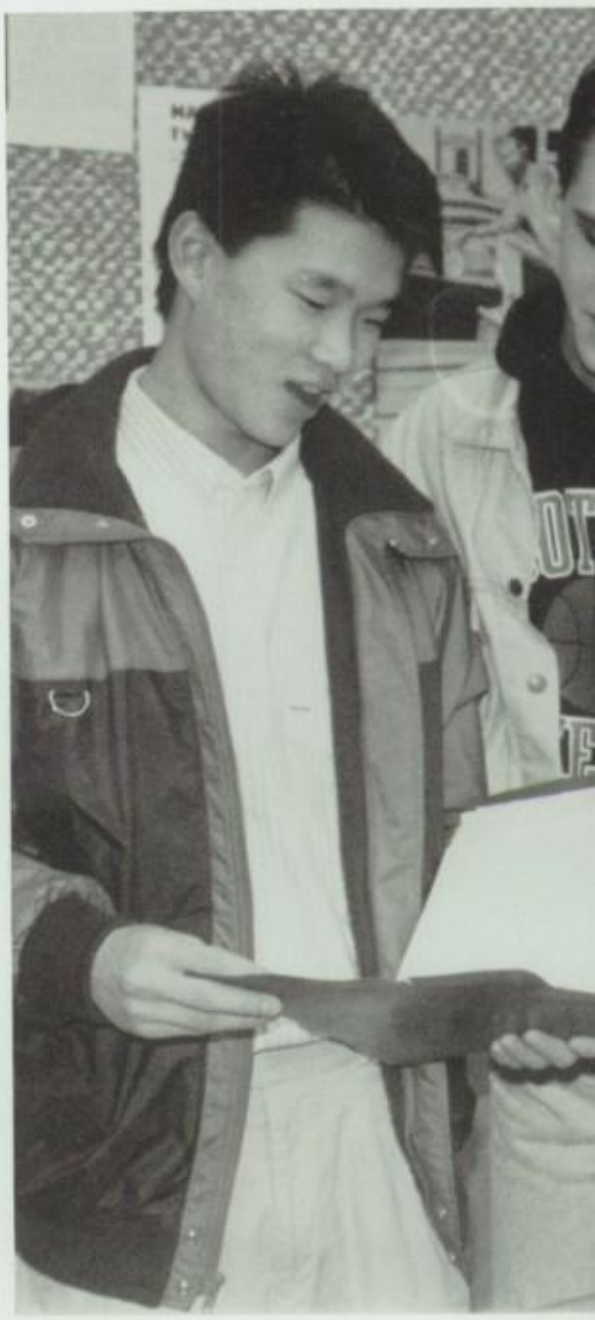
Give it to me straight: Natalie Taylor tries to make her pint, as Brian Andrews looks on skeptically.

Back row: J. Whitman, B. Chen G. Lowell, J. Wharton, D. Krueger, J. Sullivan, C. Butner, M. Hinkle, S. Walprecht, B. Eickmann, A. Hinkle, Mr. Milton. Front row: Heidi Ireland, T. Barnes, N. Taylor, B. Andrews, J. Gingrich, M. McPherson, V. Brown, D. George.

Stop the Presses

The early bird gets the worm, or the news in the case of the zero period journalism class. Beginning at 6:45 A.M, the journalism students are often found coming to class with wet hair and the last piece of toast from breakfast. The students main task was to write and produce the school newspaper, Hoofbeats, and to have it delivered by second period on every other Friday.

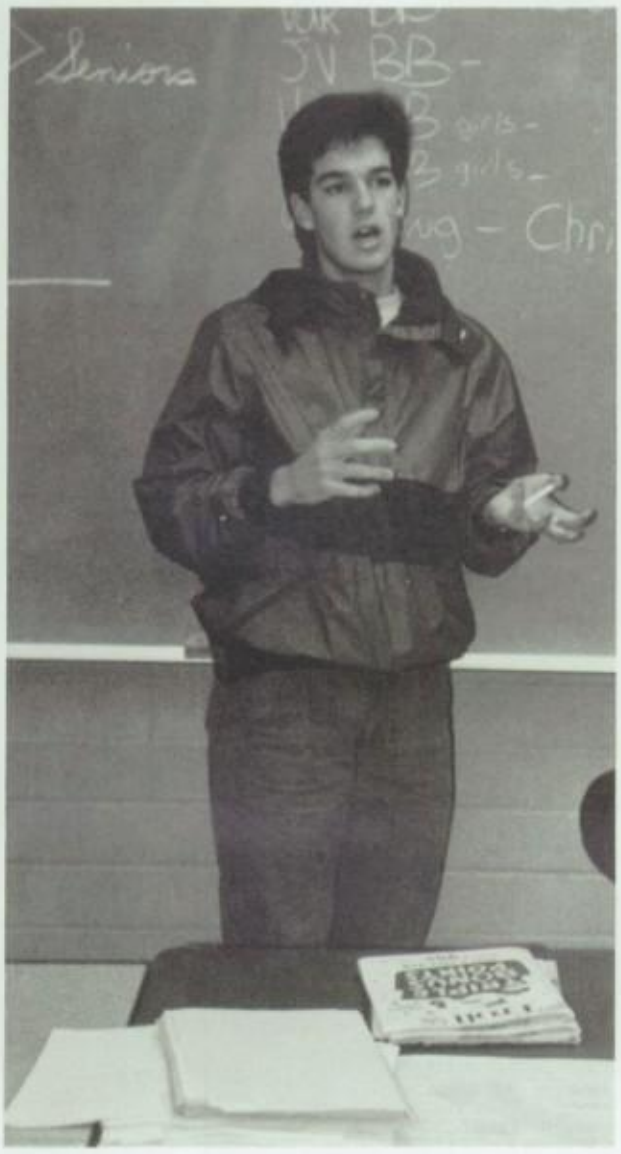
The editor, Brian Andrews, was responsible for fifteen to sixteen issues a year, with the last issue containing a full eight pages. Students were given quite a bit of independence as the journalism class had little structure to it. Therefore, the school newspaper depended on the talent and diligence of its students.

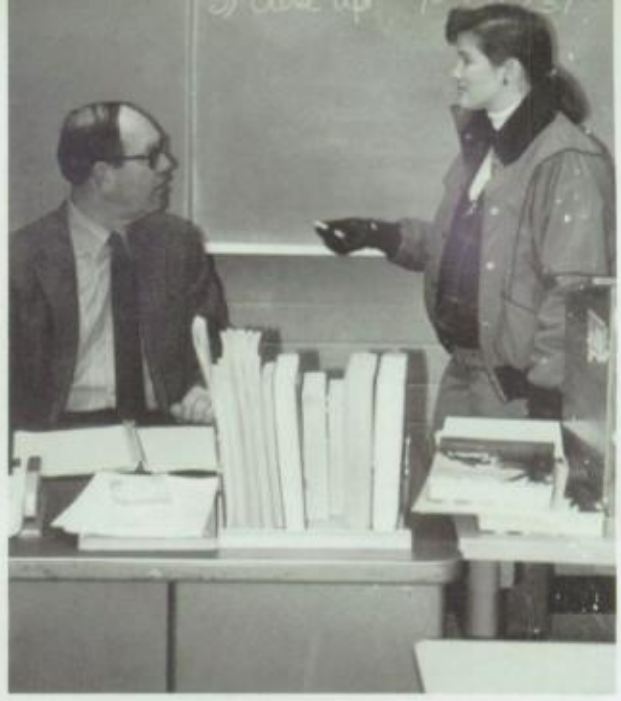


Get Busy!: Christina Butner, Brittne Eickma Maureen McPherson, and Silke Walprecht loun around in the journalism class.

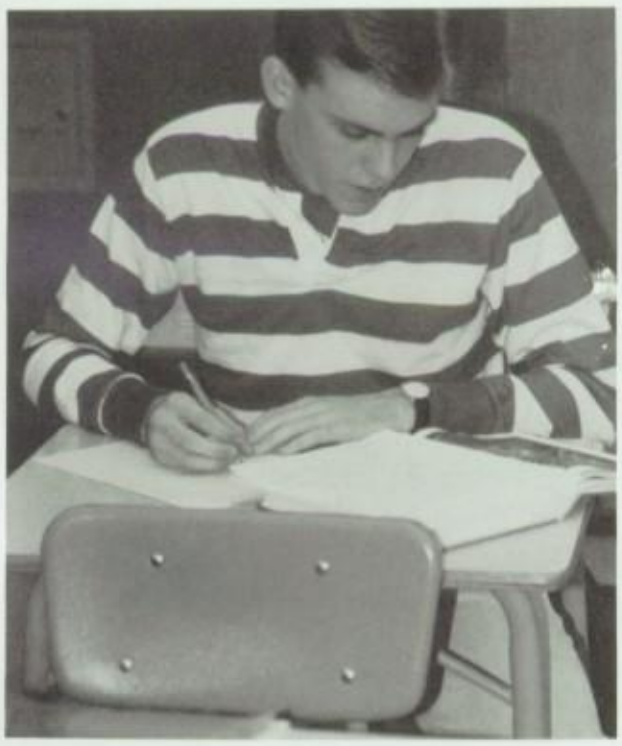
Hey guys, look at this!: Bobby Chen, Matt Hinkle, David George, and Andrew Hinkle read over a humorous story.

Now that I have your attention: Jason Wharton gives instructions to the sport reporters.





But, Mr. Milton . . . : Tricia Barnes struggles to convince Mr. Milton that she is right.



Due next period?: Andrew Hinkle rushes to finish Hoofbeats assignment at the last minute.

No, man, listen: Jason Wharton and David Krueger discuss a story for Hoofbeats.

Should we print it?: Jimmy Gingrich and Brian Andrews search for appropriate headlines.

Julie Whitman plans to attend either Stanford, Berkeley, the U.S. Air Force Academy, or the University of Florida after completing high school. She wants to major in business and eventually own a business in Europe. Julie has won many awards such as a physics and chemistry medal, an English medal, a CSR award, a French II award, Outstanding H.S. swimmer, most inspirational swimmer, co-captain of a H.S. swim team, and co-Captain of a year-round swim team. Julie had also been involved in GATE, the newspaper staff, Young Life, and CSF. Julie's goal is to make the NCAAS in swimming.

After completing high school, Daniel Hinnenkamp plans to attend the University of the Pacific, the University of Redlands, or Willamette University. Dan has not yet decided on his major, but is interested in math and English. He has been involved in CSF, in which he has served on several committees. He also helped out with tutoring after school. Dan served as secretary of the Spanish Club, and was active in journalism, the Biology Club, and Friday Night Live.

David Hinnenkamp plans to attend the University of the Pacific or Sacramento State University after High School. David has been involved in many clubs, which included the Spanish Club, CSF, Biology Club, and Friday Night Live. David has been in other activities outside of school such as tutoring. He is interested in a science career involving either astronomy or aerospace engineering.

Brittne Eickmann plans to attend U.C. Davis to major in Applied behavioral sciences. Brittne has been active in many clubs such as: Catholic Youth Organization, Pep Squad, National Fraternity of Student Musicians, National Honor Society, Newspaper Staff, CSF, and Gifted and Talented Students Association. Brittne enjoys swimming and was a member of the swim team at her previous school. She has been honored with awards such as the Rotary International Youth Leadership Award and The Elks Club Award for English.

High School is made up of hard work, sports, clubs, excitement, and good friends. These students have finally been academically acknowledged for their outstanding efforts throughout their high school years. Many of these students have been involved with CSF, journalism, student leadership, VICA, and athletics.

To be a participant in the top ten, students have to rearrange schedules, maintain excellent grade point averages, join clubs, and have future goals made. Some of these students have received scholarships with which they may attend top universities around the world. As a result of their endeavors these top ten achievers have limitless opportunities open to them.

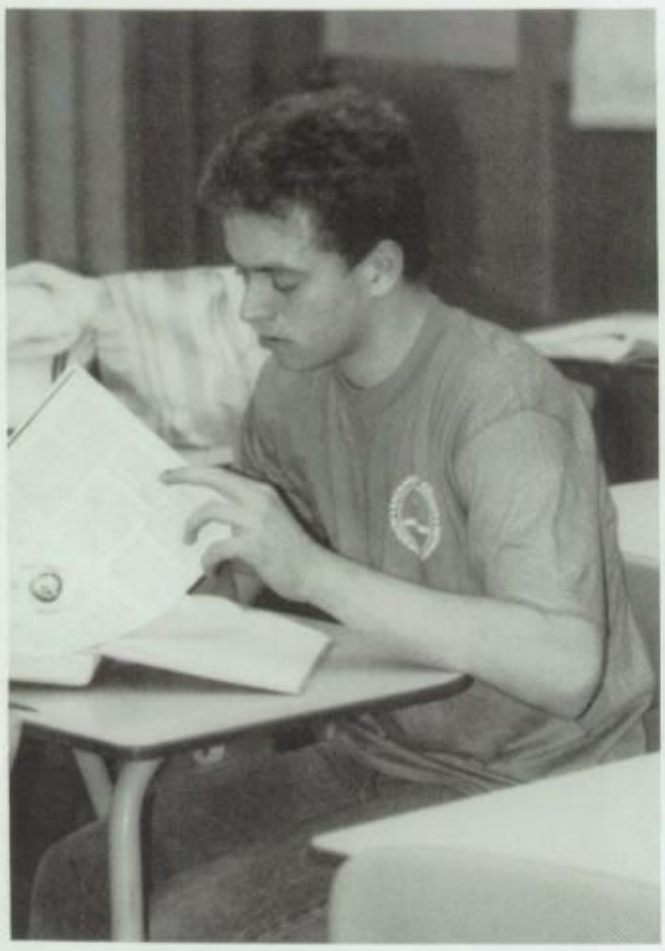
Academic Decathlon

The Academic Decathlon is a contest of academic strength open to students of all grades. These talented intellectuals participated in ten events which included: written tests in English, social science, economics, fine arts, math, and science, an essay, a speech, an interview, and the "Super Quiz" which was based on the history of flight. The students competed with teams from twenty-six other schools for academic recognition, each on their own level.

Front row: Michelle Chaffee, Jaime Scott, Krista McCollough, Lena Rice. 2nd row: Bryan Andrews, Robert C
Wayne Kaestner.

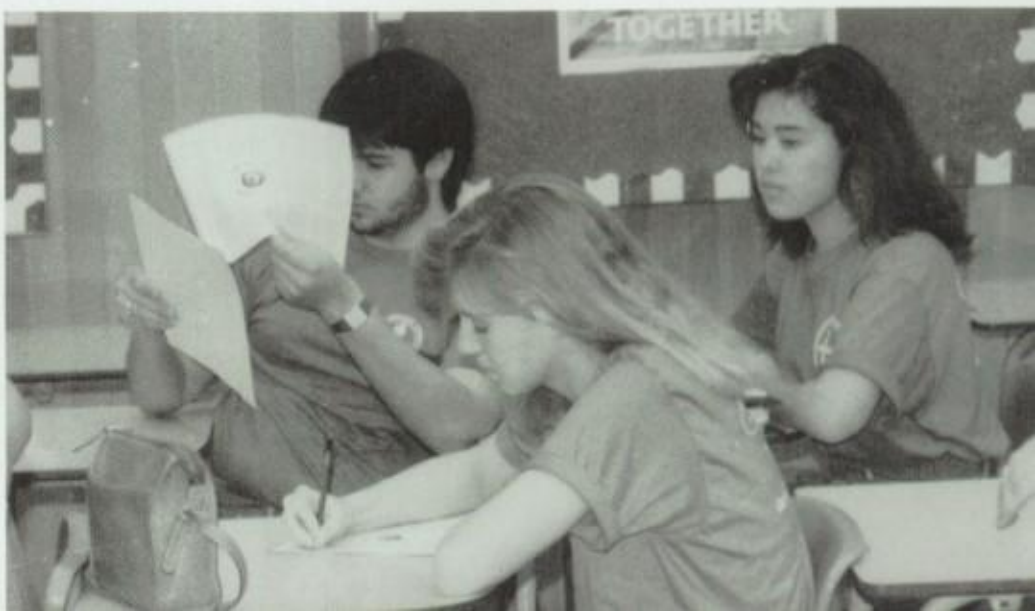


Persuing pertinent information: Wayne Kaestner looks over the materials to study for the competition.

Brain-trust: The young academics listen intently to the wise words of their coach.

Puzzled: Bryan Andrews, Lena Rice, and Christa McCollough ponder over a posed question.

Exercising their fingers: Student scholars begin work on their essays.



Knowledge Bowl

The Knowledge Bowl was another exciting contest of academic skill. There are usually four participants and two alternates from each high school in the district. Students were chosen on basis of their expertise in a particular area. The areas in question were: English, math, social science, and fine arts, and one student was selected for each. Questions on current events were also asked.

The team, once selected, went on to Grant High School where a panel of five teacher-judges asked them questions worth valuable points. The winning team received a trophy for their school and each team member receives his or her own trophy and fifty dollars.

d the answer is . . . ?: Mr. Bordeaux awaits the ponse to the first question.

Thinking it over: Wayne Kaestner hesitates before sounding the buzzer.

Take your positions, please: Young scholars prepare for the next exciting question.

Anticipation: The team waits patiently to begin the quiz.

What can it be?: Mr. Bordeaux receives blank stars from Bryan Andrews and Tammy Hayes at the reading of an unfamiliar question.

en up!: Matt Colby looks amused at Joe Peck's on.

What was that?: Francis Hoe asks for the question to be repeated as Sabrina Phillips looks on.

Boredom strikes: During a lapse in the questioning, Christa McCollough amuses herself to keep from dozing like Michael Witt.

Study! Study! Study!

Although there were no casualties, the students at Foothill High complained of a heavy work-load during the 1987-'88 school year. The hardworking, steadfast students were often found studying and finishing up homework during the lunch breaks, and they were up at all hours of the night diligently working on their stacks of homework.

Studying for tests seemed to be a never-ending task for students, but the results were positive as was evident with the well-informed intellectuals that could be found dispersed through the halls of Foothill.

Luckily all survived the horrendous quantity of work assigned, and though the work was not always fun, the information and skills gained throughout the year will undoubtedly come in handy in years to come.

What is your favorite excuse for not having your homework done?

1. It was an official Jewish Holiday and rumor had it that Judge Wapner was retiring. — Jeremy Burgess
2. I made it into a paper airplane and it got high-jacked to Lybia. — D.J.
3. My homework was on the Space-shuttle. — Robert Neves
4. I lost my lunchpail. — Brett Catanzaro
5. The dog ate it. — Greg Robinson

What was the best reason you used to get out of taking a test?

1. I have a terrible migraine and I can't see straight. — Pihla Meskanen
2. There was a test today? — Erica Bautista
3. One rainy day, I told my teacher I had a baseball game, and he let me out. — Tony Lacy
4. I already took that test. — Donna Rock
5. I can't take that test because I have a case of simple chronic halitosis and I have to go get some tic-tacs. — Jeff Jacobson

Are you sure that's the answer?: Alexa T helps Teena Reynolds with her chemistry.

Okay guys, let's study!: Andrew Hinkle, Mc kle, Jeff Hanson, and Sommes McGregor d homework collectively.

Cramming before the big test: Anthony Bamsey and Greg Robinson study for a physics test.

Hey! Well, I've been a pretty fun year. Well not really, it was okay. Anyway, ya sure are one ugly bag person; ya stink. Have a great summer & don't ~~get~~ screw your summer; Call me and we'll go out and don't people with a make woman out of your car.

Andrew - You are so studdly! I ♡ U Andrew!
I think you know that though. I really missed you when you went to another class for 5th. I had no one to flirt with. (well, I had people to flirt with, it just didn't feel the same that's all!) Well, I hope this year was SO much fun for you. It was for me! Thanks for being such a sweetie, I ♡ ya for it! BIG KISS

Before summer begins, here are some words of advice:

1) Don't try to be a straight "A" student next year; if you do, you think too much!

2) Don't drink & drive, you might hit a bump & spill your drink!

3) Don't hate the Partridge family, it's bad for your health!

Now a joke - what's white and goes up? ..... (oh, you're real sick if you're thinking that!) ..... It's a retarded snowflake! HA!

Have a blast!
Have a great summer!

Love & hugs -
Krista Willock

Andrew,
Last year was great. I'm starting to get scared because we're seniors now and I really don't know what to do with my life. Well, I'm sure that I'll see you at Josh's.

It's been nice knowing you Andrew — I think this year I talked to you a couple of times - sorry about that. I so bad will not have the chance to get to know you better. Good luck in your future always, Tina J. Walters

Andrew,
This year jammed. I can't believe its over. Mr. Heston made it. I would have gave up and retired. Hope to have you in another class next year. K.G.B. Anthony
